Student Actors To Present Goldsmith's Comedy This Fall

Oliver Goldsmith's She Stoops to Conquer, an attempt to bring laughing comedy back to the English stage, is the fall dramatic production of this year. It gives the actors a chance to romp in a farce containing both wit and situation comedy. This play will be presented by student actors of Dana on November 17 and 18.

Tryouts will be held on October 8 and 9 from 7:00 to 9:00 in Alumni Memorial. One may come either or both nights. Upperclassmen who have scripts should bring them along. Persons interested in backstage work and those who have or can operate a recorder should come to the tryouts.

Homecoming Schedule

(Although Homecoming is still three weeks away, plans are already being made and preparations are underway. We thought perhaps our readers would appreciate knowing the Homecoming Schedule in advance so they might make their plans accordingly. Editor.)

Dana Professors Attend Convention Hears Dr. Madsen

Seven Dana College faculty members are planning to attend the Lutheran Faculty Convention at Concordia College, Moorhead, Minnesota, on Friday and Saturday of this week.

Representatives from Dana will be professors Emmerich, Eichhorst, Tweton, Weckmuller, E. Peterson, Dr. Lehmer and Dean Christiansen.

The general theme of the two-day convention is "Creativity and Research in the Christian Liberal Arts College." Keynote speaker is Dr. J. Edward Dirks, editor of The Christian Scholar, from Yale Divinity School.

Dr. C. C. Madsen was one of the featured speakers at the first triennial convention of the American Lutheran Church Women in Greeley, Colorado, on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

Speaking on the convention theme "Jesus Christ, the Light of the World," Dr. Madsen spoke on the sub-topic "In the Nation."

Other featured speakers at the convention were Dr. Erwin G. Fritschel, president of the Central District; Dr. Dorothy Haas, executive director of the ALCW, and Mrs. George Pallesen of Blair.

Outstanding Frosh Talent Revealed Friday Night

Shhhhhh! It's a secret! But it won't be one any longer October 5, at 7 p.m. in Alumni Memorial Auditorium, and the price is only fifty cents. Chairman of this outstanding performance is "Mutt" Schaetzle and his assistant, Karen Flesvig.

Since December, 1960, this magnificent performance has been playing on Broadway, and now, it comes to Dana College. Touring with this group are the famous Danish Dancers. Four brilliant people do these "heart warming" traditional dances. Also coming from Denmark to our beautiful campus is the great Shakespearan actor Christopher Blummer. We are deeply honored to have this "outstanding" orator grace our humble auditorium.

Coming from New York, we have a stunning young lady, quite "experienced" in her "field." Because she is what she is, she has caused quite a stir in that great city. Of course no good performance would be quite complete without some representation from our beloved 50th State—Hawaii. And she really knows how to put the "umph" into it.

Tragedies are not forgotten in this magnificent show of cast. Present that evening will be the "Sob" Brothers to give one of their "wail of woe" productions. (Extremely tear-ing).

All over campus those who have some knowledge of this amazing breath-taking performance, say, with gaping mouths, "It can't be done!" But it has been done, and it will be the most spectacular show ever seen on this campus. (It was censored at twenty other colleges.) It will be a commemoration, a triumphal salute to this year's social program.

'European Studies' Programs To Open

Application period for spring semester study programs conducted at the universities of Vienna and Freiburg by the Institute of European Studies will open officially on Monday, October 8.

Each program includes formal classes, lectures, seminars and field study in Europe, and is designed to fulfill usual course requirements at its academic level.

The program at the University of Vienna will admit those with sophomore or junior standing as of February 2, 1963. It will combine English-taught liberal arts and general studies courses, intensive German language instruction, regular university courses taught in German for those competent in that language, and supplementary lectures and seminars. Previous knowledge of German is not required.

"Das Deutsche Semester" program at the University of Freiburg is intended only for juniors. It will stress political science, German language study, German philosophy and literature and European history. All classes will be taught in German.

Each program requires a C-plus college average. The Institute said admission will depend on the student's academic achievement and the recommendations of his dean and department chairman and of a professor familiar with his recent college work.

The application period will close next December 10. A descriptive brochure on the two programs is available from the Institute of European Studies, 35 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago.

Editorial Mealtime Music Causes Confusion

Those of us who were here last year have noticed that something new has been added in the dining hall—music with our meals. However, there are some who wonder just how much of an attraction this is.

Possibly none of us minds the music as much as the confusion and chaos it creates. Oftentimes it must be turned up to a very loud level before anyone can hear it. Then, in turn, people must talk louder in order to make themselves heard across the table. When this is done the music can no longer be heard anyway, and the sound from both these sources adds to the normal amount of noise and confusion.

