Internet "Craze" could create a problem for other computer users

DENISE DAUBENDIEK
COPY EDITOR

Internet has become a time-consuming pastime for many Dana students. Socializing by computer is a new and inexpensive way to meet people. Many students come to the computer center to speak with others worldwide. The computers are still needed to fulfill requirements for classes.

Kathy Montira works in the lab four days a week. She has noticed the increased number of people in the computer center since the Internet craze and said she is glad that students have discovered this new method of communication.

She tries to be aware of who is working on homework and who is using Internet in the computer center.

So far those who need a computer for a class have always been able to get access. If they could not, Montira says she would ask for volunteers to leave Internet so that other students could use the computer. If there were no volunteers, she would ask the Internet user who had been there the longest to quit.

Since Internet is a fun way to socialize, students using it may distract those trying to complete assignments. Montira has requested that Internet users are quiet and respect those who are studying.

"I'm glad the lab is being used," says Montira. "But our first priority is for homework."

During interim, there is less computer homework Montira says, "During academic strong times, Internet is used less so the chance of there being a problem is not as great. Students have more time during Interim. More (students) will need to be here during second semester."

Montira stresses that students with any concerns should talk to her and the problem will be solved. She is available in the lab 2 - 11 p.m. Sunday - Thursday.

Grappendorf named NIAC player of the week

Junior guard Heidi Grappendorf has been named Nebraska-Iowa Athletic Conference (NIAC) women's basketball Player-of-the-Week for her efforts last week.

Grappendorf totaled 70 points in her first three games back from missing six games due to a stress fracture in her foot. She returned to the courts last week by scoring 16 points against Midland Lutheran. Then she returned to the starting line-up against Northwestern and pumped in 30 points and then 24 against Mount Marty the following night.

Grappendorf is Dana's leading scorer, averaging 25.3 points per game. She is also hitting 43.1 percent of her shots from three-point land.

Senator Chambers speaks for Martin Luther King Day

ROBERT BOYD
SPORTS EDITOR

On Monday Nebraska State Senator Ernie Chambers came to Dana to make a presentation in commemoration of the birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. in front of Dana students and staff. Chambers spoke on the ongoing racial issues in the world in a presentation called "Building Bridges in the Community."

Social work professor Jan Potter who has known Chambers for over 30 years says this about chambers intentions. "Senator Chambers' goal is to get people to think. He doesn't expect people to agree with everything he says," said Potter. "I wish people would listen to him with that in mind."

"His aim is to wake people up for the need to listen to people from points of view different from their own. I think Chambers doesn't intend for people to take what he says personally. He sees himself as a gadfly to wake people up. He really cares intensely about this suffering in the world. His goal is to do what he can to eliminate it. I would be happy if people looked beyond his words to what his intentions are."

From crowd reaction many people were confused by his speech. Some people were offended, while others didn't know how to take the Senator's comments.

Senator Chambers visit was sponsored by the Helping Our People Expand (H.O.P.E.) organization in honor of Martin Luther King Day.

Jeff Kem, president of the H.O.P.E. organization, said, "I liked Senator Chambers' speech. I felt that it challenged people to look a little deeper into themselves. It's one thing to just hear, it's another thing to listen."

"I felt that the Senator's comments were extremely confusing. I was constantly asking myself, what does he mean by that, and how does that apply to me?" said Monica Pauk. "I still don't exactly know what he said, and what he was telling me to do."

Winter blast strikes Midwest with bitterly cold temperatures

MONICA PAUK
NEWS EDITOR

According to the Omaha World Herald, Eppley Airfield recorded a low temperature of nine degrees below zero at 7:50 a.m. Tuesday. By 9 a.m. when most have walked to their interim classes it had climbed to a balmy negative seven degrees.

Windchill readings in Nebraska and Iowa earlier this week ranged from 25 below to 60 below. It was so cold in Ames, Iowa that classes at Iowa State University were cancelled. Classes at Blair public schools were also cancelled. Extremely cold temperatures created unique situations for some students at Dana.

