

Congregate All and One-- Many Cellmates Guaranteed

October 10 is the date marking the beginning of the Involvement and Discussion Cell Groups of the L. S. A. There will be 12 each consisting of six to ten persons. Faculty participation is urged, not as advisors, but because of individual interest. These groups are planned so that students of common interest can become more intimate. There is a wide range of topics so that everyone can participate in a group in which he is interested.

The main function is to promote Christian concern in the secular world. Among the cell groups planned are: International Problems and Current Events, Creative Writing, Christian Ethics in Business, Prayer, Dating and Marriage, and Interfaith discussions. The L. S. A. hopes there will be enough interest so that these discussions can be rotated with L. S. A. on its regular meeting nights.

Author Eugene Burdick Explains Political Views

Discussion Cites 'The Ugly American'

In conjunction with the Dana College Liberal Arts Reading program, Eugene Burdick, well-known as the co-author of the book The Ugly American, will appear on campus to discuss and explain some aspects of his writing in political science. The immediate occasion for his visit is the reading of the above book by all full time Dana students for the course in humanities.

Burdick will spend all day Monday, October 9, on the Dana campus, giving a series of lectures and discussions. He will deliver a major address, which will be open to the public, on Monday evening at 7:00 p.m. in the Alumni Memorial Auditorium.

In addition to the writing he does, Burdick serves as an associate professor of political theory at the University of California at Berkeley. He took a degree in psychology from Stanford University, and after serving during the war attended Oxford University as a Rhodes scholar, obtaining from that institution a Ph.D. in political philosophy.

Burdick is married, has three children, and counts among his hobbies tennis, aqua-lung diving, chess, squash, and, until recently, sports-car racing.

Unique Writing Talent

Burdick's long list of literary credits includes short stories and articles published in everything from Argosy to The New Yorker. His first novel, The Ninth Way was a Book of the Month Club choice and has since been bought for a Hollywood film. He is also the author of American Voting Behavior and has written extensively in political journals.

Burdick's latest book The Blue of Capricorn, which deals with the South Pacific will be published within the month. He is not a stranger to this area, for he owns a small hut in Tahiti and has sailed from there to many of the islands and arche-peleogs of the region.

A movie based on The Ugly American, which he wrote with William J. Lederer, is scheduled to be released in the Spring of 1962.

Tryouts for "Nude with Violin" will be held October 11-12 to choose a cast of 14. The production will be presented November 18-19.

Six concerts are scheduled for the season. The first concert, October 16 and 17, will feature baritone soloist, Robert Merrill. The last concert, the highlight of the season, will feature Beethoven's Ninth Symphony.

Tickets may be purchased from Phil Kurz. Student tickets are $7.50 and adult tickets are $12.00. The deadline for purchase of tickets is October 17. The Fine Arts Club will arrange transportation for the Tuesday evening concerts.

Businessmen Finance Homecoming Displays

The 1961 Homecoming committee met with representatives from campus organizations to finalize plans for the Homecoming weekend and to stimulate the various campus organizations to begin planning their displays as soon as possible.

A large number of Blair businessmen have volunteered to help underwrite the cost of these displays in cooperation with the campus group.

If any organization or individual on campus is interested in constructing special displays or sites, and has not already made the necessary arrangements, contact Dave Snowbeck or the Public Relations Office for detailed information.

Letters to Editor

After reading the column, Ken's Komments, in the last issue of the Hermes I find that I about the Intramural Program must write to you and inform you this year.

I welcome criticism and comment about the Intramural Program from any student as Intramurals are for the students, but before a student does criticize the program I believe that that student should look into the thing which he is criticizing.

You mentioned something about double elimination in Intramural Football. I would like to inform you that there is no such thing. Games have to be played on Saturday mornings in order to allow us to complete our round robin schedule before it gets too cold. It is true that many fellows have jobs on Saturday mornings but all it takes to play the game is six fellows which I am sure can be found from a team of thirty.

In closing may I suggest one thing to you, before you criticize anything or anyone be sure you have the facts straight.

Relief for Beanied Freshmen As Weeks of Initiation Close

This year the weeks from September 8 to October 13 are covering what is known to all of us as Freshman Initiation. This initiation includes our red and white beanies, a set of "rules," and a weekly meeting of "Beanie Court."

