

Staff Announces Form, Details and Price of Annual

BOOK TO SELL AT $1.50 A COPY; MAY 10 SET FOR RELEASE DATE

Painfully reminded that the publication of the annual is not very far in the offing, the staff is bending to its task with a will. The current labors center around the selection and arrangement of snap-shots and photographs. When viewing some of the returns from the photographer, some of the staff members are inclined to agree with the old woman who said: "Lawk a mercy! This can't be none o' me!" However, all pictures appearing in the annual will be properly tagged with the names of the individuals, so friends will be able to say: "That's so-and-so because her name is under the picture."

Photos of the faculty members as well as those of about 135 students will be included in the book. The page arrangement of the pictures will be two parallel rows running vertically. In addition to the photos of individuals, a profuse array of snap-shots will be included. Laurice DeLaurant is busy collecting these at the present time. There will also be group pictures of the various societies, teams and organizations.

The size of the annual will be what is known as "Standard," a

SINGERS FIND GOOD HOSTS AT LINCOLN

A most pleasant day was enjoyed by the choir on March 7 when they journeyed to Lincoln. Despite many delays occasioned by carburetor trouble—a fresh development in the traditional round of Dana bus trouble—the group arrived in time to rehearse before the evening concert. The program was given in St. Paul's Methodist Church before an appreciative audience.

The members of the choir are still raving about the good folks and the good food at the capital city. Many former Danians were met on the trip, among them Mr. and Mrs. Knudsen (Ellen and Rudy to you), Eloise Morris and Eleanor Petersen.

Alpha Sigma Phi To Hold Prelims

Contestants who have been preparing for the Alpha Sigma Phi Speech Contest will swing into action next week to determine which entries will be eligible to appear in the final contest on April 5.

On March 22 and 23 elimination contests will be held. Approximately 35 speakers will appear in these preliminary tests. From this number 15 will be selected to compete in the finals. Faculty members will act as judges during the eliminations.

Choir Names Iowa Cities Scheduled

The schedule for the spring tour of the choir is now rapidly rounding into definite form. According to the latest information the following cities in Iowa are to be included in the itinerary: Sioux City, Marcus, Royal, Rutland, Cedar Falls, Clinton, West Branch, Elkhorn, Exira and Avoca. Among the places of interest to be visited on the tour are the Cherokee Hospital, "The Little Brown Church in the Vale" near Nashua, West Bend Grotto, the University of Iowa campus and "A Little Bit of Heaven" in Davenport. Present plans, not definitely final, set the time of the tour for April 9-18.

Shorter trips planned include: Council Bluffs, April 4; Lyons, Nebraska, April 25; and Harlan and Manilla, Iowa, May 2. Following the spring activity the choir will make a Minnesota tour in June, as was previously announced.

Hilltop Bits

The Friday evening social gatherings in the reception room of the men's dormitory, at first repeated failure, have now blossomed into a favored feature on the activity calendar.

It has been noised about that the Alpha Sigs are to sponsor a very ultra-ultra garden party late in April. Boy, trot out my soup and fish!

Murder by camera! Some such desire must have entered Mr. Skoglund's head as he endeavored to inspire fetching poses in the one hundred or more Danians who faced his lens two weeks ago. The results of these photographic phenomena will be recorded in the annual.

This week over 30 contestants meet in the Alpha Sigma Phi speech contest eliminations. A glance at the list of entrants convinces us that the competition will be keener than Grandpa's straight-edge.

There's nothing like a journey by foot to town and back to guarantee the upkeep of that school-girl complexion. The expedition totals three miles, and quite a number of Eds and Coeds have been taking advantage of the opportunity during these prematurely balmy days.

We peeked in on the dramatics class the other day and the ancient histrionic art was certainly undergoing a variety of treatment. All joking aside, though, we hope to have a production from them before the school year expires.

The contestants in the Alpha Sigma Phi contest can't lose. There'll be a party for all of them in the gym Friday evening, March 19. Refreshments will be served, so if you can't speak, you can at least eat; 7:30 is the time.

