Westmar Hosts TSSGA Conference

Cultural exchange is one of the chief goals of the Tri-State Student Government Association. The seven participating schools are Dana, Midland, Concordia, Northwestern, Sioux Falls, Yankton, and Westmar. All of these colleges are in the three-state locality of South Dakota, Nebraska, and Iowa. Tri-State Student Government Association has been in operation for about two years. The founder of this inter-college conference was Herb Knudsen, the student body president of Dana two years ago.

Each college sends their student body president and a coordinator, approved by the Student Council, to the four meetings each year. Each meeting concentrates on improving inter-college communications and solving certain problems each college has.

This year the first meeting was held at Westmar in Le Mars, Iowa on October sixth. Dave Copperud, Dana's student body president, and Sue Hengeveld, Dana's coordinator, represented Dana. Their chief job was talking over activities such as intramurals, political journalism. Dana had two students one each representing political organization and journalism. These students were Dave Israel and Earbara Riggs.

"This year's chief accomplishment will be the publication of a handbook containing a listing of the different activities of each college and listing the accomplishments of the professors of the various colleges," stated Sue Hengeveld, Vice-chairman of the Association.

Former Graduate Added to Faculty

Miss Carolyn Eckley is serving as a history instructor at Dana this year. Miss Eckley earned her B.A. from Dana in 1961 and her M.A. from the University of Wyoming in 1964. She is teaching a survey course in United States history. Miss Eckley is also in charge of the Modern Civilization discussion and quiz groups. Hermes apologizes for not including Miss Eckley in a previous article which listed Dana's new faculty members.

Robert Hale Guest Soloist; Entertains Visiting Alumni

"His is a baritone timbre of magnificent richness, and he surrounds it with a suitable stillness of bearing—with power and flexibility Mr. Hale can open up without sacrificing color — it's singing all the way." Louis Chapin, The Christian Science Monitor, Boston. Robert Hale, bass-baritone, will sing at Dana College, Friday, October 16, 1964. The coronation of Dana's 1964 Homecoming Queen will precede Mr. Hale's concert. The program will begin at 8:00 p.m.

In February of 1964, Hale was chosen by Maestro George Schick, conductor of the Metropolitan Opera auditions. Hale is now studying in Boston with Ludwig Bergmann. In February his outstanding rendition of the role of Olin Blitch in the Boston University production of "Susannah," brought Rise Stevens of the Metropolitan Opera to Boston to view this young talent in action. Other leading roles have included Escamillo in "Carmen," Alfio in "Cavalleria," Dr. Dulcamara in "L'Elisir d'Amore," Figaro in "The Marriage of Figaro," and Don Alfonso in "Cosi fan tutte." His roles as Emile de Becque in "South Pacific" and Billy Bigelow in "Carousel" were extraordinarily successful.

Dave Represents Dana At Augsburg

Augsburg College, Minneapolis, Minnesota, was the host of the ALC Student Conference held October 2-4. Attending the conference from Dana was David Copperud, Student Body President.

Friday evening the conference opened with an informal coffee hour in which the delegates met, got acquainted, and had a briefing of Saturday's agenda.

One of the highlights of the conference was a discussion of the college publication Dimentions-12. (Dimentions-12 is a paper put out by the twelve ALC colleges containing selected articles from each of their own papers.) Barbara Riggs will be Dana's contributing editor to Dimentions-12.

Dana Receives Word of NCATE Accreditation

Late this past summer Dana received official word that it was an NCATE accredited college. NCATE, which stands for the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education, is the only such agency which nationally accredits colleges for teaching. Its purposes is to assure the quality of the teacher-education program established in the college.

At the present time there are approximately 1200 colleges in the United States engaged in teacher preparation. Of these only a little over 400 are NCATE approved; yet 80% of the nation's teachers come from these NCATE colleges and universities.

Twenty-seven states now have an agreement among themselves whereby a graduate of an NCATE school can teach in the state without first having the few specific state required courses normally needed to teach in that state.

Dana has been working for NCATE approval for five years. In these five years it has evaluated its screening program for prospective teachers to prove to the NCATE committee that those students entering the teaching block were equal to if not better than the average student on campus. A teacher-education committee was formed, student teaching was extended from five to eight weeks, and the library budget was increased.