Among the reasons for having the music in the first place would be to add to the enjoyment of eating by providing a cultural and aesthetic setting for it. But is this accomplished by music blaring out of a loudspeaker at one end of the room?

Perhaps a solution to this problem would be to impose a rule of silence on all who enter the dining hall so that soft music may be played and heard. This would be nearer to what those who planned it had in mind. However, mealtime is often the only time one can find to talk with many of one's friends and meet and get acquainted with others. Much of the pleasure of mealtime would be lost if conversation were prohibited. This aspect of mealtime is undoubtedly just as important as the music.

It would seem that if this dilemma cannot be solved and nothing can be done to improve the music situation as it is at present it would be better to dispense with it entirely.

To the Editor

Coarse Language Offensive

Dear Editor,
 Concerning last Saturday's dinner—while standing in line, waiting to be served, I overheard some extremely coarse language. These "intelligent tid-bits" originated from the dishwashing area. It's bad enough when we hear the mutterings of anger; however, it is even worse when one finds it necessary to apologize to a couple of visitors standing directly behind you in line. I can well imagine the image this incident must have left upon them. I dedicate this letter to the guilty culprit. Good show, Fella!

Old Main Withstands Winds To Serve Dana Many Years

Dana's famous landmark on our campus, Old Main, had its beginnings in 1885. The building stands on a site donated by Henry B. Baxter and J. C. W. Kline of Blair. The town itself pledged $3,000 toward a $6,000 building if the synod would pay the balance.

At that time the hillside acreage had no trees on it—these had been kept down by prairie fires. A painting dated 1872 painted by Mr. Kline shows Indians camped on the site.

The job of clearing and leveling the ground where the building was to stand was done with hand scrapers and the surplus dirt was carted off in wheelbarrows. The bricks were hauled to the site from the Blair brickyards in lumber wagons. Since there were no roads, they just cut across country.

On December 4, 1885, a heavy wind threatened the newly raised walls. An eyewitness reported: "There we were—looking on the swaying walls. But the wind subsided, and here on the hill the walls are still standing proudly erect, God be praised!"

The dedication of the Trinity Seminary headquarters was held on October 21, 1886.

The building not only provided classrooms but also housing for students and the one faculty member, A. M. Andersen. On the first floor were rooms for the Andersen family and a dining room and kitchen for student use. The second story provided office and classrooms while the upper stories served as dormitories.

With the growth of the seminary it was decided that additional facilities were needed. In 1893, the north wing was added.

By present day standards, living in the dorm areas of Old Main were next to primitive. There were no electric lights, no plumbing, no central heating. Daily chores included filling lamps, carrying kindling and coal, and toting water from a pump behind Old Main.

In 1905, the third and final wing was added. The cost of the south wing was about $12,000. The total cost of Old Main was approximately $25,000—$7,000 for the central section, $6,000 for the north wing, and $12,000 for the south wing.

In early days, light was furnished by the school, which meant a barrel of kerosene was maintained for filling lamps. Why Old Main never burned to the ground is a mystery for the kerosene barrel was placed beneath a wooden stairway west of the building and the ground around it was soaked with spilled kerosene. Add to this the fact that a boy who had forgotten to fill his lamp before dark would proceed to the kerosene barrel and then would usually light a match to see what he was doing, and even the strongest doubter must believe that Providence itself was protecting the welfare of the school, since Old Main is still standing.

Old Main was almost lost in 1957 when on Easter morning a smoldering fire was discovered by the president. He had come to the campus at 5:30 a.m. to prepare for a sunrise service. The flames were extinguished with only minor damage done, compared to what might have happened.

Old Main was given only the most pressing maintenance care because some believed that it must be replaced. A Dana president once told a convention, "The only reason it hasn't fallen is that it can't make up its mind which way to fall."

In midst of plans for a "new Dana," plans were made to retain the old. In 1956, a complete renovation of Old Main, a portion at a time, began. Renovation work began in 1956 on the student canteen area and spread throughout the building during the next few summers. Among the changes made was that on the front entrance; the stairway was removed and replaced in time by the beautiful patio which commands a view of the lower campus.

By the end of the summer in 1959, the renovation was 75% completed. Thus Old Main, the tower of which has been the symbol of Dana for over seventy years, gives promise of service for many years.