Among Our Religious Events

The Foreign Mission Society met on Saturday evening, March 6, and planned to inaugurate a new system for the study of missions. In addition to the regular monthly meeting which will replace one of the Luther League hours, the group plans to hold an additional session once a month in the nature of a forum. A particular mission field or project will be discussed at each meeting. Association with this activity will bring the student knowledge and appreciation of current mission work. All are invited to join. Watch for further announcements.

The Foreign Mission Society will present movies on the Santal Mission tomorrow evening, March 16.

Chapel talks from March 15 to 25 will be based on texts taken from the passion story.

The Rev. C. Clifford Madsen of Kansas City, Kansas, will speak at the local church on April 6, and at our chapel service on April 7. He will also be the speaker at the Luther League meeting on the evening of April 7.

A youth rally has been scheduled for Sunday, May 9. Judging from the success of this project in former years, it is expected that the event will be one of the highlights of the year's religious program.

SNAPS! SNAPS! SNAPS!

The 1937 annual is looking for snap-shots. Perhaps you have some good ones? Or, at least you have a camera. The staff is anxious to present a representative cross-section of school life in snap-shots, and has announced that it will present a copy of the annual free to the person who contributes the greatest number of accepted pictures. Turn your entries in to Laurice DeLaurant. Who knows, you may be the lucky one!

Hark Ye Alumni, Students, Faculty

What is Dana's greatest need? This is a question which enters into most campus conversations. There are ideas expressed on the subject every day. But beyond the treatment which this question receives in informal talk, we have nothing upon which to base a representative opinion.

The Hermes, therefore, has decided to conduct a survey to gather in the various individual opinions, and present the findings in summary form in a future issue. Here's all you have to do—take a slip of paper and write out briefly what you believe to be the greatest need or needs of Dana College. In your opinion there may be one need or there may be 20. There is no restriction on the number which you may turn in. You need not sign your name. Then hand the slip to the editor or place it in the Hermes box in the mail rack. Isn't that simple.

The deadline for these contributions is April 1. That will allow the alumni sufficient time to get their ideas in by mail. The material will then be condensed, and the needs, in the order of importance according to the results of the survey, will be published in the Hermes for April 12.

Not only will the findings of this survey make interesting reading, but they should, if everyone cooperates, be of concrete value to those whose responsibility it is to plan and conduct the school.

Remember—this is for all students, alumni and faculty members. Let us, for once, carry something through unanimously. The greater the number of opinions, the greater the value of the findings.

Dramatic Class Making Headway

Over 20 dramatic students have accomplished much since the beginning of this semester, according to Professor J. C. Brown, instructor of the dramatics class. The course was introduced for the second semester as an experiment to determine whether there would be enough interest to warrant the continuance of dramatics at Dana College. The result was that many more students responded than had been expected.

The first work was confined to dramatic monologues to familiarize the students with appearing before the members of their own group. Mr. Brown explained that different class members need various kinds of material for declamation before they can forget themselves and the rest of the class, and give all attention to the selection. At this time they have progressed to sketches with two characters, and will add more as their ability increases. By the end of the year, they will present one-act plays if the plan being used now is followed throughout. "The whole purpose of the class," said Professor Brown, "is to teach the student to appear before any group with as much ease as possible. Thus far, we have enjoyed great success."

Rev. Wilhelmsen Is Nominated For Dana Presidency

COUNCIL AND BOARD NAME WISCONSIN PASTOR IN JOINT SESSION HERE

Meeting in joint session on March 2, the Church Council and the School Board selected the Rev. Karl J. Wilhelmsen as their nominee for the presidency of Dana College and Trinity Seminary.

The selection was made after consideration of proposals from the various district boards who had been asked previously to submit their choice of candidates for nomination.

The Rev. Wilhelmsen has a well-informed understanding of the affairs and problems of our school, having served for several years on the School Board. This experience fits him in a special

STUDENTS STILL WITHOUT PREXY

Nothing but silence greets those who are endeavoring to glean further information on the matter of electing a student body president. Since that memorable Friday—February 26—when both candidates jumped the traces, nothing further has been accomplished.