Sophomore Denise Daubendiek is a checker at a grocery store in Blair. "With those automatic doors opening constantly, it never had a chance to warm up. It's difficult operating a cash register with cold, stiff fingers and gloves are definitely not an option. With my mind working faster than my fingers, I rang one customer up for a coupon worth $1024.45. What a bargain! At times like that a ski mask would be appropriate."

Students are reminded that the weather has been colder in the past. Omaha's record low temperature for Tuesday's date is 19 degrees below dating back to 1940.

Information is key to saving the world

Imagine the world has been shrunk to the size of a gymnasium, its five billion people condensed to a room full of players. Many are crowded and poor. Few are rich and powerful. All of them are trying to solve their problems.

As we begin to understand the fact that we are all members of the global community attempting to recognize, define and solve the problems confronting the world, it is important that we identify in what state the earth is today. After we understand where we are, we can then discuss what could and should be, and empower each other to help bring about the world we all envision.

Just to give you an example of where we are today, consider these figures. The total world population in 1900 was 1,608,000,000. In 1950, it was 1,376,235,000, and it is estimated to be 6,292,000,000 in year 2000.

Estimated cumulative HIV infections in 1982 was 450,000; in 1992, 13 million and is estimated to be 30-40 million in year 2000. The total cumulative reported AIDS cases for 1982 was 1,721, and 622,589 in 1992. The World

EDITORIAL

Health Organization estimates, that by the year 2000 there will be about 12-14 million cumulative AIDS cases.

Furthermore, there are 16-20 million starvation related deaths per year. Nine million children die from preventable causes. Two hundred million tons of waste has been added to the air by human activities. There is 1.5 million square miles of hole in Antarctica's ozone layer. Ozone depletion and global warming continues as we hysterically try to find solutions. We are all fighting for the limited resources available since the earth cannot be made any larger.

Is there anything we can do about all this? Today, every individual, every community, every nation is one way or another connected to the global system. Therefore, by changing the part of the world—the part you choose to work with—you change both the part you work on directly, and the larger whole.

Information is key to the whole process. Information can be used to empower our actions and to move the system we are seeking to change in the directions we want. The right information in the right place at the right time can change the world. The key is asking the right questions—and the key to right questions is our curiosity, values and commitment.

Asking probing questions of the global structure, including yourself, figuring out what is going on and what the options are for solving the problems at hand is the task confronting us. Taking this idea and wielding it to get the job done is what we have to do to save our world. Yes, it can be done!

Interim provides opportunity

Greetings from Deutschland!! As you read this, eleven other students and I are touring the streets of the recently united Berlin implementing the German language and customs we have learned at Dana. Twelve other Dana students are viewing the cathedrals in another area of Europe.

Many others are still in the United States but are engaged in a learning environment other than a classroom. They have internships where they are gaining valuable experience and references for future careers.

Education majors may be using the month of January to finish up student teaching requirements or to begin their observations.

Those of you who are still on campus are probably taking a class slightly off the track of your major or diving into a deeper aspect of your interest. Courses this interim include American Popular Culture, Understanding Film, Tune In "Yesterday," and The American Revolution.

All these opportunities abound yet talk about discontinuing interim circulates each year among the faculty. Interim provides unique options for Dana students. A three-week trip to Europe for about $2000 is an awesome opportunity. A three-week full-time internship is not possible during the course of the regular academic semester.

The break from the action most interim courses provide is a strong element of the liberal arts experience at Dana. Professors and students are enabled to take a concentrated look at a slightly different area of study. Encouraging students to question and examine all areas of life is one of the goals of a liberal arts education. Interim provides the opportunity.

One argument against the continuance of interim is that it is impossible to give justice to any course in three weeks. This problem occurs no matter what the time of study. Intense organization and goals must be made by professors to make the most of the three week span.

