Library Enlarged By 2,000 Volumes During School Year

Dana College Library has had a fine year as far as the accumulation of book and non-book material is concerned. Some over 2,000 volumes have been added to the book collection, over 900 of which were gifts, chiefly in the fields of literature, religion, economics, history and construction. Some of the books are of an earlier issue than others, but all are of value for papers and historical background work in various fields.

Approximately 150 volumes of bound magazines have been added to the magazine department. Some magazines are bound yearly, others twice a year, some three times, and others four. Two magazines, LIFE and SATURDAY EVENING POST, are bound by the two months making six volumes per year. The binding of these two magazines is a special project for the coming two years although it has already been started. In addition, the library aides have bound many volumes of magazines whose use is limited. In checking magazines for binding, we find missing issues which means that we have to purchase copies, and sometimes they are unobtainable, which creates a serious problem.

The Audio-Visual department has also been expanded. We have added 35 filmstrips, 9 new maps, nearly 400 pamphlets and 35 music and literature records. In addition, all the slides dealing with past events at Dana College have been checked and put in order. The new audio-visual equipment consists of a filmstrip machine, a film projector, a recorder and a new screen.

Shakespeare Class Presents Annual Program Friday Night

The Shakespeare class will present in costume such famous Shakespearean characters as the lovers, Lorenzo and Jessica and the clever Portia from The Merchant of Venice, the witty lovers Beatrice and Benedict from Much Ado About Nothing, Macbeth and Lady Macbeth, as well as others, in portions of well-known plays at the annual Shakespearean Evening, Friday, May 12, at 8 p.m. in Pioneer Memorial Chapel. No admission charge.

The program will also include music from Shakespeare's plays, numbers by the choraliars, the "Shakespearean Quartet," and a vocal solo by Mary Jane Claussen.

Introductions to the various parts of the program will be given by Dr. Engelman, Shakespeare class instructor.

Choir Scheduled For Pickrell And Talmage Concerts

Pickrell and Talmage, Nebraska, will be hosts to the Dana A Capella Choir this Sunday, May 14, as the choir presents concerts of sacred music. The Talmage appearance will be at three o'clock in the afternoon while the Pickrell concert will be at eight in the evening.

Soloists chosen by Professor Paul Neve for the concert schedule are: Jean Gebhart, Dixie Hagedorn, Karen Jensen, Maynard Hedegaard, Elliott Nielsen, Duane Petersen, and David Rasmussen.

The concerts this weekend will be the last out-of-town appearances the 48-voice touring choir will make before leaving for Europe on the 29th of this month.

Prospective Students To Inspect College Campus

May 13th, besides being the date of the All-Conference Track Meet, will also see a number of prospective Danians on campus. The admissions office is sponsoring Visitation Day. Letters of special invitation have been sent out to all churches of the Central District urging them to send their junior and senior high school students to Dana for a day.

Three Chosen For Cheerleading

Cheerleading tryouts were held in the gymnasium Monday evening, May 8, at 6:30. At this time, three cheerleaders were chosen for next year. Carlene Benson, a junior from Craig, Nebraska, and Vivian Christensen, a freshman from Mystic, Connecticut, were re-elected. New to the squad is Jim Hanks from Omaha, Nebraska, who is a member of the freshman class.

Next fall tryouts will again be held to elect the remaining members of the cheerleading squad.

May 15 Is Date Of Senior Banquet At Fireside Restaurant

The senior class will hold its annual banquet in the Cameo Room of the Fireside Restaurant in Omaha on the fifteenth of May. Reservations for 116 people have been made for those attending the buffet dinner which commences at 6:30.

A small program has been scheduled to follow the dinner. Short speeches will be given by Dr. C. C. Madsen speaking on behalf of the college. Professor Tweton will speak as class-sponsor, and Dick Carr will represent his class with a few remarks. Mr. Tom Langenfeld, Vice-President of the Alumni Association, will welcome the graduating seniors to the Association. Entertainment for the evening has scheduled a trumpet solo by Bill Johnson and a vocal solo by Norma Parde.

This is the first year that the graduating class has had a full evening program. The undertaking is sponsored by the Alumni Association and is designed to welcome the outgoing seniors into the Association.

Visitors will be entertained by the Dana band and choir in the morning as well as given a tour of the campus. At noon the college will provide dinner for those who have sent reservations. Afternoon entertainment consists of the running of the all-conference meet.