Some say 'that this constitutes a tacit acknowledgement of approval for the permanence of Acting President Edward Hansen's position. The nominating committee has no statement to make. It is believed, however, that some official action will be taken in the near future.

Proofs Provoke Varied Comment

Qually was a very busy and popular man late last week—not because of his recent political activity, but because of the arrival of proofs for the yearbook photographs. Representatives of the Skoglund Studio of Omaha had previously taken pictures of most of the students, and to Qually, as business manager of the annual, fell the task of distributing the proofs. He was nearly mobbed while carrying out his task.

Many students who wouldn't believe it before now have photographic evidence of the way they appear in public. Among the comments heard were:

CHRISTIANITY AND SCHOLARSHIP

Of all the functions with which man is concerned Christianity and scholarship are the most devoted to truth and the least followed in life. Despite the purity and trustworthiness of their ideals and intentions, their principles are the sincere concern of an obvious minority. This fact to those who have had experience with the truth, becomes humanity's greatest tragedy. There are times when this conviction becomes so overwhelming that some clergymen and scholars become nearly hysterical in their efforts to cudgel the truth into mankind. But they fight the inevitable; although the truth is free to all, it is accepted by few. The search for truth is the most important mission in life, but it shall never be the most popular. Christ himself prophesied that.

There is, however, another misfortune which is perhaps the active concern of very few. That is the strife which is promoted between Christianity and scholarship. It is indeed unfortunate that these two, the most avowed enemies of ignorance and evil, should so often be placed in opposition against each other. Both admit the goal of truth; both demand the sacrifice and forgetfulness of self; both renounce the powers of darkness; both seek to cultivate justice, mercy, honesty and morality; both are pillars of culture. And yet there are endless discordances between their exponents.

There is no valid reason why these forces should not join hands. Christianity is the finest foundation for scholarship; scholarship is the soundest superstructure with which to complete the building of Christian character. As long as the goal of truth is kept inviolate by both, their union holds forth the brightest promise for the progress of mankind. True Christianity cannot exclude scholarship; true scholarship cannot entertain a desire to pervert Christianity. They belong together.

Our duty is to consider this matter as it pertains to the church college,—to our own school. There are two courses open to us. If Christianity and scholarship do not belong together, we have no right to continue as a college. On the other hand, if they do belong together, there is no reason why the church college should not ultimately become the standard educational agency. At present the church college has adopted neither course. It has not ceased to exist, nor has it taken the lead in the field of education. Obviously, the decision is not yet made. But the result cannot be indefinitely postponed through neglect.

BURIED TREASURE

They have done it! They have done what for long we have feared might happen to the venerable walls of our Ad building, to those walls which now no longer mark the trails of genius and of romance or are stamped with the stamp of mystic symbols or bear the signatures or famous mark-your-name-all-over-maniacs. They have committed sacrilege against that branch of knowledge which is history. They have covered with stinking paint the names and penned likenesses (as well as numerous mysterious but significant marks left by illiterates, probably) of the alumni roll.

That the administration presiding over this hill could conceive of such an atrocity is beyond comprehension. The deed is in certain respects comparable to Vespasian's robbery of the temple at Jerusalem or to the destruction of art treasures in time of war and the present day demolition of historic landmarks to make room for highways. What would the world say if the administrators of Cambridge, Oxford, Harvard, Berlin or Basel universities should order the autographs of past students obliterated from the ivy-covered walls of their buildings? Or if the King of Egypt should hire interior decorators to repaint the walls of the pyramids? And what will happen when the world learns that certain names can no longer be found on the walls of Old Main?

However, all that we might say or do now would be in vain, for the milk is spilt.

But this we can do, we can strike! We can refuse to spend our artistic and literary talents on yellowed walls, we can deny the world the privilege of some day admiring such traces of personality as we might have left on those same walls. Henceforth, we will take greater delight in not adorning the walls of Dana than ever before we took in leaving our names and faces in such public places.