Now that interim is optional, there is little risk of having students in the classroom who don't want to be there. Students who choose to remain on campus are able to devote their minds to a single subject.

Interim is part of the Dana tradition. When the question of getting rid of interim surfaces, remember what the month is for. It was never meant to be used as an extra semester of study; just a change of pace and a piece of the liberal arts education Dana provides.

Who's going to win the Super Bowl?

ROBERT BOYD

Are you ready for some football? I certainly am. This weekend's AFC and NFC championship games could produce some interesting match-ups in this year's Super Bowl.

Will it be the Chiefs' Joe Montana vs. his former club of the 49ers? Or maybe a rematch of last year's Super Bowl, Dallas vs. Buffalo? No matter who wins the Super Bowl, it should be two great weeks of intense NFL football.

AFC Championship: Kansas City Chiefs at Buffalo Bills

The big question in this game is: Who wants to see Buffalo in the Super Bowl "again"? The Bills have lost the big game the last three years. After last year's humiliating 52-17 loss to the Cowboys, I think Buffalo has earned a ticket out of the Super Bowl.

Buffalo is still the team to beat in the AFC since they do have the AFC's best record. They have a high-powered offense led by Jim Kelly and Thurman Thomas and a very good defense.

For the Chiefs, it's simple. The Chiefs need to stay within a touchdown in the fourth quarter to give Montana a shot at a late come-from-behind victory. He is the best in the business at putting six points up when his team needs it the most.

I love to see storybook endings.

EDITORIAL

Montana to Marcus Allen for the score with no time on the clock. KANSAS CITY 24, BUFFALO 21

NFC Championship: San Francisco 49ers at Dallas Cowboys

Will Emmitt Smith be able to play because of his injured shoulder? That's the big question burning in the minds of Cowboy fans. He had better play. The Cowboys started the season 0-2 without him and would probably get crushed by the 49ers without him.

The 49ers need to score about 30 points and keep their offense on the field most of the day if they want to win. Their defense is not that good. Dallas scored 27 points against Green Bay's number two ranked defense last week. Just think what Dallas can do against the 49ers' defense.

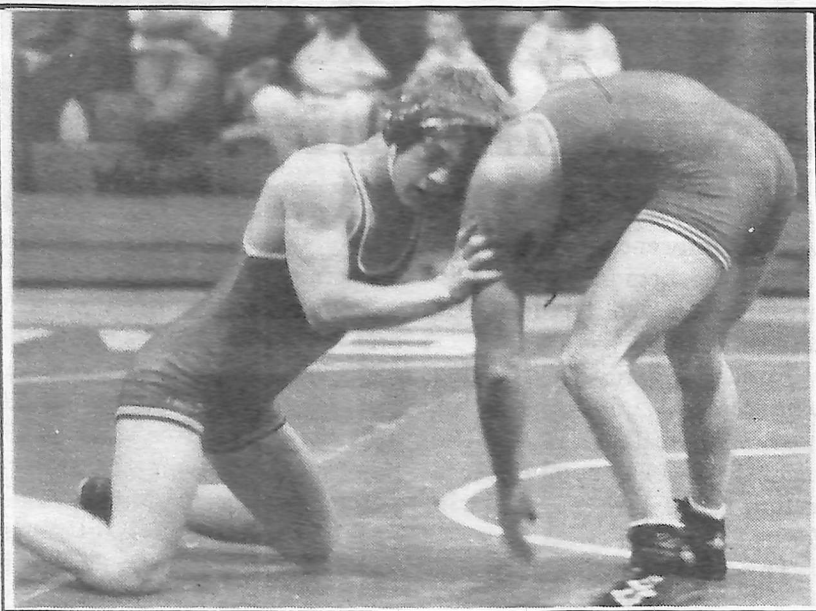

It all boils down to the 49er defense. Can they stop Dallas? I don't think so. DALLAS 34, SAN FRANCISCO 24

SUPER BOWL IIVIII

My biggest pet peeve in life is boring Super Bowls. I don't think we need another blowout in the biggest game of the year. That's why I hope the Chiefs come ready to play.

