McKillips honored at fall athletic banquet

SPORTS EDITOR

Former legendary Dana College athletic director and head football coach, Dr. William "Leo" McKillip and his wife, Patsy, were honored guests at the Dana College annual fall athletic banquet Sunday.

A scholarship in the name of the McKillips was announced at the banquet and Dana presented them with a commissioned artwork by artist Bill Johns. The artwork features several caricatures of McKillip throughout his athletic career, quotes, highlights of his career and a caricature of Mrs. McKillip.

The scholarship in the name of the McKillips will provide one or more $500 scholarships beginning in the 1994-95 academic year. The scholarships will be rewarded to selected returning athletes who excel not only athletics but in academics.

Dr. McKillip, who retired last summer, is the winningest coach in Dana Viking football history. He posted 35 wins and four winning seasons in his eight year stint as head coach.

In 1987, Dr. McKillip took the Vikings (8-3) to their first and only trip to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) national playoffs where they were beaten by Baker (Kan.) 37-35 in the first round.

Current athletic director Kathy Foley stated about Dr. McKillip, "When Leo took over as athletic director in 1985, we [the Viking athletic program] had kind of a resurgence. He gave us a reason to believe that we could make some progress and become competitive."

Academic and athletic achievements of fall athletes recognized at banquet

ROBERT BOYD
SPORTS EDITOR

Several Dana volleyball and football players were recognized for their athletic and academic achievements this season at the annual Dana fall athletic banquet on Sunday.

Outside hitter Stacy Haas was named the volleyball team's Most Valuable Player (MVP) in a vote by coaches and teammates.

Haas spiked the Viking volleyball team to its first ever post-season win. She was second in District 11 with 4.95 kills per game.

Shelli Wiebelhaus, Katie Krueger, Melanie Hild and Haas received certificates for being named All-District 11 and All-Conference in the Nebraska-Iowa Athletic Conference (NIAC).

Haas, Wiebelhaus and Krueger were also recognized for their excellence in the classroom.

All three received the Viking Honor Roll Award for having a cumulative grade point average (GPA) of 3.0 to 3.49.

Keri Haas was selected to receive the Most Inspirational Player award.

Hild received Dana's most-prestigious student-athlete acaademic honor as she was presented with the women's Viking Scholar-Athlete Award. She received this award for compiling a cumulative GPA of 3.5 to 4.0.

Dana was well-represented in the final District 11 statistical report. The Vikings ranked #1 in the district in team service aces, averaging 23.0 per game.

Individually, Hild led District 11 in blocks, averaging 1.21 per game and Wiebelhaus ranked second in that category, averaging 1.14 blocks a game.

Stacy Haas was second in kills per game, averaging 4.95.

Krueger ranked third in the district in set assists per game, averaging 11.15.

Stephenie Wilson ranked third in the district in defensive digs, averaging 5.14 a game.

Dana also had four of the top ten individuals in service aces per game.

The Viking football MVP was given to fullback Mike Haddock in a vote by his coaches and teammates. Haddock rushed for 1,060 yards this season and led the team in receptions with 37.

He also broke the Dana single-season rushing record with a 264 yard performance against Concordia on October 16.

Defensive back Chris

Hollibaugh was named the Special Teams MVP because of his willingness to sacrifice and hustle to make tackles on special teams coverage.

Offensive lineman Nate Hill and defensive lineman Eric Walkingstick shared the Most Inspirational Player Award on a vote from coaches and teammates.

Haddock and offensive lineman Brett Williams were given certificates for being named to the first-team All-Conference in the NIAC. Haddock was one of three players who were unanimously chosen to the team.

Offensive tackle Chris Begay, quarterback Jack Riggins, defensive end Jeff Jones and Hill were recognized for being honorable mentions to the All-Conference team in the NIAC.

Walkingstick and quarterback John Spatz received the Viking Honor Roll Award for a GPA of 3.0 to 3.49.

Defensive back Mike Tupa received the men's Viking Scholar-Athlete Award. Tupa received the prestigious award for maintaining a cumulative GPA of 3.5 to 4.0.

Both Tupa and Hild are eligible for national recognition as NAIA Scholar-Athletes.

Summer trip to Japan for Dana students gives business insight

LEIGH DOTSON
REPORTER

Does a two-week vacation next summer to Japan plus a chance to receive credit in business sound interesting? Professor Fran Mallory, a teacher in the business department at Dana, thinks so.

The Dana business department is taking a Japanese Corporate Culture trip in the summer of 1994.