STUDENT COMMENT

Proposals. Now don't form any judgments as to the nature of this article until you have read further. It is just by way of approach. But it is true that there has been some agitation for the right of women to propose marriage as well as men. Granting that that would be desirable and in line with the modern tendency toward the greater equality of women with men, it would follow that invitation from a fairer member of the species to entertain a young man for an evening would also be in order. Then consistency would demand that any expense connected with such a pleasurable evening should be borne by the hostess, or at least put on a 50-50 or "dutch" basis. Reasonable? Yet the biggest enemies of the plan are the tyrant, public opinion, and the frequently misused argument, custom or tradition. The above is just plain logic. But there are utilitarian reasons for the plan.

The "dutch treat" could easily lead to the extremes of which we have spoken above, but it does have a wealth of advantages which makes it a problem of interest to us as students and young people. We suggest that some group with much initiative organize to make that practice the common thing about the college. The idea is not to further the "matrimonial bureau" reputation for which Dana is already noted, but to promote more of those pure friendships which make for education in social agreeableness. Many students, both men and women, are in favor of making the practice prevalent. We suggest it, not out of a "Scotch" spirit, but to encourage a more wholesome feeling and relationship (note the word wholesome) among those who do not have potentially permanent connections with the "one and only."

Several Volumes Added to Library

Nineteen volumes have been added to the Dana College library since January 1, according to Miss Dorthea Jensen, librarian. For the most part they have been purchased by the school, but a few have been gifts.

Following is the list of new books as compiled by Miss Jensen:

- Rankin: College Composition. (Gift of Professor Hartwig.)
- Piercy: Modern Writers at Work. (Also gift of Professor Hartwig.)
- Nordgreen: Problems that Confront Young People.
- Tanner: Manual of Bible Teaching.
- Travor: A Lutheran Handbook.
- Miller: Love That Lasts.
- Hallesby: Why I Am a Christian.
- Skovgaard-Petersen: The Book of Youth.
- Ingles: The Silver Trumpet.
- Fernberger: Elementary General Psychology.
- Reed: The Effective and Ineffective College Teacher.
- Strong: The Psychology of Selling and Advertising.
- Davis: Teaching the Elementary Curriculum.
- Emerson: The Evolution of Expression.
- Marshall: Fairy Tales of Many Lands.
- Marshall: Favorite Fairy Tales.
- Brooks: The Flowering of New England.
- Vaughan: Breeds of Livestock in America.
- Rostoftzeff: History of the Ancient World, Volume II.

THIS MAN RECEIVETH SINNERS—Luke 15, 2

These words form the substance of the Pharisees taunts of Christ's merciful ministry.

One need not study the characteristics of the Pharisees to a great extent to determine what they would have done with the sinners. Without a doubt they would have made them objects of scornful criticism. They would have rejected them and cast them out from their holy society. They would then have patted themselves on the back for having performed a noble, virtuous, and worthy act. Perhaps one of the greatest cruelties that can be imagined is man's inhumanity to man. We have our modern day self-righteous Pharisees. We have those who assume a "holier than thou" attitude, who go about with long faces and sober countenances, who have nothing but scorn and contempt on their lips for sinners. That at which these would-be righteous men sneer is one of the fundamental facts of Christ's gospel.

The message that Jesus receives sinners has lifted many a poor miserable wretch out of his suffering and made of him a new man. Every humble sinner who has come in a repentant spirit to this friend of sinners remembers to his last day the solace and comfort that entered his life when the redemptive Christ became to him a reality. He is shocked at the disdainful comments men make of this one who gave him assurance that his guilt was removed. To the Christian this opprobrium of the Pharisees is a cry of victory. Though our sins be red as crimson and though they be as numerous as the sands on the seashore, his love is still greater. Those Pharisees, ancient and modern, who do not realize the bane and terror of the consciousness of guilt, but rather dote on their own goodness point with a finger of mockery and contempt at the sinner. In this mockery the Christian rejoices, and glories in that God of Love who will remove his sins as far as the east is from the west.

Christ did not think himself too good to associate with the social outcasts, or to eat at their table, or to call them brethren. Such a friend, one who receiveth sinners, is a friend whom we can truly love.

