Players Review . . .

Audience Becomes Involved In "Doll's House"

by Deb Schou

The Dana Players turned out a marvelous performance of Ibsen's highly psychological "A Doll's House." The action was brought closer to the audience by using the thrush stage. The audience became more involved.

No Difficulty

All of the action centered around Nora. Karen Madsen, who played Nora, filled this demanding role beautifully. Madsen had no difficulty in maintaining her character. When she was not speaking, her expressions still communicated her thoughts.

Nora's husband, Thorvald, was played by Steve Berke. Thorvald was not as convincing as Nora. But Berke did have some good moments and portrayed Thorvald as a disgusting person. The last scene was almost comical with Berke being too melodramatic.

Kathy Lizer gave a good performance as Nora's friend, Mrs. Linda. Yet she was often overshadowed by Madsen.

Don Baack and Tim Waggoner played their roles powerfully. Although the roles were small they made a great impact upon the action.

Very Convincing

Baack, as Nils Krogstad, was a very convincing villain who aroused hatred. His performance at the close of Act I was outstanding. The audience, as well as Nora, was silent with fright. Baack was clumsy as "a good guy."

Waggoner gave his best performance at Dana in the role of Doctor Rank. There was a tenderness and sensitivity to him. His last scene in Act III with Nora was outstanding. An empathy was built with the audience as he told Nora about his love and as he and Nora discussed next year's ball.

Madsen in the final scene was able to transcend her role as a woman to make it a play of people's liberation.

Novak Stresses

"Unawareness"

Michael Novak addressing his audience Wednesday night in DHA on the "Awareness of God" stressed by his own confession nearly the opposite of what the title stated. He felt it important to point out the "unawareness" that people have to the word God. The emptiness that occurs when confronted by the word.

Novak brought up the point in his lecture that one has to be aware of himself before he can find the awareness of God, and he very systematically went into the false concepts individuals have toward themselves and the "community" that surrounds them. Four areas he related to this were freedom, courage, community experience, and honesty.

Novak told his audience in DHA and those listening on KDCV, that we are nothing but false fronts when we examine ourselves, and that many of us are "paid" to live in falsehood. He emphasized that these four areas are involved in the human self. He stressed that by exercising these areas we feel a source larger than ourselves which has given us freedom, honesty, community, and courage. Novak concluded by saying that when we can do the "right action then we can make the right judgements" of ourselves.

Alpha Chi Induction

A Letter . . .

Message To The Graduates

TO THE 1975 COLLEGE GRADUATES:

President Eisenhower once said that education is not only the means for earning a living, but for enlarging life. His words are especially appropriate for those who complete college. Your generation's candor, sensitivity and desire for creative involvement are heartening signs that you will be doing more than just earning a living.

You are graduating in a particularly difficult year. You will be faced with many uncertainties. But the opportunities that await you are even greater than the challenges. It will indeed be within your grasp to enlarge and enrich life in our society. As you make the decisions that will shape your course and that of your country, I hope you will keep in mind that one person can make a difference.

Times have changed greatly since I went to college. But looking back on those days in the context of today's world, I know that the same optimism and hope I shared with my classmates is very much alive in you today. I want you to know how much I admire your enthusiasm and determination, and how convinced I am that you will make a difference for America.

I wish each of you the satisfaction that comes from doing your best at something you believe in.

Is It Too Late???

A college or university was originally conceived as a guild of students who shared an interest in learning. The student or apprentices paid the guild masters or professors to teach them. As the university increased in amount of students and courses an administration was paid to handle the affairs and expenses of the school.

In the early history of universities the administration was under the control of the faculty and students. They were to administer the policies established by the students and faculty. Today this reaction seems to have been reversed. The administration establishes policy which students and faculty are required to follow.

Too often the administration makes a decision without consulting either the students or the faculty. They seem to be unconcerned with the students' or the faculty's viewpoints. When they do voice their opinion the administration does not seem to listen.