After three years, Dana will again be reviewed by the NCATE committee for renewal of approval. Before this time, however, more money will be needed for the library and, as the college continues to grow, additional members will be placed on the education staff.

Schools of Dana's size usually find it very difficult to obtain NCATE approval. Therefore the administration and faculty were most pleased upon receiving the approval of the agency.

To The Students: Student Body President Speaks Out On Dana's Student Government

During last April's campaign, I stated that I would try to be aware of the problems which pertain to the Student Body and to take action concerning these problems.

This past weekend I attended a Student Bodies President Conference for all of the ALC schools and became aware of a large problem. It is: Dana College student government is relatively insignificant.

A partial reason for this insignificance is in the past and now the Student Body officers are limited in experience and thus unable to be as sensitive to problems as the ideal would call for. I feel as though this last weekend was definitely a rewarding experience for me and I now feel that I am a bit more qualified to act in the Student Body's behalf. I hope to be able to pass some of what I learned on to Student Council Representatives.

Another reason for the insignificance of Student Government, I believe, is that the Student Body as a whole is not knowledgeable as to what powers and duties Student Council holds. I would suggest that each student who is even mildly concerned about his rights, obligations, and "liberal arts education" pick up his or her handbook Viking Log and read the Dana College Student Body Constitution. This is a start. The next step would be to become active in voicing his or her opinions and ideas to the respective Student Council representative or directly to Council (Thursday night 7:00 P.M., in P.M. 212.)

Student Government is now at a low point. This can be changed only if we have interested and active Student Body.

—David Copperud

Editor's Column

It may not seem possible, but here we are already into the second month of school. Time is a funny creature — we have been here for so long, and yet we just got here. Perhaps this is as good as any other moment to inject into your thinking a publication which appeared in the Oct. issue of Decision. It was written by a student at Arizona State University.

I'm tired, tired, of puppets instead of people,
 Of crewcuts and tweed coats, of pipes and Picasso buttons
 Of people who drop soliloquies carefully labeled intelligence.
 I'm tired of cynics who call themselves realists,
 Of people bored because they're afraid to care,
 I'm tired of people who have to be entertained,
 Of girls proud of knowing the score and snickering about it.
 I'm tired of sophisticated slobs,
 Tried of people with nothing better to do than glue their days together with alcohol.

I'm tired of people embarrassed at honesty, at love, at knowledge.
 Tired, yes . . . very tired.
 Tired . . . yes. Tired of studies . . . tired of purpose . . . tired of challenges . . . ?

For those of you who didn't attend the Neihardt lecture, you missed one of the high points of the year, thus far. Dr. Neihardt presented his material in a warm, human way, but it wasn't the poetry in itself which particularly impressed me. Yes, it was good in itself — but better yet were the ideals behind it. It was an evening which challenged the individual to let something better than himself enter his world. And you know . . . that's suppose to be quite a challenge.

ATTENTION!

How would you like to bid 6 No trump? Bridge players — perk up! If there is sufficient interest, perhaps a Bridge tournament can be arranged. Those interested should talk to each other or perhaps write their opinion into Hermes.

Viking Voices

"College education" and "sophistication" and "responsibility" are goals we have all been urged to attain this year at Dana. Certainly we as students need to be moved in the direction of these goals. However, I have a request to make of those who feel they must be Dana's "gad fly." Please use tact!

I am sure that we who are in need of improvement will accept anyone's help. I do not believe the task of improvement should be accompanied with poor grammar and with the use of low class words, phrases, and jokes. Tact, the proper use of our language, and high standards are not hindrances to the goals we should all strive to attain.

Finally, I am convinced that the spiritual and scholastic level of Dana is far above what some would have us believe.

Across the Footlights

Plans are presently underway for the Department of Speech and Drama's fall production of the 1964-65 school year. The choice is Oscar Wilde's uproariously funny play, THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING ERNEST. Written in 1894, it has been described by scholars in both literary and theatrical circles as being the funniest comedy ever written in the English language.