"Thank You" To Letter Writers

On behalf of Dana Students, Inc., I would like to take this opportunity to thank all those students who took part in the letter writing campaign last Thursday evening. The group wasn't a large one, but it was full of enthusiasm; and thus I say thanks to each one of you—your help was really appreciated.

A special "thank you" goes to Professor Welsch for joining us and providing entertainment; this, too, was certainly appreciated.

To those of you that couldn't find time to be with us, let me say that I feel you missed something special. Just think—how many times have you used your pool? How many loans have you secured for it?

Parking Space Stolen

We just keep getting further away. The new signs in the west parking lot give evidence of this fact. What did the student drivers get to say about this loss of parking space? This loss is not a matter of concern now, but wait until it snows and see how it is going to be to wade through slush and deep snow to get to one's car. The old area will hold about fifteen cars. I feel this is plenty of room for faculty and staff use. Our driving privileges are the same, why not park on an equal basis?

People Are Funny; Science, Fine Arts Take A Look

Have you ever noticed how some students use our sidewalks? (That's what those strips of cement are, people!) Of course there is always the shy guy, who first looks all around to see if anyone is watching and then takes off across the green. There is also the person who walks just barely on the side of the sidewalk. When you're behind him, you don't know which way he'll tip when he goes. Then the athletic jay-walker, he puts his chest out, dares anyone to stop him, and then nonchalantly walks across. The "let's go for a walk" type always seems to develop a certain phobia for cement.

Our cherished canteen is another place where people can be noticed. The shy one sticks his head in the door, as if looking for someone, and then quickly retreats if there are too many there. Then there's the bold one who comes in like a bomb and then stops dead center to see if any of his pals are around. The counter-leaner is a good one too. He walks in, goes straight to the counter to buy something and then slowly turns around to observe the room. Once we get them in and seated, another ceremony starts. As other students enter, the self-conscious one just barely raises his eyes to see who it is. There are always the few who just about break their necks in order to see. Then there is the type who tries to be oblivious to all that goes on around him. It is as if he is daring himself to look up. Actually he's afraid she'll walk in.

In this coming week, as you walk around campus and in the canteen, remember these people that you just read about.

Pep Club Notes

Judi Jensen was recently elected head cheerleader. "Bobbi" Lykke was elected to be freshman representative to the Pep Club Cabinet.

"Ideas are funny little things — They won't work unless you do."

Science, Fine Arts Officers Elected

Elected as officers of the Science club were Bill Thompson, president and Linda Ocker, secretary-treasurer. Faculty adviser is Dr. C. Arthur Christiansen.

The second meeting is to be a supper meeting held on October 11 at Dr. Sievers' river cabin. The Science Club reminds all members to put this date on their calendars.

Election of officers was the order of business for the Fine Arts club last week. They elected Paul Christiansen as president, Ann Brehm as vice-president and Judy Johnson as secretary-treasurer.

Club members should remember the deadline for obtaining season concert tickets is Friday, October 5 (tomorrow).

Big-Little Sister Breakfast Sunday

All women students will gather in the lounge of Mickelsen Hall on Sunday morning for the Big-Little Sister Breakfast from 9:00-9:45.

This affair is being sponsored by the Association of Women Students. A program is also to be presented following the breakfast.

For the fellas: the canteen will be open at its regular hours on Sunday morning, 9:30-10:30, so that they won't have to go hungry while the girls enjoy breakfast.

Robinson Crusoe always rested on Saturday because his work was done by "Friday."

Foundation Gathers For Initial Meeting

Another first on the Dana campus took place on Saturday, September 29, as the first meeting of the Dana Foundation was held.

The Dana Foundation is made up of representatives from all facets of Dana life. There are representatives from the student body, faculty, church, Blair, Omaha and many others.

According to Student Body President Herb Knudsen, the purpose of the Foundation is to "coordinate the development program with the needs of the college."

The Foundation meets bi-annually; the next meeting will be March 22. The Rev. James Olsen is chairman and Herb Knudsen is student committee representative.

Herb Knudsen asks that the student body help the Foundation by expressing ideas to the executive committee of the student body and also by talking up Dana to their friends since enrollment is the best source of development funds.

Council Clips

By Tom Lange

Last week Student Council combined business with pleasure when they held a supper meeting in the cafeteria.

Our meeting opened with devotions followed by the secretary's minutes of the last meeting and the treasurer's report.

Chuck Jorgensen gave a report of the success of this year's Freshmen Initiation and suggested that the new Freshmen Initiation Committee begin planning this spring for next year's initiation. A motion was made, seconded and carried to send both the freshmen and sophomore classes letters of commendation for their work and cooperation in this year's initiation.