Cal Jorgensen, admissions counselor, sees a two-fold purpose in the Visitation Day. It will give undecided seniors a chance to view the college first hand, and second, the many Luther Leagues who are interested in our school can enjoy a special day of visitation.

Campfire Planned For Tuesday Night

An old-fashioned campfire and songfest has been planned for next Tuesday evening at 9:30. This program will take the place of the regular L.S.A. meeting next week.

The program will begin with a campfire on the plateau half way up the hill to the cross. The songfest around the campfire will be led by Arden Dorn.

The campfire will be followed by a torchlight procession up the hill to the cross where several students and faculty members are scheduled to speak. Paul Petersen will lead in devotions and Rev. James Olsen will give the closing prayer.

The program is expected to last about forty-five minutes and special lates will be given for the girls.

Running In Second Place Shouldn't Be A Discouragement

After one, two comes first. Although it may seem apparent that the United States is running a close second to our Russian neighbors, we shouldn't be totally discouraged. Even the Bible, concerning material gains, states, "So the last will be first, and the first last." (Matthew 20:16).

Isn't it the common consensus of opinion that we, the American people, could be first? Once upon a time it was a fad to be best if not first. But it really gets tiresome always having to work a little harder than any competitor. Playing "king of the mountain" isn't rough—until the opponent gets tough.

But, remorse won't solve this problem. The gun has sounded, the race has begun. At our disposal we have the money, the know-how, the man-power, the potential, and by now, we should have sufficient incentive to retaliate using some of this red-blooded American spirit we've heard about from the forefathers. If I ever have the opportunity to travel in space, I would prefer that the rocket were stamped "made in U.S.A."

College Majors Should Check Their Opportunities To Teach

Recently a Nebraska Education Association survey of job opportunities in various fields was released in the faculty bulletin. This report compared the demand for teachers to the supply of instructors in that field. Of the majors offered at Dana, all except Business Administration were included in the survey, either specifically or categorically, and are worthy of notice—particularly by our future teachers.

Following are the results of the Nebraska poll:

Field	Demand	Supply	Percentage
Physical Education	22	169	670% excess
Art	9	22	144% "
Social Studies	98	160	63% "
Biology	30	40	17% "
Music	84	98	17% "
Foreign Languages	22	26	8% "
Mathematics	106	94	11% deficiency
English	148	117	21% "
General Science	57	41	28% "
Chemistry	16	11	31% "

To anyone who is accustomed to reading charts of this nature, the results are apparent; for example, the field in which a teacher is least likely to find a job is Physical Education, and the most promising teaching area is Chemistry.

Admittedly, the surplus in teachers in some of these fields may be absorbed by jobs in industry to a greater or lesser degree depending upon the field. Simply because a deficiency is shown in the latter group, however, does not necessarily mean that interest is lacking, for individuals with majors in these areas may have assumed positions in some profession other than teaching.

Nevertheless, a survey such as this should be regarded with interest and concern; conscientious appraisal by each student of his occupational future would be for his own benefit. In addition, the administration might remedy the excess supply situation by encouraging students to enter more promising, worthwhile fields through re-examination of course offerings, majors, and faculty strength in all areas.

Inside View Of 'Steam Hole' Reveals Hidden Help Talents

Have you ever wondered what goes on in the kitchen? Do you know who our cooks are? Let's take a peek into the kitchen and find out what kind of monkey business goes on in the "Steam Hole," as the kitchen is affectionately called by the kitchen crew.

As one first enters the kitchen, one can't miss Dolly Soderstrom standing over the counter with her favorite tool, a twelve-pound rolling pin, in her hand. She uses the pin mainly to keep the crew on the ball, rather than for rolling out pie crusts. Really, Dolly has a heart of gold, even with that rolling pin in her hand.

Of course you have all seen that bright flash of red, Lorraine Peterson, dashing madly about the kitchen on the morning shift. There isn't much to say about Lorraine, because she doesn't say much. However, when she does say something it is usually sweet and kind.

Then there is Edith Stricklett. What would we do without Edith? For example, the other day she was making a cake, and as she placed the batter in the pan she noticed she had some left over, so she poured it all in the last pan. Needless to say the kitchen was soon covered with a neat layer of cake batter. One can't really blame Edith though. After all they don't make cake pans as deep as they used to.

Crash! Bang! Another pile of pans hits the floor as Norma Johnson yells, "I'll be jing dangled if those boys aren't trying to give me a nervous breakdown." Norma is really loaded with talent. If you want to see her do a jig on top of the counter just bring a mouse in to her some day.

