Dana student allegedly assaulted in Blair Hall

KRIS FLACK REPORTER

Friday night at approximately 7 p.m., a Dana junior was allegedly physically assaulted by the Dana senior she had been dating for the past year.

The incident took place in Blair Hall, one of the four coed residence halls on campus.

According to Dan Travaille, Vice President for Student Development, the following is a summary of what took place.

There had been an argument between two students. After the initial argument, the male left the female's room and she went into the bathroom area to take a shower.

The male returned and confronted her in the shower. There, the two began to argue once more and eventually ended up in the female's room.

The argument continued and she was allegedly assaulted. She asked him to leave. When he did she closed and locked the door then called the police.

The male returned and pounded on the door, but did not re-enter the room. The Blair police arrived, assessed the situation and advised the female to go to the hospital to be examined.

No sexual assault attempts were reported. The male was ticketed for a Class III misdemeanor (I being the most serious and IV being the least) which could carry a fine up to $1000, 90 days in jail or both, according to information from a spokesman at the Blair County Court Office.

A Blair Police Department spokesman declined comment because the case is still under investigation.

Senior accused in assault is appealing college sanctions

KRIS FLACK REPORTER

The Dana senior allegedly involved in the Friday evening assault of a junior female Dana student is appealing the one-year disciplinary probation given to him by the college.

He will have to go before the Campus Hearing Board, which consists of three faculty members and three student representatives. If the charges stay the same, he will have a chance to appeal to the president of the college.

Dan Travaille, Vice President for Student Development, released information to the Hermes earlier this week on the campus process of the incident. This is a separate issue than the report filed with the Blair Police Department and has nothing to do with the judicial process or the accusations concerning either party.

After talking with all parties involved and reviewing the situation, the male has been permitted to remain enrolled to complete the semester, but all other privileges have been removed. The charges against him, decided upon by Travaille, are listed below.

He is said to have entered another student's room without permission (illegal entry) and stayed in that room after being asked to leave (trespassing). He is also in violation of being in the women's bathroom/shower (trespassing and violation of privacy) and using physical force against another person (assault).

The sanctions for these charges state that the student be placed on Disciplinary Probation for one year. During this time he is prohibited from being on campus except to attend class and use the library. More specifically, he is prohibited from being in any of the residence halls at any time. He cannot attend or participate in any extra or co-curricular events. Lastly, he cannot initiate any contact with the female student, either directly or indirectly. He is also prohibited from being on campus after graduation until February 15, 1995.

Any violation of these restrictions will result in immediate expulsion. The student was notified of these charges and advised of the procedures for appealing the decision.

Daily worship planned for Lenten season

Daily worship services will be performed in Trinity Chapel throughout the Lenten season.

Early morning prayer services will be held at 7:45 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Evening prayer services will be held on those days at 5 p.m.

Tuesday mornings at 10:30 a.m. all are invited to attend a service of holy communion.

The Holden Vespers service will continue to be held Wednesday nights at 10 p.m.

Thursdays the regular service of morning praise and the word will be held at 10:30 a.m.

121 high school seniors compete for Dana scholarships

DENISE DAUBENDIEK COPY EDITOR

The sixth annual Presidential Scholarship Competition was held Saturday. A total of 107 high school seniors interested in attending Dana next fall participated in the event. The Melchior Vocal Competition also occurred that day.

To compete in the Presidential Competition, students must have earned an ACT score of 25, an SAT score of 970 or a cumulative grade point average of 3.25. They must have been accepted for admission for the fall semester of 1994.

John Schueth, director of admissions at Dana, says, "These students are already getting honors scholarships so they are just looking to sweeten the pot. This is an opportunity for them to compete against each other. All of them are winners, all are scholars."

Competitors were awarded points for their ACT or SAT score and cumulative grade point average. Each student was interviewed by a team that included a Dana faculty member, a staff representative or administrator and a current student. Contestants were presented a topic and given one hour to plan and write an essay.

A make-up day for presidential contenders took place Thursday for those unable to attend Saturday. There were 14 participants bringing the total number of competitors to 121, nine more than last year.