The major item of business was to approve the budgets submitted by the various committees for first semester. Budgets for general operations of the Council, for Social activities, Intramurals, and campus Religious activities were all approved totaling $975.

One of the important appropriations was for the continuance of Sunday afternoon social-cultural hours, a program initiated last year which proved to be entertaining and educational.

President Herb Knudsen mentioned that he would enter an essay contest for the student body presidents of the ALC colleges. The essay is to relate to the Board of College Education what is "the typical college student." Herb was eager for suggestions from the council and told them the general outline of ideas he intended to use.

Herb also reported on the Student Body President's Conference which he attended this summer at Ohio State University. He said from what he could gather "we have it pretty good at Dana."

'Big Red' To Tangle With Yankton 'Hounds'

Following the victory over Sioux Falls, the Dana College Vikings will host Yankton in their second home game Saturday, October 6. The Vikings will be shooting for win number four this season, compared to no losses.

Last year's game between the two teams was entirely a defensive battle, with Dana emerging a 2-0 victor. This year Yankton is somewhat improved, depending mainly on their fullback to carry the load. Dana, however, will be favored.

Meet The Vikings

Charles Jorgensen—A guard from Pine River, Wisconsin, is Chuck Jorgensen. Last year, as a freshman, Chuck saw a lot of rugged action and gained some very valuable experience. Chuck shines on defense and is counted upon heavily as a mainstay to bolster the interior of the line.

Maynard Kellerman—From Stuttgart, Kansas, at halfback comes a real giant in anybody's book, Maynard Kellerman. As a freshman last year, Maynard became known as an "after touchdown specialist." Maynard has also taken over kicking field goals for the Vikings and is doing a fine job. This year Maynard is a big gun in the backfield and poses as a triple threat man, which is a real asset for the Red and White.

Lowell Larsen—At end from Northfield, Minnesota, is Lowell Larsen. This lanky sophomore lettered last year and has also been doing a very commendable job thus far this season. Those here last year will also remember Lowell as one of Dana's foremost matmen.

John Laughhunn—Hailing from Kansas City, Missouri, John is rated as the most valuable returning defensive halfback. With three years of experience under his belt, he poses as a real threat on offense as well. This Viking gridder is looking forward to a real classic year as a mainstay in the defensive backfield.

Vikings Skim Over Sioux Falls' Water

Last Saturday, in anticipation of defeat, the clouds began to shed tears over Sioux Falls, South Dakota, and thoroughly drenched the Sioux Falls Braves' Homecoming game. The Braves' domination in the first quarter gave the impression that the muddy field was to their advantage, but as the half drew to a close, Roger Beck guided the Viking crew through the waters and completed a 22-yard pass to Lowell Larson. The Vikings second offensive blow came in the fourth quarter as Roger Beck "rolled out" around left end and swam 10 yards into the end zone.

The Vikings' outstanding defensive work kept the enemy from scoring. Several times the Braves came within scalping distance, but "heads-up" play by the Viking defense kept the battle from becoming a hair-raising affair. Tom Frank's outstanding defensive play was a key factor.

Roger Beck and Bryce Olson were again outstanding offensively. Beck completed three for three passing and Olson skimmed the waters for 112 yards rushing. Olson's inspired running set up the two touchdowns and Beck's passing and running handed out the 13-0 defeat.

Locker Room Chatter

We'd like to introduce into Locker Room Chatter this week a new idea featuring an athlete singled out for his outstanding participation and ability while playing on intercollegiate sport here at Dana. Athletes chosen may have been outstanding in a previous game, or they may be those who have in some way specifically contributed to the overall success of the team.

Singled out this week for laurels is rugged 215 pound tackle Stan Erlandsen, hailing from Chicago, Illinois. Stan has lettered three consecutive years in football while wearing a Viking jersey and was honored in both sophomore and junior years by being selected as first team All-Conference Tackle. Erlandsen, now in his senior year, is already showing his potential to repeat in All-Conference ratings. His ability to play with equal ability both offensively and defensively have made him a staunch contribution to Dana's interior wall and a defensive obstacle to enemy backs.

As a consistently reliable offensive blocker, Stan provides important holes for Viking backs and he thrives on contact and loves to sound out the back by breaking through the line and smothering plays before they can reach scrimmage. When asked what he felt were Viking chances of capturing their first conference crown, Stan had the following comment, "We're trying to avoid letting up and riding on what we have done so far this year, if we can play each game one at a time as well as we can, I'm sure we can go all the way to the championship."