The Dana production promises to be not only entertaining but also educational in that it will follow the theatrical trends of the 1890's. Footlights have not been used since that era, but Dana is going to reinitiate them. A "buck and wing" set will also be used. According to Mr. Whitaker, this type of set has not been used on the American stage, to his knowledge, since the 1870's.

The play centers around the old situation comedy tradition of mistaken identity. It is more or less a satire on "proper" English society and the supposedly all important idea of one's having to be born within proper circles before he can be "accepted." Algernon and Jack find themselves in a rather ticklish position when they are both mistaken for Ernest, a man who doesn't even exist, by two "proper" young ladies in search of "proper" husbands. To complicate the situation, both Algy and Jack are just as interested in finding young, attractive and wealthy brides and so entertain their newly found identities.

The play has a cast of 9: 5 men and 4 women. Readings for casting were held on Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week and the final cast will be announced on Monday. Anyone interested in working on the production should contact Mr. Whitaker.

Dana's Pranksters Present Problems

Imagine the shock of two former Dana students opening the door to their room and finding it completely stuffed with newspaper! That vicious stunt was performed during a past choir tour when the two room occupants were gone.

Out of the past, the ghosts of Dana Pranksters' Past are still laughing about their successes. Occasionally, these old reprobates, now distinguished citizens, look at the Dana Pranksters' Present and find them shockingly amiss.

At one time a pig was let loose in the Girls' dorm, amid many squeals of delight, no doubt. The old voices chuckle when they recall how P.M. (bragged of as being burglar proof) was successfully vandalized. All of the chairs were removed from all rooms to the furnace. This tends to upset professors of early morning classes.

Ah, and then there was the time federal officials were almost called in to investigate the mysterious opening of all the mailboxes!

Those lucky individuals who rolled down the hill on a bed are probably still laughing. And wouldn't it be a surprise to find that certain officials had to laugh in spite of themselves?

However, now when Dana Pranksters Present attempt to generate some healthy laughter, the laughs are short-lived. Two years ago, the circle was filled with cars. It was very funny until all the car owners were fined. Perhaps it's a time for tears.

JAYTALK

Have you ever noticed how many teachers are dissatisfied with their textbooks? I have, and for a long time it bothered me. One of the English teachers would go so far as to say that introductory statements and footnotes must always be "taken with a grain of salt," because it was merely one author's opinion. This seemed so ridiculous, that for a time I considered carrying a shaker of salt to class. I felt that this would be a symbol of my feelings. But now I wonder if that is such a bad rule. Maybe we all need to become more aware of influence and propaganda, and learn to identify it.

Beyond the High Hills

The Scent of Water is "a novel of love—love in its many aspects and love in its final, finest essence"—so runs the blurb in the front cover of the book. Scanning the book, I find it rather badly written in places . . . "She smiled at him sweetly" (and yards of such drivel) smacks of literary syrup. Nevertheless, Miss Elizabeth Goudge has written many successful books and "has kept her name on the top of best-seller lists on two continents." Reading time—2 hours too long.

. . . "the primitivism of the Beats serves . . . as a cover for an anti-intellectualism so bitter that it makes the ordinary American's hatred of eggheads seem positively benign." Anti-intellectualism in American Life by Richard Hofstadter uses the idea of anti-intellectualism as a device for looking at several of the less attractive aspects of American life . . . the Beat movement included. His concern is not merely to portray the scorners of intellect in American life, but to say something about what the intellectual is, and can be, as a force in a democratic society. This book is the winner of the Ralph Waldo Emerson Award of Phi Beta Kappa, the Sidney Hillman Prize and the winner of the 1964 Pulitzer Prize in Non-Fiction. Reading time—4 hours plus.

Theatre in the Twentieth Century by editor Robert W. Corrigan, is a superb anthology and guide to the modern theatre. The major topics covered are: The Playwright; Vision and Method; The Artist; Acting and Directing; The Critic: Analysis and Appraisal (Also included in an interesting article by Sigmund Freud on the presentation of psychopathic characters on stage. Reading Time—4 hours.

The superb achievements of Goethe as a poet have blinded many of us to the importance of his other activities. He was a scientist of historic stature, his rich mind ranging many fields. Of great interest are chapters in this book which deals with Goethe's theory on color and his concept of comparative anatomy. Reading time—4 hours plus.