Full tuition scholarships are given to first-place rankings. There is no set limit to the number of such scholarships. Other

Media positions open for 1994-95

The Dana Media Advisory Board is currently accepting applications for the following positions: program director of KDCV, program director of DTV, editor of the Hermes, editor of the Danian, Campus Media Coordinator and manager of the Survival Guide. These are all paid positions.

The Manager of the Survival Guide is basically a summer po-placings are awarded $2,500-$6,000 in scholarships. These scholarships are renewable for up to four years of attendance at Dana by maintaining a pre-determined grade point average.

Winners will be announced within three weeks. Dana College President Myrvin Christopherson will personally phone the top winners. Others will be informed through their admission counselors. All participants will receive a certificate because all are awarded some scholarship money.

The Melchior Vocal Competition gives perspective students the opportunity to earn large scholarships through their singing talents. The first place winner is awarded a full tuition scholarship.

Auditions were held throughout the day and six finalists were chosen. Those six performed and were judged before an audience of the Presidential competitors and parents. The winner was announced immediately after the performances.

There was also an opportunity to earn scholarships in other areas. Auditions were held in theater and instrumental and vocal music.

Portfolios were reviewed in art and graphic design. Coaches were available to speak with those interested in athletics.

Eight states were represented in the competition. According to Schueth, the number of contestants raises slightly each year. In 1989 at the first Presidential Scholarship Competition, there were 74 in attendance.

A total of 63 percent of last year's participants enrolled at Dana in the fall.

Coed soccer club prepares for third spring season

SHAD BEAM SPORTS REPORTER

The Dana soccer club is preparing for its third spring season. Last fall Dana finished with a 9-9-1 overall record and finished second in conference behind Northwestern.

Dana finished the fall by winning the Blair Invitational with a 1-0 victory over the York College junior varsity squad.

On tap for the spring is an indoor league in Omaha for the men. The indoor season kicks off next Friday with a 9 p.m. match.

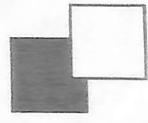

This league consists of ten club teams from the Omaha area.

Also scheduled for Dana is a "Thunderdome" tournament in Le Mars, Iowa, that is held at Teikyo-Westmar University.

The club is open to anyone on campus regardless of playing experience or gender.

In fact, there is at least two women's games scheduled for this spring. Usually, the men and women play as a coed squad.

If any one is interested in joining look for the posters around campus or call 426-3662 for any information.

Has a holy war against Catholics been declared?

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press..." Amendment 1 to the United States Constitution.

I am a strong supporter of the First Amendment. Without it, I would be out of a career. This week, however, I received a piece of junk mail that surely abuses the intentions of the First Amendment. Entitled "The Protestant", the publication completely denounces the Roman Catholic faith from the view of Protestants.

Headlines read: "Is it Rome's purpose to make America Catholic?" and "Protestants seek unity—Rome's after a takeover." Maybe I'm missing something, but I didn't know a religious war had been declared within Christianity.

By reading further in the publication I am still confused. They tell me that Catholics are trying to destroy the separation of church of state in the United States.

To support this they quote Pope Leo XIII (pope 1878-1903) who supposedly compares the separation of church and state to "the union of the soul and the body in man." The full quote is not given. The partial quote doesn't make sense. I guess I should believe it because the anonymous authors of the publication told me it is true.

In another article the author speaks of the movement of the Sabbath from Saturday to Sunday by the Roman Catholic church. In reality gatherings to honor the resurrection of Christ began to be held by the early church in the first century, long before the distinction of Catholic or Protestant faith.

The authors claim "whoever observes Sunday acknowledges the authority of the papacy and as homage to the Roman Church." I disagree. When I choose to worship on Sunday I do so as homage to God and no one else.

Freedom of speech and the press allows even the ignorant to publish. Unfortunately there is no requirement for full representation of all the facts.

Readers beware. You need not fear the conquest of America by the Roman Catholics. Instead beware of those who harvest unwarranted hatred and try to force it upon you.

Men's basketball here at Dana has come a long way since I first set foot on this campus.

For those that didn't have the pleasure to experience the last few years here, we basketball fans had only one reason to attend games: to watch our friends get defeated by everyone. There was always a little bit of hope that somehow they could pull off a victory, especially in conference play, but then reality would set in. It became very hard to get excited during a men's basketball game.