On the night of September 20, the sophomores held their first session of "Beanie Court." It was a cold, wet, miserable evening and the freshmen huddled in a group for warmth and protection. A voice called out, "Is Freddie Frosh here?" Somewhere in the group poor old Freddie is shaking in his shoes and wishing that he had worn that beanie even if it did make his head look pointed. What was his fate? Egg? Water? Perfume? You name it and he probably got it.

"Beanie Court" is the time when the freshmen receive their "rewards" for not obeying the initiation rules concerning beanies, name tags, and "proper" respect for upperclassmen.

On September 27, the second session of "court" was held in front of the dining hall. This evening was not as rainy as the first one, but it was cold. This time the fun included "Reddi-Whip" and a few unexpected water pistols. Toward the end of the evening things got rather wild and a good many people, freshmen and upperclassmen, got drenched. One wonders if the fish pond is any cleaner after all that.

Through the last three weeks the freshman class has had fun and they have met a lot of upperclassmen. We have been told that the whole idea of initiation is to acquaint us with the upperclassmen. Collecting lists of names was a very good way to meet people and find out their names. However, do we have a Mickey Mantle or Roger Maris on campus this year? They signed some of the lists and then seemed to disappear.

Now the weeks of Initiation are drawing to a close. Many initiates have already given up wearing their beanies and the name tags seem to have gotten lost. Beware, freshmen, a devoted sophomore may still be watching you. You may be the next one to be brought before the "court," so keep your beanie handy, just in case.

Elimweka Mshiu Plans Medical Future

From Tanganyika, East Africa, three young men have come to study at Dana. "Ned" Kitomari, a sophomore majoring in economics, came to us last year, and John Lawuo and Elimweka Mshiu, both first year students, came this year.

Elimweka, who is from the area of Mt. Kilimanjaro in Northeast Tanganyika, is a pre-pharmacy student. In 1956, after finishing secondary school, he entered a Lutheran training school for medical assistants, from which he graduated three years later and there served as a clinician, diagnosing and treating many diseases. He also was a substitute teacher in pharmacy. The school, Bumbuli, a combined training center and hospital, is located in Tanga Province and is supported by the Federation of Lutheran Churches in Tanganyika. Through the Lutheran Church of Northern Tanganyika and the National Lutheran Council, "El" is sponsored at Dana.

Twenty-five year old "El" is one of seven children in the Mshiu family, a member of the Chagga tribe. His father owns one of the many coffee plantations in that area. Two of his sisters are married and of his two older brothers, one is a carpenter and the other a mason. A younger brother and sister are still at home.

When "El" completes two years at Dana he will transfer to a University and study pharmacy for three years. When he returns to Tanganyika he will either teach or become a pharmaceutical supplier for hospitals in the region. He is also interested in developing new drugs and medicines which will be beneficial to his people.

"El" has many good ideas, is very intelligent, and is a grand chap, in other words, an asset to our campus. We welcome him and hope he makes Dana his second home.

Ken's Komments

As I sit here wondering what to plague my readers with this week, one big thing flashes in front of my mind. What is happening to initiation this year? Things just don't seem quite like they used to be. Many freshmen have little respect for the past traditions of our college it seems. The one thing that I am referring to is the slackening off in the wearing of the beanie. I admire the sophomore class for some of the new ideas put forth such as "dress-up day," however, this sane thing is even rebelled against by a few "freshies." I do want to compliment those of the novice class who are keeping with the rules; you are the people upon whom this campus will probably be placing responsibilities in future years. It usually turns out this way. As for the rest of you . . .tsk. . .tsk. . .

Our boys in red and white pulled out of a close one last Saturday night. I was glad that our student representation was as heavy at the gate as it was. We meet Northwestern this Saturday afternoon, here. Come on students, let's cheer and help the boys to make it four in a row. The teams we face aren't getting any weaker, and our support may help our boys go on to a winning season.

I am sure that many of us will be present Monday evening to hear Eugene Burdick speak. This really will be a thrill when we stop to realize his fame from co-authoring The Ugly American, not to mention that all of us Liberal Arts Reading fiends are enjoying his work. He will be the first in this year's Lyceum series that brings famous personalities to campus.

Biology students have been having quite a problem getting up in the morning to watch television. I have been listening to both sides, although mostly con, and I think that both sides have their merits. However, I question the use of such an educational program on two basis: (1) the catalog's description of the course, and (2) the fear that other teachers might get the same notion. If this happened, it would seem to me that we would have little time to study because all of our time would be wrapped up in labs, lecture, and television. However, the General Biology students must keep in mind that their chemistry counterpart spends twice as much time in lab. So my solution for now is to get to bed early so one can be in shape for the "one-eyed monster."