Any student who is interested can go on the June 30 to July 3 trip. "The minimum number of people for the trip will be 10," says Mallory.

Students will have to pay their own expenses, estimated at $3,500. Mallory says she hopes the students will receive not only a business experience but a cultural one as well.

Students will travel to four cities: Tokyo, Yokohama, Kyoto and Hiroshima. They will tour factories, restaurants and computer companies to contrast and compare the American manufacturing techniques versus the Japanese.

For example, the Dana students will visit the Isuzu manufacturing plant, GM-Japan corporate offices, McDonald's, a large hotel, and a computer company.

There will also be a trip on Japan Rail to compare the railroad system in Japan to Amtrak in the United States.

In order to receive college credit, students must complete a journal and a term paper upon completion of the trip. Student travellers will be graded on participation as well.

Any student interested in the trip must complete an application form by Jan. 7, 1994. A deposit of $1,200 is due Jan. 15, 1994.

Students will prepare for the trip by reporting on daily news articles pertaining to Japan in periodicals such as The Wall Street Journal and Business Week.

Predeparture meetings will be conducted by experts including Muriel Neve, a missionary in Japan for over 40 years, and Robert Burns, the International Development Manager from the Department of Economic Development in Lincoln.

Thanksgiving tradition lives on

KRIS FLACK REPORTER

People probably think of many different things when they think of Thanksgiving: a feast with food heaped high, time spent with family, thoughts of the pilgrims and Native Americans' first celebration at Plymouth Rock, giving thanks, being grateful for what we have, spreading good cheer and of course, pumpkin pie.

As far back as I can remember a majority of my family has spent the day at my house. Everyone brings something ranging from fruit salads, green beans, sweet potatoes and don't forget the desserts.

I'm not sure how, but some years we've crammed 30 or more people in our dining room.

There was also the year I was a pilgrim for Halloween and I wore my costume at the family dinner. I always say my mom made me do it, but she says I begged her to let me wear it.

COLUMN

I remember waiting for the year I would be old enough to sit at the table with the adults. It's the same thing every year, all the women end up talking in the kitchen, the men are in watching the football games and the kids are playing in the basement or outside, if it's warm enough.

During those years, my biggest fear was that the relatives that lived more than an hour away wouldn't make it because of three feet of snow that fell the night before.

This year, I really had to decide if I could miss Thanksgiving in Denver. After many long hours of deliberation, I found that there was no way I could stand missing it. I could probably handle it if it was simply a trip to Colorado, but this is "Thanksgiving."

As I get older, many things change. I spend more and more time away from home with only two weeks to go home for Christmas and some summers.

Giving thanks...There are so many things I am thankful for. My family-through thick and thin, I'll be forever grateful for my family because they have always stuck by my side in the good times and the bad. I'm also thankful for my opportunity to receive an education. This is something that many take for granted. These things are only the beginning.

Someday this Thanksgiving tradition will be mine to carry on. Until then I know that no matter how far I am from my family, to me Thanksgiving will always make me think of home and the people I love.

Let justice really be served

On Sept. 22, 1992, University of Nebraska-Lincoln student Candice Harms disappeared. On Dec. 6, 1992, her raped and mutilated body was found in a shallow grave southeast of Lincoln. On Nov. 17, 1993, an inkling of justice was served with the jury conviction of Roger Bjorklund, one of Harms's murderers. On Jan. 24, 1994, Lancaster County District Judge Donald Endacott will decide Bjorklund's fate--death or life imprisonment.

Bjorklund's attorney Scott Helvie feels it would be unfair to impose the death penalty on Bjorklund because Scott Barney, the other man accused in Harms death, has bargained his way out of capital punishment.

Prosecutors made a deal with Barney to not pursue the death penalty because he cooperated with the authorities. Big deal, I say. Both Barney and Bjorklund are confessed murderers. Harms was raped and tortured by both men before Barney shot her twice in the head with a stolen .380-caliber pistol.

Bjorklund returned to the body to retrieve a blanket. "I didn't think she was alive," Bjorklund said, "...but I could tell she was spasming or suffering. So then I used the .38...I thought it was the humane thing to do."

How can a murderer honestly feel he has done the humane thing at any point during his crime? The men had planned to randomly abduct a young woman and "have their way with her" the evening of Sept. 22, 1992. A premeditated crime such as this is a time when the death penalty should definitely be used. There is not a question of guilt in this case.

The justice system needs to crack down on convicted murderers. Limited appeals and carrying out the death penalty when it is imposed would save the taxpayers thousands of dollars.