This year Dana has seen a major turnaround in their men's basketball program. Finally things are coming together. Our Vikings have stepped up the pace and quality of their game. Talent and teamwork are working hand in hand. The turnout for the games from the Dana and Blair communities has been outstanding. We finally have something to cheer about.

During the last decade in college basketball, especially in the NCAA, the crowd has become more and more involved. They have become so involved, that the oddsmakers take crowd participation into account when determining point spreads. The "home court advantage" in college basketball is becoming an irreplaceable asset. I feel that our crowd at Dana is an asset to the game. I also know that the players appreciate the support.

Recently there has been discussion regarding fan conduct at Dana's men's basketball games. Even a couple of times "Blair's Finest" have been summoned to the games.

Now, certain students have been threatened with sanctions regarding their behavior. These students are now being forced to attend Saturday's game, bring a set amount of people, sit in a designated spot, and cheer in conjunction with the cheerleaders, because of what was deemed, by the college, as unacceptable behavior. These individuals can choose either do this, or not attend the game.

I do not want to appear to be in the defense of some of the things that were said during the Hastings game last week. I agree with coach Foley that some things did get out of hand. But, I do not believe that forcing these people to do these things will bring about a solution.

Although impossible, the only solution would be for the crowd to referee the game. The taunting of the officials and the rousing of the players has become a part of this game. Unfortunately, we sometimes go overboard.

Overboard or not, I have never experienced anything at Dana like what was observed last Friday at Concordia. The Concordia student section was almost your typical college student section. They were on their feet throughout the game, jumping and slapping hands on every basket, and extremely vocal.

At one particular time, they got too vocal. After one of our players made a shot, a racist comment was shouted out from their student section. It was so offensive that it is not fit to be reprinted here.

No matter how unruly we get here at Dana, I have never once heard a racist remark from our crowd. I don't care how rowdy our fans get at the games, I will never be as offended as I was at Concordia. It was uncalled for.

So, since Saturday's game with Concordia is our last game of the season, I would like to urge everyone to attend and show our school spirit. I would also like a large attendance since, after Friday's racist comment by Concordia, I let Concordia's student section know that they were more than welcome to attend Saturday's game. Since we now have to control our emotions and actions at the games, I'm sure Concordia will enjoy our hospitality. Go get 'em Tig, J. J., Fasbender, "Money," Collins, "Life Science," Ruff, "Moose," Mendoza, and Prosocki. Thanks for a great season.

I finally had the opportunity to watch one of the outstanding movies of all time, "Schindler's List." I have spent hours wading through the materials appearing in various magazines, reviews and papers. Frequently, I have put myself in lengthy discussions with different individuals as each one of us attempted to analyze the drama. I cannot resist offering a few comments.

There is no doubt that the discussion can take different modes of discourse. A friend of mine and others have taken the position that Spielberg ought to have developed the Jews more so that we have some dramatic attachment to these characters and feel their deaths more deeply.

Let me add my voice to those who disagree. There was considerable development of those characters over the course of an already long movie. We got to know these people in much the way Schindler might have, through an accretion of brief encounters. By the end of the film, we recognize most of the characters when they pass by with their real-life counterparts.

Spielberg has said that he didn't want to reduce the Holocaust to the story of eight Jews for Krakow, and this seems to me to be a reasonable choice for him to make about how to tell this story. The stories of particular individuals have been told well many times in "The Diary of Anne Frank," Art Spiegelman's "Maus" and "Shoah" to name a few. All of those stories and "Schindler's List" prompt the question: how can civilized culture and otherwise seemingly decent people permit such atrocities? This story is a different one because it presents a new conundrum: how is it that the same set of extraordinary circumstances can bring out the cruellest in one ordinary, flawed man, Goeth, and the best in another ordinary, flawed man, Schindler? Spielberg need not show the life story of each of the Schindlerjuden to tell that story.

Although I accept the premise that there was inadequate development of the Schindlerjuden, I disagree that without those life stories there is not enough drama. Think of the following photos and footage from history: anonymous cops turning dogs and hoses on anonymous civil rights marchers in the early sixties; the anonymous South Vietnamese officer with his gun to the head of an anonymous prisoner; the naked nine-year-old Kim Phuc, then anonymous, running from the napalm attack of her village; and the anonymous lone Chinese dissident refusing to move in front of a tank in Tiananmen Square. When we first saw these images, we knew next to nothing about the individuals captured on film. The actions themselves were the essence of drama. So it is with the horrors perpetrated upon the Jews in "Schindler's List."