Well, until then . . . farewell.

Pastor Bash Leads Students To 'A Closer Walk With God' Singing Scholar Sees States Being Misrepresented Abroad

Spiritual Emphasis Days was a complete success. However, its rich blessing came individually. As students gave of their time and energy, so too, they received. Few, if any of us, could or will well recall the messages delivered by Pastor Bash—at least in their completeness, yet lingering and taking root in our lives will be the memory of a man who has added greatly to our understandings of God and of each other.

A young student often sees the world as a confusing and unconfessing stopping off place, bordered by and sustained by an unexplainable stream of life. In the course of this past week through the lips of the speaker, we were again reminded of the presence of God and His purpose for us. Realizing that a man is only a man and not a "god" unto himself and others, and that God is God and nothing less, we are able to be ourselves. Christian young people can then claim the inheritance of Grace our Lord would have us share.

Besides offering his thoughts in chapel, Pastor Bash readily accepted and encouraged free periods of discussion wherever and whenever he could with individuals and small groups throughout the campus.

For those students who listened attentively and attended regularly, Spiritual Emphasis Days became everything it was meant to be or ever could be. For those of us who tarried, we really missed an opportunity for a closer "walk with God."

We Goofed!

In the last issue of the Hermes there was an error made in the story on the swimming pool project. Due to circumstances which we were unaware of, we had printed, "Among recent loans was one of $1,000 from a pastor of Atonement Lutheran Church, Chicago, Illinois." What it should have read was that we had received a $1,000 loan from a pastor and his wife and that we had obtained a loan of $3,000 from Atonement Lutheran Church. We are very sorry that this got by us. The Editor

As the choir traveled through Denmark, some of the group suddenly became aware of the fact that they were no longer in a position to look at the world from inside the United States of America, but rather from the outside. Here are just a few things that one choir member discovered on how outsiders view the U.S.A. and her policies.

The Danish people have been led to believe that a vast majority of the American people favor such measures as segregation. The Danish State Television had conducted a survey of the Southern States last summer and had shown this documentary film to the public before the choir had arrived in Denmark. The results of this film and American press coverage of minority mistreatment have given these people and people all over the world a misrepresentation of our ideals.

One of the more recent things that we have done that has damaged our respect, probably, was our resumption of nuclear tests. Before our resumption, the Danish people had felt that such tests were morally wrong because of the danger that would threaten the human race from increased amounts of radioactive fallout in the atmosphere. They could see our usage of it in World War II, but felt that we should have taken time to find out how dangerous it was.

The Danish people, surprisingly enough, were very anti-Kruschev, although they loved the Russian people, and were pro-American. We did not have to be told this. Mr. K. was nicknamed "the Criminal" in contrast to our Mr. K. The Kennedys were the idols of the Danish people. Magazines were filled with pictures of the "Kennedys at Home in the White House." And women's fashion magazines were filled with pictures of Mrs. Kennedy in her wardrobe. To them the President was the champion of the lower class of people all over the world.

Many other impressions of our country were related to the choir group. Maybe some of them differ from what is written here; but one thing is certain, we have a close friend lying in the North Atlantic that the "Ugly American" has not given to the Reds.

Old Indian Legend-- Story of the Great Light

Many years ago, a great Indian chief stood on a hill and looked out over the beautiful valley of the Missouri River. As his gaze swept over the vast panorama, he said to himself, "Some day a great light will shine from this hill."

As the chief stood on the high point, he saw a person moving slowly across the valley toward him. As the man approached, the Indian noticed that the stranger was a white man, probably a trapper. Many of these men had been traveling up and down the river on their crude rafts of logs and oil drums. Some of the rafts were top-heavy and had capsized. "Stupid white men," thought the Indian.

"Hello," said the man, "my name is Jacques LaBlanc. You certainly have a wonderful view from here. One can even see across the river to the land which will some day be called 'Iowa'." The Indian remained silent, for he could not understand the strange words of the white man. This was unfortunate because a great chance for an exchange of culture was lost.

La Blanc said, "Since I do not know your name, I will call you Chief Corn Husker." The trapper laughed loudly at his own words, and the Indian frowned. La Blanc had become a rude person outside his own country. Later he was known as "The Ugly Frenchman."

