Harvest for Hungry sponsored by RHA

REBECCA SMITH

REPORTER

The Residence Hall Association (RHA) kicks off its "Harvest for the Hungry" campaign today.

The campaign is a competition between the residence halls to see who can collect the largest amount of nonperishable food goods to be donated to the poor. Prizes will be given to the winning hall.

This is the first year that the RHA has sponsored a food drive and they hope to get a large amount of student participation by making it into a hall competition.

Since Rasmussen Hall has a smaller number of students, they will be paired up with Omaha Village.

If there is enough student enthusiasm for this program there is a possibility of it becoming an annual event on campus.

Donations can be turned in to your resident assistant, Greg Earhart, Jennifer Dunlop, or the switchboard in the Campus Center.

The donations will be kept in the Student Senate office until given to the Blair's food pantry at the end of November.

SAB plans events every week for Dana students

REPORTER

Student Activities Board (SAB) is planning your future.

SAB is scheduling events for students to attend. SAB advisor Kevin Schaudt said, "We're here to plan for the college. We try to have one event a week."

SAB is showing the play Jackie Robinson Monday. SAB is also planning bowling at Tiger Bowl in Tekamah, giving away approximately 30 tickets for an Omaha Racers game with free transportation to the game and hosting a comedian on campus in December.

According to Ann Neumeister, night life director for SAB, planning is the key.

"We're setting up more for January and spring." Plans include Winterfest, a Super Bowl party and a card tournament," Neumeister said.

Neumeister says new ideas are always welcome. "Tell us about ideas you have or things you see at other colleges that you like. We meet on Thursday nights at 7 p.m. in the Dragon's Head."

Michelle Rorebeck says SAB is a learning experience as well as fun. "You learn about different places and different people. You meet people from all over the U.S."

Players, coach earn honors

Dana volleyball coach Patti Stevenson has been named NAIA District 11 Coach-of-the-Year in balloting by head coaches at the nine district schools.

Stevenson led Dana to a 29-12 regular season record in her first season as the Viking head coach. Dana earned a second-place finish in the Nebraska-Iowa Athletic Conference with an 8-4 league record.

Stevenson's career record as a volleyball head coach (college and high school combined) is 51-17.

The Vikings tallied their first-ever NAIA post-season victory Monday night over Concordia. They were defeated by Peru State Tuesday at Peru.

Four Dana players received post-season honors. Stacy Haas and Katie Krueger were named to the All-District first team. Shelli Wiebelhaus and Melanie Hild were named honorable mention All-District.

In NIAC all-conference balloting, Haas, Krueger and Wiebelhaus were first-team picks and Hild earned honorable mention.

Learning Center is for everyone

AUDRA KOBBS

REPORTER

The Learning Center is much more than a place to study. "Students' perception of the Learning Center is starting to change," said Lori Nielsen, coordinator.

The Learning Center provides instruction and services to help students develop the skills necessary for reaching their academic goals.

Tutors are available to help students in most academic areas. The tutors' primary goals are to help students become more confident and successful independent learners.

Jennifer Kiesel, tutor, said, "I enjoy the one-on-one contact with students. It is the most enjoyable to be working with a student when it finally clicks."

Tutoring is not the only available resource in the Learning Center. Study groups have been formed in several courses. Computers and WordPerfect are available, and the library is handy when references are needed.

This year an athletes' study group was formed. The new location is large enough to facilitate these groups comfortably.

Dan Barton, senior, physical education major said, "Students shouldn't think they will be classified as a stupid student for using the Learning Center. Students are stupid not to come in and get the extra help." He wishes he had come earlier in his college career.

Barton added, "It is not wrong to go to the tutor or you'll get into a hole you can't get out of, because, it is important to get into the right study habits."

The Learning Center is located in Library 200. It is open from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. daily.

Students are encouraged to come in and bring any papers or homework they need assistance with.

Violence on television: A hidden perspective

BINAY MANANDHAR
GUEST EDITORIALIST

While a hurricane of violence engulfs this nation parents, church leaders, politicians and people from virtually all walks of life call in to talk shows, write articles and testify before Congress on the effects make-believe violence has on their children. Almost literally tons of money are funneled to researchers in psychology, sociology, anthropology and education to quantify exactly how many rapes, muggings and murders result from thousands of hours of television viewing by young impressionable minds.