The last sequence showing the Schindler survivors had quite an effect on me, since it brought home how very real the events and people had been. What had been a movie about a past that seemed unreal became very real and effects very much in the present. What I felt during that sequence was unusual for me. It was like an uncontrollable grief over someone close to me who had died and added to by the joy that someone else I knew had survived. That one otherwise mediocre man could make such a difference also got to me.

Although the movie is based historical events, human brutality is still present today in different modes of existence throughout the world. It is a challenge to watch "Schindler's List," and I urge you to take this challenge.

Many seniors find student teaching rewarding

KRIS FLACK REPORTER

Many seniors spent most of last semester and interim participated in the student teaching block of the education program.

Shelli Wiebelhaus taught at three schools: Blair-West (kindergarten), Elkhorn High School (special education) and Elkhorn-Skyline Elementary (special education).

Her best experience was when she was teaching her kindergartners how to cut a free hand circle. One of the boys cut decided to his hair instead.

Her favorite part was seeing so many different teaching methods and bringing her own file for future use.

"The worst part was leaving each school and the stress from Mrs. Mac's visits!" said Wiebelhaus.

As for the future, her ideal situation would be to teach kindergarten anywhere in Nebraska preferably in a smaller town. Realistically, Wiebelhaus would like to teach in any elementary situation, regular or special education, in Nebraska in a medium to small school.

Meanwhile, Chad Van Zante was in Iowa teaching at Thomas Jefferson High School in Council Bluffs. He felt that "the education department here (at Dana) definitely prepared me for student teaching. We're right up there on the edge of current trends and theories."

He was most surprised when one of his students offered to sell him acid.

The best part of his experience was that it was a great confidence builder.

He was able to use the things he learned in classes and it showed him that they were really worth taking.

Van Zante realized that there is a great deal of stress and pressure involved in teaching.

"You know that if you mess up, that's it!" he said. The worst part was the feeling that everything that had to be done, had to be right, because he wouldn't want to let the students down.

Tammy Hoyer taught for 12 weeks at Westside High School in Omaha. She unexpectedly had to teach class by herself on her first day because her cooperating teacher was sick.

"I had a good experience overall," Hoyer said. She thought it was great when a student would tell her that she did a good job of explaining something and show that she was appreciated.

She is getting married May 29. Her fiance will be finishing his education at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and therefore, she hopes to get a job in the Lincoln area.

Tonya Hauser student taught at Bennington Elementary, Arlington Elementary and Westside Junior High.

"You can't imagine the impact that you can have on the various ages of students in the short time you are there. Looking back, there were many situations I learned much more than could ever be explained in a text book," Hauser commented.

She had to use her instincts when two students were involved in serious fights. The teacher was in a conference, so Hauser was left to deal with them.

Having to leave was the hardest thing to do. "Seeing the students upset and sad that you were no longer going to be there for them socially and academically everyday, was the worst part," Hauser added.

After graduation, she would like to work in a hospital setting with terminally ill children within the Omaha area.

She hopes to move to Kansas the following year and apply to graduate school or get a degree in counseling.

March 27 on the mainstage. Student tickets for Friday and Saturday are $9 and the student weekday tickets are $7.

Dana College Chorale will perform "Elijah" February 27 in Omaha

HEIDI GERTH AND SCOTT DUGDALE REPORTERS

On February 27, the Dana College Chorale under the direction of Dr. Richard Palmer will perform "Elijah."

It will be a shared event with the Nebraska Choral Art Society and the Lincoln Orchestra Association under the direction of Dr. Z. Randal Stroope.

Mendelssohn's "Elijah" was written in 1845. It is a biblical oratorio, a choral work performed without action or scenery. "Elijah" contains two stories, one battling good and evil, and the second, an ascension into heaven by the way of a flaming chariot.

Mendelssohn was asked to either be the guest conductor of the Bringham Music Festival or to write a new oratorio for this occasion.

Mendelssohn asked for the help of Julius Schubring to assist him in the translation from German to English for the new oratorio.