Nebraska has been wimpy actually executing the death penalty. The last murderer to die in the Nebraska electric chair was Charles Starkweather in 1959. Justice needs to be served in this case. Both Barney and Bjorklund should die for the torture they inflicted on 18-year-old Harms and her family.

It would be the humane thing to do.

ANSWER TO 11/12 CROSSWORD

The Ed Rollins blunder

SHAWN OSBAHR EDITORIALIST

There is an uproar in New Jersey regarding the election of Republican Christine Whitman as governor. Democrats claim that the Republican Party channeled $500,000 to black ministers so that they wouldn't endorse Whitman's opponent, Jim Florio.

Ed Rollins, Whitman's campaign manager, set off the fireworks by boasting of the payoff publicly. He has since retracted his remarks, claiming that he was just being a blowhard braggart. Now, there has been a cry for a full investigation into the matter.

Why, all of a sudden, is this so outrageous? Even if Rollins did make these contributions, it isn't anything new.

Democrats have been doing this for years. They've just been smart enough to never admit it outright. Democrats are one of the best examples of the vote buying industry.

Take a look at how President Clinton is going about getting North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) passed. Two prime examples are deals he made with Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas and Rep. Gene Green, D-Texas. There will be a new trade center in Texas named after J.J. Pickle, at a cost of $10 million.

Another $10 million has been promised to Green for a bridge over a railroad in his district. All this for a "yes" vote on NAFTA.

Take some time to think about tempt to buy the black vote.

He is on the wrong side on this. What the Democrats are claiming is that the black vote can be bought. That is the only insult I recognize.

I would also like to point out that it is not an uncommon practice for individual churches to back certain candidates. Last month in Virginia's election, Democrats Mary Sue Terry and Don Beyer campaigned from the pulpits of several black churches. No known Republicans were invited.

It is also known that collection plates have been passed at several churches for Jesse Jackson when he was a candidate. Sounds like a double standard to me.

Even if Ed Rollins was telling the truth initially, I don't think that votes can be bought through the pulpit. The preachers didn't endorse either one.

It has also been proven that for Florio to win, black turnout would have had to increase by 40 percent.

Plus, 25 percent of the blacks that did vote, voted for Whitman. Florio wouldn't have won anyway. Case closed.

what happens in Congress daily. Congress is controlled by the Democrats and they routinely accept sums of money in exchange for their votes.

These are called campaign contributions from special interest groups and individuals. But the dollars Clinton is wheeling and dealing with aren't contributions, it is our tax dollars. Oops, I forgot, they are called contributions now, so I guess it's all right.

Another thing I am confused on is the position that the Rev. Jesse Jackson has taken on this issue. He appears outraged and insulted that the GOP would at-

Drill Team plans December performances and camps

KIM BLEICH REPORTER

Tryouts for the new 1993-1994 Drill Team produced 13 members. Members of the Drill Team are as follows: Shari Olsen, Kristin Knight, Jenna Jacobsen, Tonya Eller, Heather Price, Wendy Johnson, Brandy Broughton, Janet Reisdorff, Jenny Nielsen, Lynne Johnson, Rayna Schramm, J. Lynn Asher, and Jennifer Allemang.

The Drill Team has several performances and camps that will take place during December. Beginning with Dec. 7, they will hold a pep rally, in Borup Coliseum and perform during halftime of the women's basketball game. Dec., they will perform at a women's basketball game and Dec. 11, a camp for the Blair elementary girls will be held.

On Dec. 12, they will hold a camp for the team to prepare them for performances during the months of January and February. And finally, Dec. 13 and 14 they will dance at halftime of both women's and men's basketball games.

The team will be having several fundraisers throughout the year. During the Christmas season, they will be wrapping presents in Omaha malls.

Student Senate passes new bylaws and constitutions

SHARI OLSEN REPORTER

On Wednesday night the Student Senate met to vote on new proposals and constitutions that were brought before them.

Social Awareness Organization representatives asked to take part of their Student Senate allocation for guest speakers and use it toward the prize for the Nov. 20 scavenger hunt. The winning group will receive a $20 gift certificate to Pizza Hut.

A proposal was made and passed that all organizations who request money from the senate will have their requests reviewed ahead of time by the Budget Concerns Committee.

The proposal is to eliminate the confusion on "spur of the moment" budget requests. It is also to make sure that all organizations have reviewed the Budget Handbook.