While the fictional depiction of violence by the entertainment industry may account for some percentage of the unrest engulfing this society, overwhelmingly the cruelty flows, not from the world of make-believe, but from the very fabric of the society - the tremendous gulf between the "haves and the have-nots," the deliberate creation and maintenance of an underclass. It seems like the true violence on television is not during the entertainment portion of the viewing but in the commercial message. That message hammers home the theme, "when you haven't got time for the pain..." as though the only thing preventing anybody from rushing out to buy new cars, fancy clothes, Caribbean cruises or whatever is simply consumer's resistance not availing themselves of these conveniences. No matter if one may be able to financially secure that television or not, the media constantly cries out that you deserve it. More homes in this country have television sets than flush toilets, meaning that even the poorest are constantly bombarded with the message, "When you haven't got time for the pain." Therein lies the true violence on television. That violence creates a fantasy world of wealth at the fingertips. Is it surprising, then, that many of those fingers, unable to grasp that dream in their real world, become balled into fists?

A major developer, who doesn't even enjoy sailing, owns a yacht with golden wash basins while John and Jean Nobody huddle in doorways and sleep in cardboard boxes in every one of the cities. The United States was established with the declaration,

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal." Why then do some sleep in mansions while others sleep in the streets?

Wealth is not, as most might think, money. If, like Robinson Crusoe, you were to find yourself alone, shipwrecked on a desert island, what cargo would you prefer the half submerged ship just offshore had been carrying, gold bullion or corn, rice, beans and tools? Nor is wealth, as Ayn Rand's novels would have us believe, created by individuals but by the collective effort of a multitude of society's hands. How would Professor Miller's interpretation of Maslow fit in here?

The United States possesses a veritable mountain of wealth. So much so that obesity is a problem, not only of the affluent but even among many of the poor. Unfortunately, that wealth is not distributed uniformly or even by the wildest stretch of the imagination, equitably.

Who gets how much is decided not by who needs what, but by how much money one is able to acquire. Those with the most money quite naturally suppose that some relationship exists between one's ability to acquire money and one's contributions to society; a myth that shatters when ball players receive millions of dollars while fire fighters in many communities risk and even forfeit their lives as volunteers.

Violence in America is not only the result of television fantasies. Those fantasies rather are a reflection of the savagery that already exists. Real violence is the primal scream warning that something is dreadfully wrong. It is not possible to eliminate, or even substantially mitigate it by censoring what children see on the little screen, but only by a fundamental shift in the values as a society.

There is a great need to truly believe that decent housing for everyone is a better thing than golden wash basins for a few. Creating a better life for all should be the top priority as a nation and as a people.

Tragically, however, it is easier, and somehow more satisfying, to turn the big guns on a mosquito rather than face the 100 ton monster that is the true culprit, that monster is a society that belies the basic principle on which this nation was founded, a society that says but doesn't follow through on the belief that, "All men are created equal." Instead the blame is on the unrest raging around in the society.

Christmas isn't in November

Each year it seems to get worse and worse. Halloween is barely over and the Christmas commercials have started. ShopKo, Target, Walgreens and others are trying to get a jump start on the Christmas season long before Thanksgiving.

Christmas is one of my favorite times of the year (right behind Halloween), but every year I become angry two months before the season.

I was raised on Santa Claus, Rudolph, Frosty and the rest of the fun childhood Christmas characters. I still look forward to opening presents on Christmas morning.

But does anyone remember the true meaning of Christmas? You know, the birth of the Christ child. Vaguely in the back of your mind do you recall the Christmas story with the star, the angels, the three wise men and the shepherds who watched their flock by night?

The birth of Jesus is the reason for the joyous nature of Christmas. We are celebrating the fulfillment of God's promise. The giving of gifts started with the three wise men not the $19.99 special at WalMart.

I understand that Christmas is the biggest sales time of the year for retail merchants. I am among those who flock to the stores in search of the perfect gift (not in early November, however; usually in late December). I would enjoy an all year celebration of Christmas if it was for the right reasons, not just to make an extra dollar.

Americans have allowed their lives to become materialized. This Christmas season try to remember the reason for the season. Share a little love with your family and friends as you celebrate the birth of Jesus, not the appearance of Santa Claus.

Wrestling team looking forward to a great season

JEROME' ALAN WILLIAMS
REPORTER

When anyone enters the wrestling room in Borup Coliseum, the first thing that person notices is the heat. Sweat immediately begins to flow. That's the idea. The Dana Viking wrestling team is working hard for their upcoming season, and they do sweat.

While the Vikings have consistently been good, having overall records of .500 plus for the last nine straight seasons, this year they are looking to build on last year's accomplishments. In 1993 they qualified in every weight class for nationals and won their tri-state conference. Besides achieving those things other team goals includewinning two-thirds of their duals and having an overall record above .500.

With a strong set of returners and an excellent group of freshmen and transfers, Head Coach Ron Beaman sees a good season ahead. But Beaman doesn't believe it will be easy. "We wrestle a lot of tough teams." He also adds, "We have a lot of depth in the lower to middle weight classes, but we're thin in the upper classes. Injuries in the upper classes could hurt us in the season."