The premier performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah" took place August 26, 1845, to an overwhelming crowd of 2,000. The performance was a huge success. Eight numbers were encored during the performance.

Mendelssohn decided to revise the original "Elijah". The first performance of the new version occurred April 2, 1847.

Following the scheduled performances, Mendelssohn received word of his sister's death. The combination of his sister's death and the performances resulted in the deterioration of his health.

After his recovery, he returned to Leipzig, Germany, to complete the "Elijah" performance. After visiting the place of his sister's death, Mendelssohn canceled that performance. He died Nov. 4, 1847.

Playing the part of "Elijah" will be James Kleyla, a bass, from Rumford, R.I.

The Dana College Chorale will be a part of a 150 - 200 member chorus along with tenor, alto and soprano solos.

"Having the opportunity to perform such an intense masterpiece is thrilling. It is an honor to sing with the Nebraska Choral Arts Society and under the direction of Z. Randal Stroope," said Trista Witt, chorale secretary.

This is the second year the Dana College Chorale has been asked to perform with the Nebraska Choral Arts Society. Mendelssohn's "Elijah" will be performed at 3 p.m. Feb. 27 at the United Methodist Church in Omaha. For ticket information call 342-0565 or the Forum.

Local recycling center gets help from Dana community

MONICA PAUK NEWS EDITOR

On March 5 a group of faculty and students will go to the Washington County Recycling Center to help out with the effort. A group from Dana went to the center in the fall, and helped the center collect the recyclables.

The recycling center is located here in Blair, but collects recyclables for all of Washington County. The material is then taken to a central center to be distributed to companies that do the actual recycling. In the time that the recycling center has been in Blair, tons of glass, tin, and newspapers have been recycled, according to Mark Anderson, a Dana staff member and recycling center volunteer.

Dana tries to help the center twice a year on Saturdays from 8 a.m. until noon by unloading carloads and sorting the recyclables. The project is not sponsored by any organization but was first suggested by President and Mrs. Christopherson.

Many members of the Environmental Awareness Organization (EAO) attend, along with many faculty members. Anderson commented that in the fall the faculty accounted for more than 60 percent of all the people there.

Anderson said, "The people that show up have a commitment to make a difference, and the opportunity is open to all students and faculty on campus. This makes the campus visible in the community, and all who participate have fun helping out. Only seven people have signed up this far, and we need at least 25 to make this work."

Anybody who would like to help is encouraged to join in by calling Anderson at x. 7226, Sandra Wigdal at x. 7216, or Ann Christopherson at x. 7248, or by e-mail. The day is split up into two shifts, from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. or from 10 a.m. to noon.

Vikings sweep season series with Midland

NEAL ANTHONY
SPORTS REPORTER

The Vikes (15-15) picked up their second win of the season over the Warriors of Midland (12-13) Tuesday night in Fremont, outscoring their archrival, 91-75.

Thrashing of Midland

Dana raced out to a quick 4-0 lead with two easy buckets by freshman Nathan Babbitt and never looked back. Commanded by a strong inside game by Scott Wilty and Chris Tignor and outside accuracy by Rob Coursey, Dana controlled the contest from the outset, and led 47-37 at the half.

The Vikes outshot and outplayed the Warriors in the second half as well, leading by as many as 19 points with 4:54 left in the game. The cruise control was set, and Dana sailed to its 15th victory overall.

High point men for the Vikes were Coursey and Babbitt with 23 and 21 points, respectively. Tignor led Dana with six boards, while Babbitt and Nick Prososki each added five. Prososki and Coursey each contributed four assists in the shellacking of Midland.

Dana's next game will be at home against Concordia College of Seward Saturday with a tip-off time at 7:30 p.m. Saturday will be Parents' Night and Fan Appreciation Night at Borup Coliseum.