Of literary studies Cicero said: "Such studies profit youth and rejoice old age; while they increase happiness in good fortune, they are in affliction a consolation and a refuge; they give joy at home and they do not hamper us abroad; they tarry with us at night time and they go forth with us to the countryside."

Prof. Johansen is Nebraska Product

(Editor's note. In our last issue it was stated that Professor Lyndrup is the youngest member of the teaching staff. This article proves that statement erroneous.)

Dana's agricultural teacher, Leland K. Johansen, can claim the honor of having defeated "America's Boy Friend," Robert Taylor of movie fame, in a national oratorical contest.

Leland K. Johansen was born on a farm in Greely county, near Wolbach, Nebraska, October 27, 1911. He grew up in that locality, attending the rural schools for eight years, and then entering the Scotia Consolidated School where he took up Smith-Hughes agricultural work. While engaged in this type of study he was able to win the $100 scholarship which is offered to the best Smith-Hughes student in each county by the Union Pacific Railroad. As a hobby, Johansen took active part in oratorical and debate work, winning the local and district oratorical contests in 1928.

In the fall of 1928 he entered Nebraska Central college at Central City, Nebraska. After spending two years there he graduated with a Second Grade High School Teacher's certificate. At Nebraska Central Johansen also engaged in oratorical work with much success, winning the district N. A. C. C. "Peace" contest in 1930.

In the Anti-saloon League oratorical and essay contest in 1930, Johansen again won the local and district championship, and placed second in the state contest. He later accompanied the other Nebraska district winners to Detroit to participate in the national contest. One of the members of the party in which Johansen travelled was Arlington Brugh, now the Robert Taylor of the silver screen. In the contest at Detroit Johansen placed higher than Brugh.

After leaving Nebraska Central, Johansen taught school for three years, serving as principal of the Fish Creek Consolidated High School at Scotia for one year, and then joining the Scotia High School staff for two years.

In 1933 Johansen started farming in the North Loup Valley near Scotia, but the drouth of 1934, and the resultant crop failure was so discouraging that he gave up farming and matriculated at the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture in the fall of 1934. Here he spent two years, and upon his graduation in the spring of 1936 with a B. Sc. Agr.

degree he came to Blair at once to take over his new duties as farm manager and agriculture instructor at Dana College.

Prof. Johansen was married to Florence E. Voorhees in 1933, and is the father of two children, a son, Keith Hadley, and a daughter, Donita Mae.

In speaking of Dana's new agriculture department Johansen said, "This is the only place in the state outside of the State College of Agriculture where vocational agriculture above high school grade is taught. Placing an agriculture department in a liberal arts college is an experiment in this state, and the success of the experiment depends upon the cooperation and support of the students enrolled while the department is being developed. When the agriculture department has won a recognized place in the college curricula, I am sure other schools will rapidly follow Dana's lead by introducing similar courses."

look, er—rather sophisticated?" "Say, Marj, which one would you choose?"

"There are mine now."

"Just think, I paid 50 cens to be shown how silly I look!"

"I won't let any of these get into the annual!"

"Now just what do these proofs prove?"

But good or bad, these pictures for the annual constitute a big reason why that book will increase in value as the years go by. This year's volume promises to be rich in pictures, always a popular feature.

Get-Together Is Successful Event

The first Get-Together sponsored by the Luther League on Saturday evening, February 26, was a marked success. Over 70 students turned out for the program.

In addition to singing, which was a big feature on the bill for the evening, the Dana "Symphony" Orchestra, under the direction of Professor Malmin, entertained with several selections. Byron Langenfeld spoke briefly on the topic "Dana Spirit," and Clarence Petersen conducted a short period of devotion.

The remainder of the evening was given over to informal music, stunts, conversation and games.

Falling Plaster

Bang! Blowout on the choir bus? Na, not a blowout—a blow-out. . . . Esther M. since losing her voice has found Fries a bit revengeful in the matter of talking. . . . And speaking of talking, "Red" hands out the "marimony" line at every table he sits at, but it's beginning to wear a little thin now. . . . And if any gal starts stalking "Napoleon," we could certainly make a swell crack about "After The Thin Man". . . .