Drill Team members were also at the meeting and asked for money to help them with expenses. The money will be used for pom poms and supplies to make posters and signs.

Members are wrapping gifts in Omaha malls over Christmas, planning a Dec. 7 pep rally and working at the all-day wrestling meet Jan. 15.

Student Activities Board representatives asked for money for Winterfest activities Feb. 3-5. The money will cover the dance, a disc jockey, prizes, gift certificates, a comedian, decorations, refreshments and security.

The last amendment brought to the Student Senate focused on the bylaws regarding Winterfest royalty eligibility. To be nominated by a student-run organization the organization has to have received funding from the Student Senate during the academic year.

Also, an organization that receives sole support from Dana College cannot nominate a student. The organization must either be receiving money from the Student Senate or be able to receive money from the Student Senate before nominating a student. The bylaw is in effect for this year's Winterfest.

Breaking the Barriers bridges the gap between cultures

AUDRA KOBBS REPORTER

Breaking the Barriers is a discussion group designed to bridge the gap between cultures.

Professor Al Finderson, director of multicultural education at Dana, said, "Your culture is hidden to you; often the initial excitement of knowing someone different is exciting, but the excitement erodes when the cultures clash." Breaking the Barriers provides interventions to broaden our knowledge of cultures other than our own. The group uses role play with a scenario and scripts to aid in their awareness of the differences our own backgrounds can create. There have been speakers addressing the group which has satisfied LARP credit.

"We tend to group with people who are like minded," said Finderson. This is a way to get together with people who are different. The group's final meeting was today. Finderson will continue the group next semester and all students are invited to attend.

Finderson holds a master's degree in international affairs from Ohio University and a master's degree in sociology from Eastern Illinois University. He has been involved with the Peace Corp and spent two years in Africa. He comes to Dana from Colorado where he was involved with the Rockies baseball team.

Vikings dunk Peru State

ROBERT MENDOZA
SPORTS REPORTER

The Dana Vikings men's basketball team entertained Peru State on Tuesday and rolled to a 92-62 non-conference victory over the visiting Bobcats. Coach Dave Jensen who was an assistant at Peru State for five seasons was happy with the win over his former team. "We played an intense defensive game tonight," said Jensen whose team caused 23 Bobcat turnovers.

The Vikings led 22-16 with 11 minutes to go in the first half when the defense stepped the intensity level up a notch and held Peru scoreless for six minutes. When the onslaught was over the Vikings had a commanding 37-16 lead. After the run the Vikings were never challenged.

The Vikings who shot 53 percent as a team were led by Rob Coursey and Tony Collins each with 14 points. Freshman Shawn Fasbender who thrilled the crowd with an in your face reverse slam dunk added 13 points. Dana outrebounded Peru State 52-44 and was led by Fasbender with six boards. Chris Tignor and freshman center Chad Anderson added five. Point guards Jason Jackson and John Ruff also combined for 12 assists to lead Dana.

The Vikings traveled to Sioux City on November 11 to wage war with the Briar Cliff Chargers. In a very intense and hard fought game, the Vikings lost 100-86 in double overtime.

In a game that had 16 lead changes and 10 ties, the smaller Viking team fought the Division I NAIA (National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics) Briar Cliff team to a standstill.

Coach Dave Jensen was very satisfied with the effort put forth by his team. "We played a good team tonight and we had our chances to win," stated an optimistic Jensen.

With the scored tied at 73 and with 15 seconds left in regulation, Dana had the ball and a chance to win the game but a tough Charger defense forced a hurried shot by the Vikings and the game went into overtime.

In the first overtime Dana was led by juniors Rob Coursey and Tony Collins who both made athletic moves and shots to keep the score tied at 81.