What really amazes Betty Luscent about her cooking is how out of all that smoke and all those burnt pans good food is ready to be served to the hungry mob at each meal. Betty is always singing and smiling whether she is cutting up chickens or serving food. We sometimes think she is playing cupid, because she is so happy.

After all the orders are shouted, the food prepared, and the kitchen cleaned, we realize that the cooks really do work. Just remember that the cooks fill our most important need—food. So next time you go through the line smile, and thank them for the food and the work they have done for us this year. Thank you!

The Observer

by Ken Jensen

This past week, the American Missile Men gained back a little self-respect by sending an American to the edge of outer space in a Mercury nosecone on a Redstone missile. Our press gave us the impression that we had accomplished a great feat. Undoubtedly this is true, but our achievement is less significant than that of complete human orbitation of the globe as produced by the mighty missile power of our Russian counterpart. The significance of these events is not in scientific importance, because each was important in its own right. The importance is solely political.

Perhaps there will be disagreement on this point. However, I challenge anyone to produce a sound argument for space exploration, other than on a political basis, as the basic necessity for the promotion of mankind. We must consider it the basic necessity of man since the money we pour into this project exceeds money spent on such fields as medicine, education, housing, and social welfare programs by almost incomparable amounts. As a result, we find ourselves pouring money into a political waste that can reap us little return practically except to keep alive the exploratory nature of man. Some science-fictionists might disagree, but try to move a population to another planet or rocket vital metals to earth. Anyone knows if scientifically possible, it would be economically impossible.

I sometimes wonder if we might not do more to gain prestige in the world if we could come up with cures for cancer and heart disease; or if we could educate the world to build a world of minimum poverty and suffering. I know this sounds idealistic, but with the sums of money we spend blowing up resources into outer-space, we could make such a dream a possibility. And in a world torn with hate of war, with the help of God it might become a probability.

Council Clips

by Bob Rademacher

Last Thursday evening the members of the 1960-61 student council officially stepped down and the new officers, headed by the new president, Nena Wegener, took the reins of the student government.

A hearty THANK YOU is in order for all of the outgoing members, and especially to Pete Petersen who has served as president this past semester. As Pete took over the presidency last January, a multitude of responsibilities and unfinished work fell on his shoulders. Pete was certainly no stranger to the tasks which lay before him as he had served as vice-president the first semester. A great deal has been accomplished this semester under his able leadership and guidance, as he faithfully carried out his duties as both leader of the Dana Student Body and also as an official representative of our College. We salute you, Pete, for your splendid leadership!

The Junior class presented a proposal recommending formal dances to be held at Homecoming and May Fest next year. The student body will vote on this in order to give the Board of Regents the opinion of the students concerning campus dancing. The Board of Regents must first approve the proposal and then the executive director of Higher Education of The ALC must also consent before it can legally be instituted on our campus.

Publication Editors Chosen Yesterday

Three juniors were chosen in yesterday's election for the editorships of next year's student publications.

Ken Jensen, a chemistry major from Atlantic, Iowa, will edit the forty-third volume of the Hermes. Ken devoted a lot of time to this year's edition as Associate News Editor.

The editor of the 1962 Danian will be Ellen Larsen. Ellen, who worked on this year's staff, is an English major from Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Another English major, Vance Larsen, from Creighton, Nebraska, will edit the Sower next year. He has worked with the present editor in preparing the current edition of this literary magazine which is soon to be released.

Library Sponsors Workshop Session

Dana College Library is sponsoring for the first time a workshop in book repair on Friday, May 12, in the library workroom.

The instruction will be given by Miss Mae L. Merriman who is a demonstrator for the Demco Library Co. of Madison, Wisconsin. She will hold two two-hour sessions so that each student planning to take the instruction may have individual help.

The library staff and students from several of the education classes are planning to take advantage of this opportunity.

With Sympathy

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Tiaht and family:

The Student Body wishes to express its deepest sympathy on your recent grievance. We know God will guide you safely through this time of sorrow and we pray for His blessing on all of you.

Nena Wegener
Student Body President

Last weekend the Dana Track Squad traveled to Rock Island, Illinois, where they took fourth place in total team standings of the 20th Augustana Viking Olympics. This was a very impressive showing for the Dana Vikings since they were up against some of the larger Lutheran Colleges in the country.