Two Hearts In Double-Quick Time. . . . E-beth is taking botany and the Aster is her favorite flower. . . . And Edie's Big Moment—we mustn't forget him? Of course, everyone knows who he is! . . . Ferne L. has a magnetic attraction for the lens of Paul Tyson's camera. . . . "In the spring a young man's fancy—" Boys! where is your poetic spirit? Not even an invite to walk in the garden. And no new couples. Tsk! Tsk! . . .

Just a notion. . . how about this for a motto for Cook Merrill: "Fry, fry and fry again?" . . . Folks might think they were at Hastings if they visited Dana now, but all that groaning, yelling and mumbling is merely the declam contestants' practice. . . . James Dixon is reported pining for a certain dormitory damsal. Can we believe our ears? . . . Professor Hartwig has given off some really good jokes lately. It pays to stay awake. . . . Phil Petersen says that all the gold diggers aren't on Broadway. . . .

What a geographical faux pas! Some of the folks at the boys' big blowout thought that Chicago was the capital of Illinois! Quit using your influence, Clara! . . . Wildrick is the leading man in the new production "Safety in Numbers". . . . Hear ye! Hear ye! Dana now has a Date Bureau. If the girl refuses to accept a date, she pays—in money.

If the boy accepts, he pays, but not in money. . . .

With a farewell shout "Til we meet again"—like our friends, Jake and Ag—we leave thee.

size slightly larger than that of last year's book. The cover is to be of flexible suede in the school colors, red and white, with red predominating. It will contain approximately 60 pages. Part of the cost of the production will be defrayed by advertising from local concerns.

Students are advised to start saving their pennies as the cost of the annual will be $1.50. This cost, though somewhat higher than that of past years, should be more than justified in the quality which will characterize the annual. It is expected that the volume will be off the press about May 10.

ALUMNI NOTES

A recent letter from the Rev. Ervin F. Bondo of Oregon, Wisconsin included the following notes on alumni:

Mr. Corliss Rasmussen, Dana cager of '31-'32, is now married and attending the University of Wisconsin. He plans to enter the seminary.

Gerald Sorensen, also a student at Wisconsin, maintains an apartment in Madison with two sisters and a cousin. Gerald works under the Rev. Morris Wee at Bethel Lutheran Church as a Bible teacher for a high school group.

Another of our alumni, Mr. Milt Johnson, is also at the university. In his spare time he works for the Lutheran Student Association which has its headquarters at the Luther Memorial Cathedral. It is rumored that Milt is experiencing heart flutters.

Janesville, Wisconsin, is the home of a Danian of many years ago, Mr. J. K. Jensen, president of the Janesville Sand and Gravel Company. Mr. Jensen has two sons serving as ministers in the United Lutheran Church and a daughter who is married to a pastor of the Norwegian Lutheran Church. Mr. Jensen, beyond having a family actively engaged in church work, is considered one of the most active Lutheran laymen in the United States. He spends 42 days of the year entirely on church affairs of his synod.

We should like to print an entire page of alumni news in one of the closing issues of this year, but such a venture must depend entirely upon the responsiveness of the alumni themselves. Pastor Bondo has contributed many interesting items throughout the school year. If a dozen alumni would follow his lead, we might be able to carry out the plan.

Nygaard and Jacobsen Speak

Basing his message on the second petition of the Lord's Prayer, "Thy Kingdom come," Marvin Nygaard spoke before the Luther League on March 3, stressing the responsibility of the student to do everything possible to make this a better world. He pointed out the necessity of planning our work with regard to the coming of Christ.

Scripture was read by Esther Carlsen, and Earl Laursen and Jesse Smith offered a vocal duet.

At the meeting of March 10 Helen Margaret Jacobsen spoke on the subject, "Africa." She outlined some of the missionary developments which have taken place on that continent during the past 50 years, especially in the field of music, which is Miss Jacobsen's special interest.

The devotional part of the program was led by Ethan Svendsen, and the girls' sextette furnished special music.