Dana realized a twenty-five percent increase in her enrollment for the first semester of the 1964-65 school year. Thirty-one states are represented and six foreign nations. Also, twenty different churches are represented on the Dana campus this semester. One of the more interesting facts is the ratio between males and females at Dana. For every girl there is 1.456 boys. The total figure stands at 398 men and 272 women.

Warriors Ground Vikings; Dana Injuries Felt Heavily

Midland grabbed a two-touchdown lead in the first quarter last Saturday night and went on to blank the Dana Vikings, 28-0. The loss put Dana's record at 1-2, and gave Midland its first win in three games.

The key to the game for Midland was the running of fullback Bruce Green and halfback-converted-from-end Art Oliver. The Warrior's outpassed by Dana's Ron Anderson, gained 407 yards on the ground.

Midland took the opening kickoff 69 yards in nine plays to score as Oliver ran through the middle of the line from 10 yards out. After Dana punted on the next series, Midland moved to the five, where Ken Dunkel took the ball to the three. He was hit and fumbled the ball, and Maury Praumer recovered in the end zone for the touchdown. Ken Wallace kicked for the extra point.

Green scored the third touchdown with 3½ minutes left in the first half on a two-yard plunge; Wallace kicked the PAT.

In the third quarter Dana drove to the Midland one, but on fourth down the Vikings tried sweeping right end and were stopped. The two teams then exchanged control of the ball until late in the game when Jack Murray of the Warriors intercepted an Anderson pass intended for Marlow Remmers on the Dana 15. Murray started to the left, reversed his field and went into the right end for the score. Wallace ended scoring and made it 28-0 with his fourth extra point of the game.

Damaging the ranks of the Viking backfield were injuries to halfbacks Tim Brown and Knight Wynn, and fullback Les Pedersen. Brown suffered a jammed hip, Wynn a head injury, and Pedersen pulled a leg muscle. With Greg Mitchell out for the season, the backfield has lost a lot of depth. But the improved passing of Ron Anderson may offset this a little. Ron completed 8 out of 20 attempts for 116 yards, 10 more than Midland's total through the air.

The next game for Dana will be at Sioux Falls next Saturday afternoon. The game will start at 2:00. The next home game will be the Homecoming game with Yankton on October 17.

Sport Talk With Ceejay

The rushing of Bruce Green and Art Oliver provided the extra edge for Midland in the 28-0 win over our football team. The Warriors gained 407 yards on the ground.

The cross-country team did not run at the Doane Church College Meet last Saturday. They arrived a few minutes after the meet had started.

Congratulations to whomever credit is due for the great TV in the Holling Hall lounge. The picture is beautiful so far. Sounds like there was a welcoming party on a neighboring campus one night last week. Somebody attempted to raise a ruckus over there. Better luck next time, fellas!!

The injuries to backs Greg Mitchell, Les Pedersen, Knight Wynn and Tim Brown depleted the corps of running backs. The coaches may have to dig into the inexperienced ranks for necessary depth.

The Raiders are at it again in intramural football. They scored six touchdowns in stomping the Elks II, 36-12.

Besides the fact that Dana lost to Midland, it seems that a purse was stolen from a girl during the fourth quarter. Rumors say it was quite obvious who took it.

The next cross-country meet will be Thursday afternoon with Nebraska Wesleyan. It will be run at the Blair golf course.

The World Series should be interesting this fall. St. Louis won its first pennant in 18 years and New York won its fifth straight. My prediction (actually an ill hope): the Cardinals leaping all over the Yankees four in a row.

Blair continued its surprising campaign with a 49-0 rout over Missouri Valley last Friday night. Missouri Valley had won 19 straight and was rated number three in Southwest Iowa.

There sure are some odd-ball names among the ten teams playing intramural football this season.

The football game at Sioux Falls on Saturday begins at 2:00 p.m. Let's have a big rooting section for the players.

Mrs. Smith is working gallantly on the prospects of a pool table.

And remember the Homecoming football game with Yankton on October 17, Saturday afternoon at 2:00 p.m. on the Viking Field.