Chief Corn Husker had a son, Hawk Eye. La Blanc was surprised to learn that he could speak excellent French.

"How did you learn to speak the language so well?" asked La Blanc.

Hawk Eye replied, "My father forced me to watch educational television almost every morning at 7:30. What a stupid idea."

"Yes, but you learned the language."

"That is true, but who wants to learn anything? It isn't worth it, getting up early just to learn something. Besides, I would rather watch something worthwhile, such as 'The Untouchables' or 'Huckleberry Hound' or 'Custer's Last Stand.'"

Hawk Eye told La Blanc of Chief Corn Husker's prophecy about the light from the hill. La Blanc said, "Yes, there will be a light. There will be a village on this hill, but in this place the people will live in darkness. They will know little of the world around them and they will not care. They will be apathetic and listless, taking little interest in their government and their group projects. They will read comic books and listen to rock-and-roll instead."

"What is this rock-and-roll?" asked Hawk Eye.

La Blanc answered, "It will sound something like the moaning and wailing of your people when they mourn death, only much worse."

"Also, in this village there will be no dancing."

"Not even the rain dance?"

"No. It will rain too much the way it is, especially on weekends. The villagers will have other ceremonial rites though. Some will wear red lids on their heads; the rest will throw water on this group, force them to sing loudly, and throw them in a pool of slimy water. It all seems strange to us now, but it will be very important and meaningful to them in their civilized world."

"But everything will not be as bad as you say, will it?"

"No. Many of the villagers will be interested in things around them. They will have good chiefs and wise elders who will teach them much. So after a time, the villagers will go down from the hill and out into the world. This will be the Light from the Hill."

Thoughts . . .

While many of us have been content with following the progress of skin-covering string spheres, the communist bloc has been enjoying the "go softy" policy of our present administration. For over a decade the United States has refused recognition of the government of Red China. We have carried this position into the U.N. where plentiful support from friends of freedom and neutrals has blocked the efforts of persistent members of the communist bloc to force the issue to an all out acceptance.

Why not admit Red China to the U.N.? There are innumerable reasons, but one central and all decisive qualification leaves the Red Chinese out in the cold. The U.N. charter demands that prospective governments desiring admission be peace loving. In other words, character is vital to obtain membership. The firmly entrenched commie regime's doctrine of "believe or bleed" has left an indelible stain on the pages of contemporary history. Their aggressive actions in Korea and Taiwan did not leave the "dove of peace" winging over the graves of 33,000 Americans or over the wounds of 103,000 others. A conservative evaluation of the situation might be summarized by saying that Red China is about as qualified for a seat in the U.N. as Al Capone was for the office of President of the United States.

Our soft-spoken intellect to the U.N. (himself a two-time loser—sorry Young Democrats) has this to say to the world: "It is clear that no general control of disarmament has any value unless it includes China, and it is difficult to see how China can accept international control when it is not, formally, a member of international society. Moreover, as a member of the United Nations, Communist China would be more accountable to world opinion than as an outcast."

How defeatist an attitude can one take? Instead of demanding that Red China change her ways to qualify for membership before getting into the U. N., he would have the U. N. change to admit her. But Red China does not have to be in the U. N. to discuss armament and join in agreements. We have dealt with her numerous times—over the Korean and Indochina armistices, reciprocal renunciation of force

The Philosophy of a Christian —The Gift—

"What have you, that you did not receive?" I Cor. 4:7

We of course have nothing which we have not received as a gift, without any merit on our part. We have done nothing, of ourselves, to show our appreciation of these gifts. We have, rather, for our part rejected or misused all of these gifts from God, including the gift of salvation in Jesus Christ. But man has not always been in such a relationship to God.

There was a short period in the history of man when he sought to do the will of God. Many question the account of the fall, but their alternatives are no surer, and they deny the one basic theological lesson of the fall. That is, mankind has chosen, of itself, to escape the will of God. While the biblical account includes a power of evil greater than man, who must be dealt with, it does not lay the blame for man's condition on any other being or force than man.

The Bible tells us that man, before the fall, was in the image of God. This image was not a physical image, but a spiritual image. That is, man was like God, a spirit without sin. Man of course, also had a body, but not as an image of God. With the fall, man lost this attribute of sinlessness, and his communion with God, but not his spiritual being. Since the fall, man has sought to reverse the process, and to create a god, or gods, in the image of man.