A short business meeting was held to discuss the renewal of the annual Luther League Rally, usually held toward the end of the second semester. George Pallesen and Eric Christensen were named to work with the regular program committee in preparation for this event. The date has been tentatively set as May 9.

way to meet the qualifications necessary for the office. Pastor Wilhelmson's reputation as a scholar is known and respected throughout the synod.

Should Pastor Wilhelmson accept the nomination, his name will be proposed for election on the convention floor at Minneapolis in June. At that time there will be an opportunity for delegates to make further nominations.

Vikings Trample Quakers, 51-14 to End Cage Season

In a somewhat listless mixup, the Dana basketeers closed a highly commendable season by inundating the Central Quakers, 51-14, on March 2. Spring weather and uneven competition seemed to register its effect, dampening the spirit of enthusiasm of both crowd and combatants.

The half score, 21-11, tells of a first period in which Dana continuously held the advantage. The Quakers started the half with a very obstinate defense which eliminated scoring for the first several minutes. Patrick finally broke through to register two points. Then the scoring developed into the usual give and take proposition with Dana aggregating a 10-point half lead.

The second half was even more unbalanced. The Vikings outscored the Quakers 30 points to three, to make a final tally of 51-14. The second period play was more open, and the Quakers starting defense became more lax. Coach Olsen sent in most of his reserves who were also able to easily control the game. The last minutes were played by the regular quint.

Harold Qualsett, Dana senior and regular forward, made his final appearance on the court under Vikings colors. He played his usual aggressive game coupled with an exceptional guarding performance.

Lack of interest has delayed, if not altogether crimped, the volley ball tournament announced in the last issue. However there are possibilities of renewed interest by calling it an inter-class competition.

The resounding smack of sphere on mitt together with the robin's return remind us of the approach of spring.

Rumors of a tennis meet with Central sometime next month are in the wind.

The boys of the physical ed classes really feel that they have a few muscles that are in need of exercise. Coach Olsen has introduced a strenuous program of callisthenics and tumbling. The old Danish style, too.

Oh where, oh where could our girl's B.B. tournament have gone? Maybe the missing audience of cheering fans might be the reason for the death of that noble project.

Did you see those pep megaphones at the last B.B. game? Like peppermint sticks or barber poles turned inside out.

Basketball Highlights

Do you like facts and figures? Here are some interesting ones taken from Coach Olsen's records for the past basketball season.

Dana massed 280 points to the opponent's 278 points in the first halves of this season's games, and 329 to 267 points in the second halves.

The Vikings were ahead at the half in eight games. Of these eight they lost two but won six. They were on the short end of the half-score in nine games, but won four of these.

Dana scored in the first 30 seconds of play in games against York, Hebron, Western Union, Nebraska "B", Midland and Luther.

Paul Petersen made the first field goal, and Patrick, high scorer of the year, made the last two points of the season.

Patrick also made the first free throw and Vammen the last gift shot of the season.

The highest score made by each of the first quint in one game follows: Patrick, 1,9, against Central; Jensen, 14, against Midland; Qualsett, 14, against York; Fries, 10 against Midland; Bixler, five, against Omaha.

Total mileage of athletic trips this year: 1195 miles were traversed to and from football games and 1470 miles for basketball engagements, to make a total of approximately 2700 miles.

Swedes, Trotters To Battle Here

The World's Professional Traveling Championship will be at stake on March 17, at the Dana gym when Olsen's Terrible Swedes of Cassville, Missouri, will meet the New York Globe Trotters of Harlem, N.Y. The game promises to be a battle royal, and some superior basketball technique will be displayed.

Both teams are professional. The negroes, who played here in a comedy role at the beginning of the season, have won 130 out of 140 games this season. With them Dana basketball fans are acquainted. The Swedes are famed for their height; all of them are over six feet: Campbell 6 ft. 8 in., Martin 6 ft. 4 in., Neelq 6 ft. 2 in., Pettigrew 6 ft. 4 in., and Leeka 6 ft. 2 in., an average of 6ft. 4 in. for the quint. The Scandinavians have won 1,800 games during their 16 years of traveling.