Although a lot of things can happen during the season, there are always those that could be watched. So, besides the whole Dana Viking team in general, Chad Casky, Scott Stickler, Dan Mattern, Adam Hensley, Matt Mentink, Jeff Belgum and Shawn Bluml should have lots of the attention.

With a long grueling season ahead, starting with the UNO open Nov. 20, Coach Beaman and the rest of the Vikes are expecting a fruitful season. The only problem for fans is that the Vikings home duals aren't until January.

We all can get a preview of the Dana Viking wrestling team at the inter-squad duals Wednesday at 7 p.m. in Borup Coliseum. Come out and get a glimpse.

Soccer Club ends season second in conference

ROBERT BOYD
SPORTS EDITOR

The Dana College Soccer Club finished their season with a 9-9-1 record. The Vikings finished in second place in the conference with a 3-2 record.

Saturday the soccer club held a tournament here at Dana. The colleges in the tournament were Dana, Dordt, York (Junior Varsity, JV), Midland, Doane, Wayne State and Buena Vista, Iowa.

In the first round, Dana won by forfeit against Doane. Then in the second round, the Vikings beat Buena Vista who beat Midland in the first round. The Viking goals were scored by Ryan Grahm, Gerson Katoko and Jamal Al-Absy.

In the finals Dana took on York

College (JV). York made it to the finals by beating Wayne State and Dordt. The game was low scoring and the Vikings pulled out the victory 1-0. The only goal scored was by Viking Tom Michaels in the first half.

Gerson Katoko led the Vikings in goals scored for the second year in a row. He finished with 19 goals. Katoko was named most valuable player along with first-year player Jason Walsh. Walsh finished the season with five goals and 13 assists.

Jamal Al-Absy was second on the team in goals scored. He kicked 18 goals, three assists and ended up with 39 total points.

Joe Leonard led all goal keepers with 105 saves in six starts. Shad Beam and Rob Tague each won four games as goal keepers.

Students to see Omaha Symphony Orchestra and meet with Spano

On Thursday, a group of music students along with music faculty members will be attending the Omaha Symphony Orchestra concert at the Orpheum. This outing is the culmination of a class preparation over the course of the semester by students in Musicianship I.

Not only have the 10 students been challenged to become better analytical musicians by listening to serious music in the classroom and in their own residences, but Professors Michael Anderson and Jeanmarie Nielsen assigned during the first weeks of class that each student find another person outside of the music classrooms to bring along to this concert. Each music student has been informing their guest about the music that will be heard at this concert.

Following the concert, the group will retire to a restaurant to talk about the concert experience—what was heard, seen, felt, thought about and enjoyed. This excursion is open to all Dana students, faculty and staff. Please make your ticket reservations in The Forum.

On Wednesday Robert Spano, assistant conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest conductor for the Omaha Symphony Orchestra will be on Dana's campus, making a presentation in advance of Thursday's concert. The event will take place in The Forum at 3:10 p.m.

All students are invited to attend, particularly those who will be attending the Omaha Symphony concert either Thursday or Saturday.

Environmental Awareness Organization recycling project getting great results

EAO recently set up burgandy barrels for the collection of aluminum cans in many locations around campus. On Saturday EAO collected over 20 pounds of aluminum to be recycled.

They are located in the new building on every floor. In the Campus Center one is located by the arcade area. In Pioneer Memorial, and Borup a barrel is located by the pop machines. Each Residence Hall has at least two barrels.

Please rinse all cans out before using the barrels, to help keep out bugs. These barrels are part of a new campus wide recycling program.

Viking volleyball team sets standard

JEFF RADEMACHER
SPORTS REPORTER

The Dana Vikings volleyball team discovered the highs and lows of the NAIA playoffs this week, advancing as far as the district semifinals before bowing out of competition Tuesday night.

The Vikings, who finished the regular season with a 29-12 record, hosted the Concordia Bulldogs Monday evening at Borup Coliseum. Dana took the first two games, winning 15-6 and 15-10 before surrendering a 10-1 lead and a 15-11 decision in the third. They set a large home crowd on edge in an extended fourth game and finally gained the 19-17 victory, our school's first ever post-season volleyball win.

The next day the team headed to Peru State College to face the Bobcats in semifinal action. Dana took early leads in each of the first two games but lost by scores of 15-7 and 15-8. After posting a 15-10 triumph in the third match and a 10-6 advantage in the fourth, the Vikings allowed nine unanswered Bobcat points and made their exit from the district playoffs.

Though she believed they went ready to play, head coach Patti Stevenson said her team "did not have enough of that killer instinct needed to put it away."