Further, man is now incurvatus in se, that is, turned into himself, seeking to do his will rather than God's. It is this condition which has come to be called Original Sin. When we accept the message of Christ, we become new creatures.

Freed by acceptance of the Gospel of Christ we are able to further the kingdom of God without any dragging concern about either form or reward for our humble services to God.

R. Rassmussen

and the release of our citizens. In addition, get this "being accountable to world opinion" nonsense! Our Chief Ambassador ought to ask a few thousand of those mangled young Hungarians about Soviet "accountability."

The jolly British "backstabbers" can sing a song of trade advantages to the tune of admit Red China, but our position must remain either Red China or the United States in the U. N., but not both.

YOU... and the wonderful world of books

As a college student, you are aware of expanding horizons as you move with increasing familiarity in the world of books. In doing so, you will find agreement with the sages, one of whom said:

*"Words—blessed letters
Small drops of ink
Falling like dew upon thought
Forces men to think."*

Francis Bacon proclaimed that "reading maketh a full man," and Joseph Addison insisted that "Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body." Your world, too, can take on added dimension as you make good books an integral part of your college experience.

Augsburg Publishing House, publishers of good reading materials, recommends several new titles for today's college:

YOUR NEIGHBOR'S FAITH, William A. Poovey, $1.75—History, teachings of America's religious denominations.

CHRISTIAN FAITH AND THE LIBERAL ARTS, H. H. Ditmanson, H. V. Hong, W. A. Quanbeck, $4.95—Current liberal arts programs in relation to the church.

WHAT YOUTH ARE THINKING, W. Gordon Smedsrud, 50c—Insights from Lutheran Youth Research.

THE WORLD AND MEN AROUND LUTHER, Walter G. Tillmanns, $5.95—A study of the forces and personalities of the Reformation.

THE ANSWER OF FAITH, Kai Jensen, $2.50—The power of the Christian faith to put meaning into life.

THE WAY IT WAS IN BIBLE TIMES, Merrill T. Gilbertson, $1.50—Explanation of Bible objects and customs.

Vikings Eke Out 2-0 Victory

The Dana Vikings, in a game with the Yankton Greyhounds, came away with a 2-0 victory last Saturday. This game gave Dana a three game winning streak and a tie for first place in the Tri-State Conference. Not only have they bettered last year's record, but for the first time since 1957 Dana has won three games in a row.

It was a hard fought game all the way down to the wire, with both teams showing exceptionally fine defense. The Greyhounds were never able to penetrate the Dana ten yard line.

The only score in the game came late in the fourth quarter when Mel Mueller blocked a punt. It was picked up by a Yankton man, who tried to carry it out of his end zone, but was swarmed by the Red and White defense. The Greyhounds then kicked off, and the ball was brought down within a few feet of their goal when time ran out. Exceptionally fine kicking by Al Reinking helped Dana out of the tough spots.

Faculty Members Attend Conference

Friday and Saturday, October 6 and 7, of this week, a Lutheran College Faculty Conference will be held at Luther College in Decorah, Iowa. Five members of the Dana faculty are planning to attend.

This year's conference has as its theme, "The Lutheran College and the Wall of Separation." Discussion will center around problems relating to federal aid to private higher education.

All Lutheran colleges and not just members of The ALC may participate in this conference, as it is an association in which representatives of all synodical colleges gather and discuss mutual problems.

Heightening interest in this conference is the fact that it is being held in conjunction with Luther College's centennial anniversary celebration.

College Library Stocks New Reference Books, Atlas and Encyclopedias

Dana College Library serves a very important part of the instructional program of the College. It has a rapidly growing reference section which has had several fine additions this fall. A set of Collier's Encyclopedia and a fifteen-volume set of McGraw-Hill Encyclopedia of Science and Technology have enlarged the collection.

The Worldmark Encyclopedia Of The Nations is a unique, revolutionary idea with an entirely new, easy-to-use format and a well organized grouping of facts, figures and data on all nations available. Even the most recent world changes are given, including complete information on the many new countries established during 1960.

Another valuable addition is the Life Pictorial Atlas Of The World. This is a new and entirely different kind of atlas, for it is not only a permanent collection of reference maps, but also an excellent guide toward understanding man's world in the space age.

The ALC Colleges Indicate Enrollment Of 13,560 Students

Preliminary enrollment figures compiled in the Minneapolis office of The American Lutheran Church show 13,560 students have enrolled in the colleges and schools of the merged body. This represents a gain of approximately 825 over the total 1960 enrollment figures.