Dallas is the best team in the NFL. The only way Kansas City will win is if Dallas turns the ball over as much as Buffalo did last year. I don't think that will happen, but I do think it will be a great game.

A last-second pass by Montana is batted down by linebacker Ken Norton. Dallas repeats as champions. DALLAS 31, KANSAS CITY 27

Wrestlers bring the action home

ROBERT BOYD
SPORTS EDITOR

The Viking wrestlers made their first appearances at Borup Coliseum this season when they hosted the Dana Duals Friday, the Dana Invitational Saturday and a dual meet with Teikyo Westmar Tuesday.

Teikyo Westmar

In the dual meet with the Teikyo Westmar Eagles, the Vikings led in team points 18-14 with two matches left. A Viking forfeit and an Eagle pin gave the Vikings the loss by the score of 26-18. The Vikings are 1-2 in team duals this season.

Chad Caskey at 126-pounds

continued to win his matches when he won a 9-5 decision over his Eagle opponent. Caskey has the best season record on the Viking team with a 16-6 individual mark. He and 167-pound Andy Hensley qualified to wrestle in the National Association Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) national meet scheduled for early March.

Hensley improved on his individual mark when he defeated his opponent by a 8-3 decision. He has an impressive individual record at 13-7.

Another wrestler expected to qualify for finals is 118-pound Danny Mattern. Mattern won by a 6-3 decision which raised his individual season record to 12-6.

Northwestern

Friday the Vikings took on Northwestern (Iowa) in a dual which the Vikings won 27-21. This is the only dual victory that the Vikings have this season.

The Vikings won the first five matches and had a 21-0 lead in team points. Then Northwestern reeled off three wins and narrowed the lead to 21-15. Matt Mentink at 190-pounds sealed the Viking victory when he beat his opponent.

Other Viking winners were Caskey, Brent Johnson (134-pounds), Scott Stickler (142-pounds) and T.C. Aguilar (150-pounds). The only Viking pin of the match was by Aguilar.

Dana Invitational

Caskey and Stickler finished second in the Dana Invitational Saturday. Caskey won three matches before being defeated in the finals of the 126-pound weight class by Rod Rieger of University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Caskey lost an 8-4 decision. Stickler lost to Tony Geiger of UNL by a 3-2 decision.

Nine Vikings placed in the tournament. Mattern, Hensley and Mentink finished with third place showings. Jimmie Daugherty, Johnson, Aguilar and Nate Cone ended up with fourth place in their respected weight classes.

Tomorrow the Viking wrestlers will travel to Indianola, Iowa to wrestle in the Simpson Invitational. Tuesday they will go to Dubuque, Iowa to compete in the Dubuque Duals.

SHORTLY...

Interim aerobic classes being held

Aerobic classes are being sponsored by Health Services on January 24 and 25 from 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. Tammy Peterson will lead the coed class.

New diet analysis computer program in computer lab

The Physical Education Department has purchased a diet analysis computer program, and it is available in the Computer Lab of the Dana Classroom Center. It provides an analysis of foods eaten with attention given to total calories, percentages of carbohydrates, fats, proteins, vitamin, and mineral content printed out in bar graph format. The program is available for use by all members of the campus community.

"Miss Viking" contest being held on Feb. 3

A "Miss Viking" contest is being sponsored by the Dana Cheerleaders. Contestants will be male Dana students dressed in womens clothing dancing to their favorite music. Registration forms will be available during lunch from cheerleading representatives, and must be returned to box 368 by Feb. 1. Admission is $1 and profits will go to the winner, who will be determined by the audience applause. It will be held Feb. 3 in Lauritzen Theater at 7:30 p.m.