Over the past few years there have been numerous examples of this condition. Last year the Spanish department was dropped with no indication to the students, Danish was scheduled as an alternate-year course without informing the students, and higher level German courses were assigned to a faculty member without her consultation.

Dana prides herself on her Danish heritage yet the courses dealing with it are being cut. Dana calls herself a liberal arts college yet cuts are made in the academic area. She seems to be falling short of these goals.

The administration seems to be responsible for these actions. The students and the faculty are no longer in control. Decisions are made by the administration and then announced. Can the monster be brought under control, or is it too late?

Morality Test? . . .

Dear Editor,

I read the two previous attacks of Mike Williams upon the institution which 500 and some students have chosen as their place of higher education with mixed emotions. But now after the third of his "Way of Life" commentaries, Mike seems to have become a broken record.

Mike equates the moral state of the students to the admitting practices of the admissions department. He states that the administration of Dana College is prostituting the school by selling it like a box of detergent. He seems to feel that the admissions gang isn't presenting an honest view of the college to prospective students. At no time before I applied was I told that when I graduated I would be a saint or a monk, instead I was sold on the Dana Difference, where the students are friendlier, the Faculty is more concerned and the curriculum more suited for today than at most other colleges and universities. And that is what I found.

I believe Dana is showing itself to the outside world as it is. It does not try to sell itself as another Oral Roberts University but as a place supporting "the conviction that the Christian way of life is essential to the complete development of human personality" (1974-75 Dana General Catalog, page 2) That sort of Christian Community can be found everywhere, from Parnassus to the Dragon's Tail. Although it manifests itself in the classrooms and the dorms more than at morning chapel, it is within each and every student at Dana.

If Mike questions whether Dana is a Christian College, he simply is not looking around. Maybe girls are seen leaving Rasmussen Hall at 7:30 in the morning or students are seen carrying brown paper sacks filled with drinking bottles into the dorms on Saturday night, but these activities don't make Dana any less of a Christian College. These activities, although contrary to the college regulations, do not in themselves represent a breaking of any specific Christian doctrine. "Pass no judgement, and you will not be judged" (Matthew 7:1) Mike needs to remember, also, that this campus is not only our educational center, but also our home for nine months of the year.

So Mike's articles seem to boil

Hermes Praise . . .

Dear Editor,

I wish to tell you and your associates how much I have enjoyed your excellent publication this year.

It has been both entertaining and informative, with regard to campus life.

To me you have made a connecting line between the student and his home life.

Thank you again, and I am sure you will continue the good work. Best wishes for continued success.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Margaret A. Menz

Good Friday Gripe . . .

Editor:

As we all know, Dana Campus was closed Thursday and Good Friday of Easter week because the area was expecting a blizzard. So through an act of nature, Dana was given off Good Friday, but does the student body know (or do they care) that Dana College had no plans whatsoever of closing classes on Good Friday, not even for the traditional three hours between 12:00 and 3:00?

Because this campus professes to be a Lutheran, "Christian" college, we were upset that this administration made no plans to close campus so that students might attend religious activities with local churches, on campus, or with their families. After all, the symbol of this campus is supposed to be a cross, not a big red balloon, and good Friday IS, if any day, the day of the cross.

We spoke to Dr. Mezoff and Dean Glass about this matter. Both stated that religious activities were scheduled for Friday, but those activities did not include closing any classes. We assume that they meant we could sneak in a few prayers between classes. We realize of course (as Dean Glass reminded us) that closing businesses or down to questioning of social morals, in which case, the admissions department and the administration can not be taken to task. They have no way of readjusting our moral values which are established long before we arrive on the Dana Campus. Maybe Mike is suggesting that in order to raise the moral standard of Dana College everyone, before being admitted, should be required to take a morality test.

Marathon Thanks . . .

Dear Doctor Mezoff,

We at WOW/Radio and the Muscular Dystrophy Association, Inc. would like to extend our sincerest thanks to you for allowing the WOW/Radio Muscular Dystrophy Dance Marathon to be held on your campus.