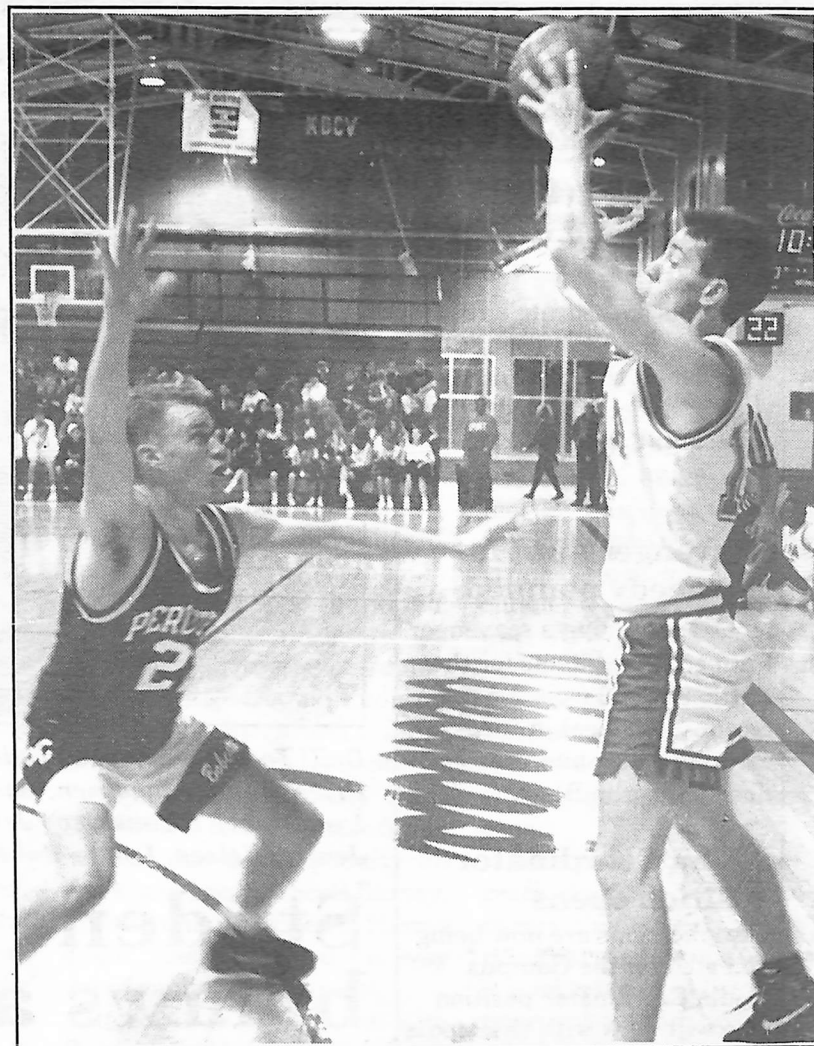

In the second overtime mental mistakes and turnovers hurt the Vikings as they were outscored by 14 in the last five minutes. "We have nothing to be ashamed of," stated assistant coach Andy Dotson who hopes that the team can benefit from the situations the game created. "This game was a good learning experience for the team."

The Vikings were led offensively by Coursey who had 29 points (three 3-pointers) and Collins who had 28 points.

The Vikings were outrebounded 55-43. Freshman Fasbender had eight boards and Scott Wilty and Collins contributed six. The Chargers were led by Ricardo Yearwood and Tim Brennan who had 25 and 13 points respectively. Yearwood also had 13 rebounds to lead Briar Cliff.

The Vikings played Dordt College last night. They play Sioux Falls College tomorrow at home and then travel to Denver over the Thanksgiving holiday to play in the Metro State Invitational Tournament.

Lady Vikes open season against Sioux Falls College tonight

CARRIE L. LARKINS
EDITOR IN CHIEF

After a 15-13 mark last season and advancing to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) District 11 championship game for a second straight year, the Lady Vikings are preparing to rebuild.

"Granted we lost five seniors. I think that's tough on any program. But I'm far from willing to throw in the towel," Dana Head Coach Kathy Foley said. "You start again. You coach the players you have and they'll do the job."

Foley cited juniors Heidi Grappendorf and Melanie Hild and sophomore Brenda Mechels as leaders of this year's squad. "Heidi and Brenda have the potential to be scorers for us," Foley said. Grappendorf led the Vikings in three-point shooting last season.

"Mel is just basically a student athlete you know you can count on. She makes good decisions on and off the court." Hild was a starter for much of the 1992-93 season. She averaged over three points and five rebounds a game last year.

Karla Meyer of Orchard and Nichol Buenning of Parkston, S. D., have proved to be the leading freshmen on the team according to Foley.

Rounding out the squad are Jen Neumeister, Nicole Stromgren, Stacy Spencer, Sara Howieson, Nicole Parrack, Jennifer Pfingsten and Taffy Forsen.

"We have potential as a team," Foley said. "Maybe it's not going to be a one game from nationals type of thing this year. But we're going to be able to compete, particularly with our non-conference opponents."

The Nebraska-Iowa Athletic Conference (NIAC) favorite, according to Foley, is Hastings. "They didn't go too much downhill after a 30-2 year. Doane will also be improved," Foley said.

The Lady Vikes start their season on the road tonight against Sioux Falls.