Vikings dunk Doane for first conference win in four years

ROBERT MENDOZA
SPORTS REPORTER

The Dana College men's basketball team won an important game Wednesday night when they defeated the Doane Tigers in an exciting 99-75 win. The win marked the first NIAC victory in four years spanning 48 games. The win elevated the Vikings season record to 9-11 overall with a 1-3 record in NIAC play.

Doane Tigers

It was a hard fought game until midway through the second half when Viking forwards Chris Tignor and Nathan Babbitt along with guard Rob Coursey went into action. Five minutes and three dunks later the game was out of reach for the visiting Tigers.

Coursey who led the Vikings with 30 points and five three-pointers said, "This win was a big monkey off our backs. It's been five years since Dana has won a conference game. I hope this is the beginning of a win streak. We are tired of the losses."

Junior forward Tony Collins who scored his 1,500th point this past week stated, "This is the biggest win in Borup Coliseum in four years. It was a great win for us."

The Vikings had a very balanced scoring attack with four players in double figures. Tignor had 20 points, Collins earned 12 and high-flying freshman Nathan Babbitt, who started his first game as a Viking, contributed 19 points. Tignor also led the Vikes in rebounding with 14.

Mount Marty

On Sunday the Vikings traveled to Mount Marty and came away with a 79-74 loss. Mount Marty was winless going into the game at 0-18.

Mount Marty jumped out fast on the Vikings. They built a 46-29 lead at halftime. The Vikings put on a press in the second half and erased Mount Marty's 17 point lead and even took a four-point lead. Mount Marty came back and hit some key free throws down the stretch to win the game.

Tignor scored 18 points and Coursey added 17 for the Vikings. Shawn Fasbender grabbed a team-high 10 boards in the loss.

Up next: Midland

The Vikings continue conference play on Saturday at home against arch-rival Midland who is also 1-3 in conference. This should be a spirited contest between two evenly matched teams.

Chris Tignor (40) blows past his opponent for an easy lay-up. Tignor scored 20 points and pulled down 14 rebounds in the Viking win over Doane on Tuesday night.

Lady Vikes end six game losing streak with two wins

ROBERT BOYD
SPORTS EDITOR

The Viking women's basketball team is on a roll. After losing six straight games, the Vikings have reeled off two consecutive wins at home. They beat Northwestern 66-60 Friday and Mount Marty 69-63 Saturday. The Vikes stretched their record to 5-11 and 1-3 in Nebraska-Iowa Athletic Conference (NIAC) play.

Northwestern

The Vikings Heidi Grappendorf threw in 30 points to lead the Vikings over Northwestern in their first NIAC victory of the season. Grappendorf out-scored Northwestern's Missy Van Klompenburg who pumped in 29 points.

The Vikings led by 15 points with 15 minutes to play when Northwestern rallied to pull the game within two with a little over eight minutes to play. Then the Vikes exploded for eight points to stretch the lead to 58-48. Van Klompenburg brought Northwestern back within four but then the Vikes went on an 8-2 run to put the game away.

Melanie Hild was the only other Viking to reach double-figures with 12 points. Hild also pulled down seven boards and had three steals.

The Vikings shot 44 percent from the field and held Northwestern to just 38 percent shooting. The Vikings outrebounded the Northwestern by three and caused 20 Northwestern turnovers.

Mount Marty

The Vikings blew a 19-point lead in the second half but held on to beat Mount Marty on Saturday 69-63.

The Vikings rolled to a 61-42 lead midway through the second half and seemingly put the game away. Mount Marty pecked away and dwindled the Viking lead down to four with 2:22 left to play. A late bucket by Hild and two free throws by Grappendorf held off the Mount Marty attack.

Grappendorf led all Viking scorers with 24 points. She nailed four three-pointers, pulled down two boards and dished out a couple of assists in the win.

Brenda Mechels hit three from three-point land and ended up with 13 points. Nichol Buenning added 12 points and grabbed seven boards in the cause.

The Vikings will play at home tonight against Concordia and will play at Doane on Tuesday.