The $4,300.00 raised by your school will go to the never ending fight against muscular dystrophy.

We would also like to point with pride to Darlene Lile, who, without her leadership, and to Kappa Theta Phi, who, without their sponsorship, the Dance Marathon would never have been.

You can certainly take comfort in the knowledge that in the case of this outstanding youth and fine organization, the educational experience provided by Dana College has gone well beyond the classroom and we are truly grateful for it.

Sincerely,

"Four Winds" Are In High Gear

by Donna Reque

Last fall a plea went out across the campus for something "different" to start out the 1974 Homecoming Football game. Four of our industrious and talented young men filled that order. The men formed a nameless quartet and sang the National Anthem to an enthusiastic crowd.

The next plea heard on campus requested suggestions for a name for this group. After much careful deliberation the group decided on the "Four Winds."

Very Serious

After a few months of latency the quartet composed of Greg Witte, Blair; Paul Hundtoft, Blair; Jack Martin, Waupaca, Wisconsin; and Mark Heistand, Woodbine, Iowa, became very serious about their music. They chose barbershop for their style and their first real success was

"Goodbye My Coney Island," which is still one of their favorites along with others such as "Old MacDonald's Farm," and "My Wild Irish Rose."

Originally the group got together for fun, and is still having that same kind of fun only in a more professional manner. The Quartet sings for numerous civic organizations in Blair and in other parts of Nebraska. They have also sung numerous times on campus.

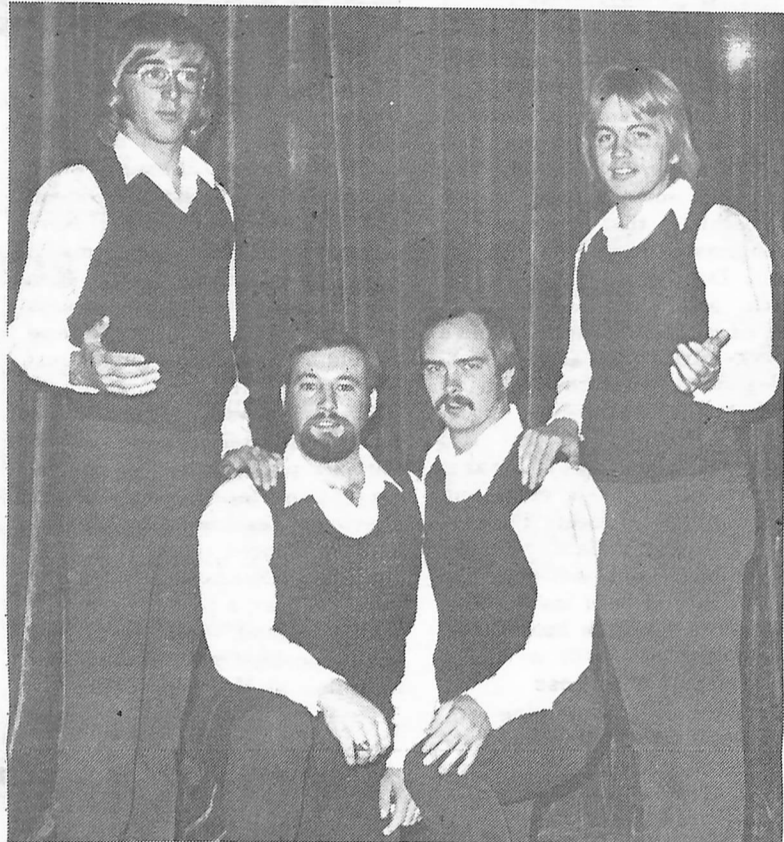

As it happens to so many talented groups, the bookings begin to pile up and many good things come out of this type of exposure. They are a great public relations service for Dana in the community and the state.

End Career

These four men really savor their music but regretfully this school year will end their short but rewarding career. However, there is opportunity for any number of Dana's other talented singers to follow in their footsteps. They expressed a sincere desire to help start out another group of this type.