"I have no doubt that if we'd won the fourth game we would have won the match," Stevenson said. "The two reasons we didn't play as well were we played on Monday night, and we had to travel before the game. We knew it was a tough match going in, but if not for those two factors, I feel we were the better team."

Senior middle hitter Shelli

Wiebelhaus, in her final year with the scarlet-and-white, "would have loved to have gone further but was happy how the team did."

"This has been a great year," Wiebelhaus said, reflecting on the past campaign. "We worked great as a team both on the court and off. We were sad to see Coach (Kathy) Foley leave (to become athletic director at the beginning of the year), but we were glad to have Patti there and we grew as a team. I love this game and I hate to leave. I'm glad we saved the best for last."

Wiebelhaus' parting words were for those who attended Monday's game against Concordia "They were great support. The crowd really helped and pulled together when the team needed them. Thank you very much!" she said.

Jeff Rademacher

Nathan Babbit (23) goes in for a lay-up against York while Nick Dederman (34) trails for the rebound.

Vikings end season in a shootout with Teikyo Westmar

ROBERT BOYD
SPORTS EDITOR

On the last day of the season the Viking football team found themselves in a shootout with the Teikyo Westmar Eagles but fell 62-44. The 106 points scored in the game is the highest scoring game in Viking history. Dana finished the season with a 1-9 overall record and a 1-5 record in the Nebraska-Iowa Athletic Conference (NIAC).

The Viking defense gave up season highs in yards and points, 654 and 62. Eagle quarterback Jeremy Easton dissected the Viking defense. He threw for 387 yards and six touchdowns.

The Viking offense collected 507 yards total offense which is their highest total all season. Quarterback Jack Riggins finished the season with a 315 yard passing day, four touchdowns and no interceptions. He connected with wide receiver Wade Daggett nine times for 100 yards and a touchdown.

The Vikings had a very tough season this year according to head coach Jim Krueger. "We had some bad timing in that we had our youngest and untested team in years and the rest of the conference was very experienced and very good. It was not a good season to be young."

A bright spot on the Vikings 1-9 season was fullback Mike Haddock. Haddock was named to the All-NIAC first-team this season. He rushed for 1,060 yards and seven touchdowns. Haddock was the first back since Bryan Muschall in 1987 to rush for a 1,000 yards in a season. He also led the Vikings in receptions with 37.

"Mike had a fantastic season and I'm glad to have him back for two more years," stated Krueger about Haddock.

First-year quarterback Jack Riggins directed the offense and had a fantastic year according to Krueger. Riggins threw for 1,839 yards and 13 touchdowns. Krueger feels Riggins is the quarterback of the future for the Vikings.

"Jack had a fantastic season for a first-year player. He has good leadership capabilities and great determination," stated Krueger. "He would be a quarterback you can build a team around."

Tight end Tyler Renken and Daggett were formidable targets for Riggins this season. They both finished with 34 receptions. Renken caught five touchdown passes while Daggett grabbed two.

Even though the Viking defense was severely beaten this year, first-year defensive end Jeff Jones had a strong season. Jones was named NIAC defensive player-of-the-week twice. He led the team in quarterback sacks with seven and was second on the team with 79 total tackles.

Krueger says the Vikings need to improve on defense if they want to be better next year. "Our defense gave up too many points and to be better next year we need to keep the points down."

Krueger feels very optimistic about next year and he says some of his players are ready to get started next year.

Men's basketball team opens with a blow out of York

ROBERT MENDOZA
SPORTS REPORTER

The Dana men's basketball team hosted a determined York Panther team on Saturday night and were victorious 108-59.

The Vikings played in front of approximately 300 screaming fans. Head coach Dave Jenson stated that the Vikings were the victims of "first game jitters" and the shooting percentages were very low in the beginning. With Dana leading 17-14 midway through the first half, Coach Jenson applied a full-court press that ignited a 23-3 run that all but sealed the Panthers' fate.

Dana (1-0) had a very balanced scoring attack with eight players close to double figures. They were led by Tony Collins with 16 points, Shawn Fasbender with 14 and Nathan Babbit contributed 11 off the bench. Jenson stated the he was very satisfied with his teams effort and the way they played as a unit.

York, who was led by Jon Earnhart's 15 points, shot 39 percent from the floor and committed 32 turnovers while Dana shot 49 percent and had 15 turnovers. Jenson stressed the fact that we must improve in these two areas if we are to beat our next opponent Briar Cliff, whose front line has three 6-foot-8 inch people. Jenson said that the Vikings "need to show alot of patience and execute our game plan," to beat Briar Cliff.

The Vikings have three home games next week. They play Peru State on Tuesday, Dordt college on Thursday and Sioux Falls college on November 20.