Dr. Sidney Rand, executive director of the Board of College Education of the ALC, reported that some schools are still in the final stages of registration processes and would not have official figures made available until mid-October. Rand, commenting on the enrollment increase, stated, "Even in the face of critical housing problems, the colleges apparently were able to accommodate a few more students. The discomfiting fact," he emphasized, "is that 1961 is only the first trickle of the post-World War II baby boom. Our colleges will really begin to feel the pressure in the next five to eight years."

This critical housing problem is being met with hopes for expanded building plans. This year California Lutheran College opened its doors for the first time in Thousand Oaks. The initial enrollment was 300 students which accounted for a large segment of the upward surge in enrollment at the ALC schools.

Social Director Initiates Costumed Hawaiian Luau

Something new is coming soon. Dana's first "fun night" is taking on a Hawaiian atmosphere. Next Friday, the 13th, the student body is invited to take part in a Hawaiian Luau, which will be held in the gymnasium. To make it extra "authentic," appropriate dress is not only permitted, but encouraged.

Red Raiders To Invade Viking Field Saturday

The Red Raiders of Northwestern will invade Viking Field this Saturday afternoon at 2:00 p.m. Dana defeated the Orange City, Iowa, crew last year on the Raider field 19-0. So far this year the Northwestern crew has not enjoyed much success on the gridiron. This is the second year that Northwestern has been a 4-year college; previous to this they were a Junior College. The tight-T seems to be the main weapon of the Raiders. They also can be counted on for a fair amount of quick passes and off-tackle plays. Undoubtedly they have seen the Vikings in action this year so they should be making several adjustments to accommodate the varied multiple offense of Dana. The backfield of Northwestern is a speedy one and should provide Dana with a stiff defensive challenge. These backs can be counted on to receive passes also.

If the Vikings keep up their present pace in the Conference they will remain undefeated. A number of adjustments in both offense and defense should provide the Red and White with season victory number 4.

Statistics for last year's game

	D	N
Yards rushing	222	56
Yards passing	112	0
Yards lost rushing	47	45
Yards lost passing	14	13
Yards lost penalties	60	25
Net yards passing	98	-13
Total net yards	275	-2

'B' Team Captures 21-6 Gridiron Win

Monday afternoon the Dana varsity reserves managed to place a 21-6 defeat against Nebraska Wesleyan of Lincoln. The Red and White scored on touchdowns by Maynard Kellerman who swept left end to pay dirt. Halfback Jim Oliver scooted 40 yards around Wesleyan's left end and toward the end zone. An aerial from Mickey Jensen to end Ken Anderson was good for the final Dana score. All three Kellerman kicks found their mark.

The "B" squad sparked both on offense and defense. It was a team effort and showed that Dana teams will be very much in the competitive brackets in the future.

Meet Your Team Doane's Harriers Drop Dana Squad

Larry Dolleck is a junior from Blair. This is his first year as a member of the Dana football team, since he was ineligible last year due to his transfer. Larry has been specializing mainly in defense this year as corner linebacker and halfback. He has also been running on offense in the backfield. Larry has shown in previous games this year that he will be a great help to the overall depth of the team.

Byron Jensen. Byron is a junior end from Audubon, Iowa. "By" is a defensive specialist along with being an offensive end. He has great skill at analyzing plays and is rated as a good pass receiver. Byron captained last week's Yankton game and helped the Vikings tuck another victory under their belts.

Dave Kruse is a sophomore center from Omaha, Nebraska. Starting the season late because of a shoulder injury, Dave has been available for just two games this season. As a freshman last year he showed that he will be a help in years to come. Dave also likes contact and should see some action on defense before the season is out.

John Laughhunn is a sophomore from Missouri Valley, Iowa. John has been starting on the Viking defensive unit also playing as a halfback. His being hampered by a slight injury received in a previous game has not seemed to bother the quality of football that John plays. He has the desire and ability and is one of the better defensive men in the conference.

Darryl Rholl is another Sophomore starting for the Red and White. At left end he provides the pass catching material needed for a successful offensive effort. Darryl has been on the receiving end of two touchdowns passed this year to aid the Vikings' offensive unit. Darryl is also a qualified backfield man and is used on punt returns and defense. Darryl hails from Lexington, Nebraska.