It is amazing how in a few short months a group can make a name and an image for themselves. Why, whenever we see four men dressed in blue going in any number of directions we know without a second glance its "The Four Winds."

T.W. Quilpen... Time For Hello And Good-Bye

Now is the time in the school year that we realize that we're rapidly approaching those fleeting moments of good-byes and hellos. All our lives are filled with good-byes and hellos, but in one short month that aspect of our lives will be sharply increased. In a month we will be saying good-bye to many people that have had a profound effect on our lives. Some of these people we may never see again. All to whom we say good-bye will be different when we meet again. Also, there will be silent good-byes to things, places, and situations that will never be encountered again. If or when we come back these things, places, and situations, will be different because we will relate to them in different ways because of the changes in our lives and outlooks.

The time of hellos also approaches. There will be hellos to those that have been known for a long time, the renewing of old relationships. But perhaps the most critical thing is the new hellos. What effect will these new hellos have on our lives? Some will have little effect. Others will mean financial and psychological security for varying lengths of time and still other hellos may develop into life-long relationships.

So why talk about this, a whole month away from that radioactive burst on our emotional gieger counters? Now is the time to stop and take stock of where we are. Now that we still have time to be consciously aware of those to whom we'll soon be saying good-bye, let us take toll of what impact these people have had on our lives. Perhaps if for this next month we can deliberately be aware of what those around us mean to us then we will not forget so quickly. Let us also tally those things which we have gained and lost in the short snatch of life that we've spent here at Dana. For it is on the basis of these tallies and these relationships ending in these good-byes that we'll face the remainder of the hellos in our lives.

T.W. Quilpen

Honors Banquet

Slated For May 15

The annual Honors Banquet will be held on Thursday, May 15, at 7 p.m. in the cafeteria. Dr. Elmer Rasmussen, registrar, will be the main speaker. The event will honor those students who have earned endowed scholarships and other academic or special-ability awards this year. Among the honorees are those elected to Who's Who Among College and University Students, Alpha Chi, and Alpha Psi Omega.

Many students will be honored. Faculty members will assist in the presentations. Master of Ceremonies will be Dr. Robert Glass, dean of the college.

Refugee Assistance Asked

Lutheran congregations across the United States are being asked to assist with the resettlement of the expected influx of Indo-China refugees. Dr. David W. Preus, president of the American Lutheran Church, addressed a letter to the presidents of the ALC's 18 districts, asking their help in disseminating information to the church body's 4,825 congregations.

This follows an announcement that Lutheran Immigration and Refugee Services is one of seven voluntary agencies officially recognized by the U.S. government to participate in the resettlement program. It has accepted responsibility for assisting 250 of the 1,000 Cambodian refugees being brought to this country under the auspices of the seven agencies.

There is no smoking in the Campus Dining Hall during regular meal hours.

Recent action by the Student Senate and President's Council reiterated the continuation of this policy.

Budget Passed

A new budget was passed by the Senate during a short meeting on April 9. The new budget consists of an increase in HRC funds and a salary budgeted for the Hermes staff.

The Senate also approved a contract with the Administration for use of an office in Old Main. Also, one-half of the money taken in by the pin-ball machines was allocated to the cheerleaders for purchase of new uniforms up to the cost.

Good Attitude Remains . . .

Vike Diamondmen Have 8-14 Slate

by Michael S. Herbert

"Winning is the name of the game in all athletic events." Each team member must give 100% of his mind, body, and soul. In each contest, there is a winner and a loser. Usually a losing team will develop bad attitudes and not give that 100% that is needed. The Dana College baseball team, with an 8-14 win-loss record, has been struggling all year long. Surprisingly, their attitudes have been extremely energetic, playing with spirit and enthusiasm.

Drop Five Games

During the past two weeks, the Vikings have won just one, while dropping five. They lost doubleheaders to Creighton University, and Nebraska Wesleyan, but split with the Nebraska Cornhuskers of Lincoln.

The Bluejays of Creighton, one of the top teams in the Mid-West, defeated the Vikes 2-0, 5-1. Fine pitching and clutch hitting were the factors in the contest. Pitchers Barry Olson and Walt Schacht took the losses. Terry Price had 3 hits, but it wasn't enough.

Next Dana played the University of Nebraska, who were leading the Big-8 Conference. Dana lost the opener in the last inning 4-3, with Brent Kroenke getting the loss. The Vikings came battling back to hold the Cornhuskers to just one run, and win the game, 3-1. Walt Schacht pitched well. Mike Urdahl and Robert Mountain supplied the hits for the split.

Plainsmen Win Two

Last Saturday, the team played the number one team in the N.I.A.C. Conference, Nebraska Wesleyan. Dana held their own, until some costly errors turned the games completely around. The Plainsmen won both games, 4-2, 4-1.

Overall, the team has been playing very good defense. The pitching has been adequate, but the bats are not producing the runs. The team has a mere ten games remaining. They need to win at least eight games to qualify for District 11 playoffs.

Court Forces Improving

by Dennis P. Weller

Most of Dana's sports teams face challenges that sometimes make a fight for respectability a difficult one, like having practice and playing facilities that fall short of many high schools' and scheduling some colleges which have athletes that are about as much amateur as Russian Olympians. Despite these handicaps, which are almost necessarily part of a small college, Dana's teams often do find inter-collegiate respectability, and its men's tennis team is no exception. Despite having just two courts on campus, which makes practicing less than easy and scheduling home meets impractical, this year's team, coached by Mr. Jack Hohensee, has won one match and been involved in three close matches among the other four.

Open With Loss

The Vikings, who play six singles and three doubles matches against each opponent, opened their season with a 6-3 loss to Concordia and then evened their record with an 8-1 win over Faith College of Ankeny, Iowa. Then followed a 5-4 loss at Wayne, an 8-1 setback to Midland, a 6-3 defeat at the hands of Nebraska Wesleyan which Mr. Hohensee stated was "closer than the score indicated," and participation in the District 11 championships this past Monday.

Regular members of the team include Tim Johnsen, John Tjomsland, Gary Erbes, Gideon Daniel, Dave Johnsen, Leif Neve whom Coach Hohensee terms "a very good player", and Kim Cooper whom Hohensee says "has improved quite a bit and should be a strong player the rest of this year and next season."

Mr. Hohensee, who volunteered his services as coach without pay because of an interest in tennis and some previous teaching experience, also announced a match against the U. of Nebraska at Omaha next Tuesday, a possible rematch with Midland, and the NIAC championships next Friday and Saturday at Hastings College.

Women's Tennis Needs More Support

by Dennis P. Weller

Dana's women's tennis team traveled to Sioux City on Wednesday to play its first match of the season against Morningside College, but returned with still no definite win or loss for the year. Pouring rain stopped the match before the last two doubles matches were completed, with Dana trailing 4-3, but leading in the unfinished matches and with a good chance to win 5-4. In singles competition, No. 1 player Naomi Westby lost 8-0, No. 2 Jane Nielsen lost 8-5, Jean Ness won 8-5, Cheryl Knip was defeated 8-4, and Rita Hiemke and Kathy Sietsema were both victorious by 8-2. In the one completed doubles match, Westby and Nielsen lost 8-2, but Knip and Becky Haack were ahead 6-3 and Sietsema and Hiemke were winning 6-5 when the downpour began. The team hopes to complete this match when it returns to Sioux City sometime next week to play Briar Cliff. Doane is also scheduled.

Student-Initiated

Jean Ness thought that "the girls played well for their first time out, considering the team's effort was entirely student-initiated." 'Entirely student-initiated' means that this year's women's tennis team has not received financial backing from the athletic department for travel, meal, and equipment expenses, and has had to schedule matches on its own.

Team organizer Ness hopes that this situation changes next year, as does men's tennis coach Jack Hohensee who has stated, "I believe strongly that the support given other athletic teams should be available to the tennis teams at Dana" if such high interest in tennis continues here. This reporter believes the same.