NIAC playoff race

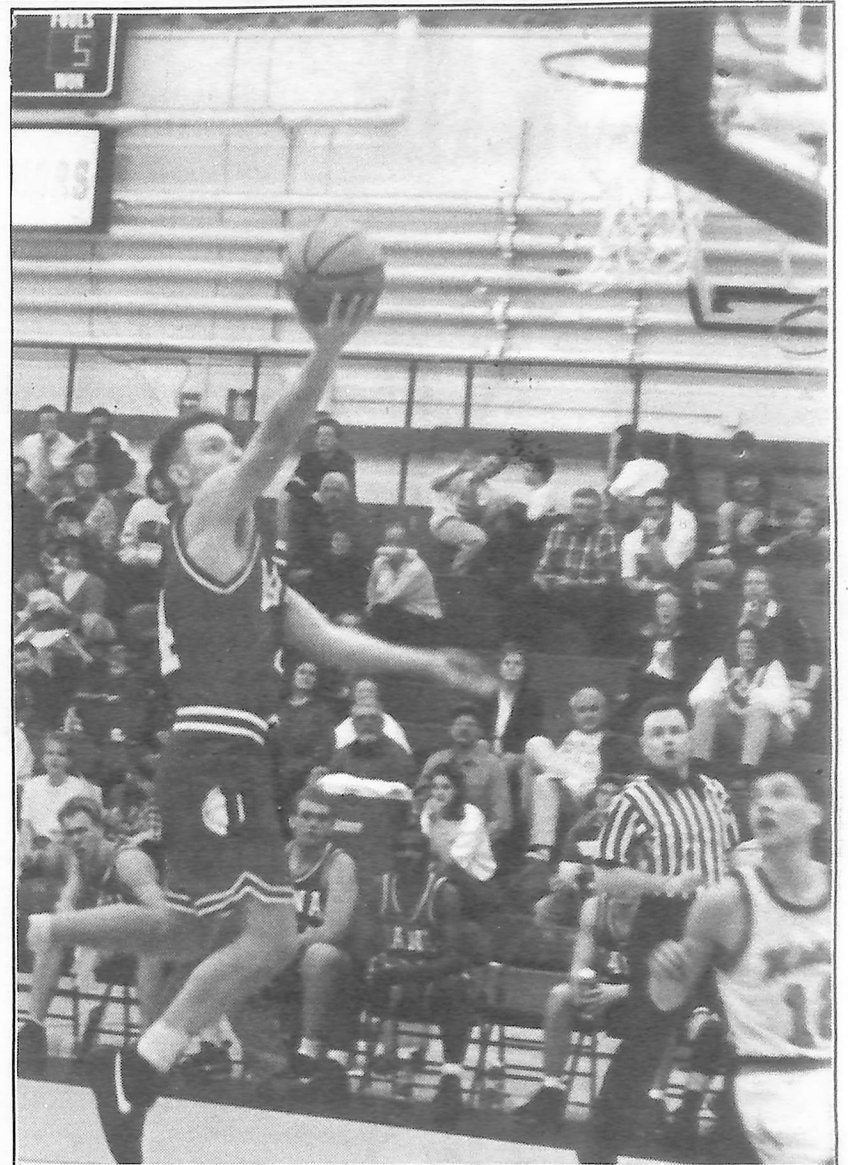

The Nebraska-Iowa Athletic Conference (NIAC) playoff field is down to five teams. Hastings has been removed from the conference playoffs because of sanctions handed down by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA). Nebraska Wesleyan is an NCAA Division III team for basketball so they will not play in the NIAC playoffs.

Northwestern and Doane will be seeded number one and two in the tournament. The Vikings are currently seeded third and Concordia is fourth. Midland will take the fifth seed.

The Viking game with Concordia on Saturday will determine the final playoff seedings. The winner will claim the third seed while the loser will take the fourth seed.

If the Vikings lose to Concordia, they will host Midland on Feb. 23 in the only first-round game. If they beat Concordia, the Vikings will travel to Doane on Feb. 26 in second round action. Here are the possible NIAC playoff match-ups:

Wrestlers finish third in tourney

SHAD BEAM
SPORTS REPORTER

The Viking wrestling team finished in third place in the Four-State Area Wrestling Tournament last Saturday in Blair. The Vikings finished behind national powers Lindenwood and Missouri Valley, while finishing ahead of Tri-State Conference champion Teikyo-Westmar.

Matt Mentink finished his senior season on a high note by winning the 177-pound weight class. Mentink won a 7-5 decision over Northwestern's Mike Rozeboom to capture first place. Mentink was the lone individual champion for the Vikings.

Three other Viking wrestlers finished second behind tough opponents from Lindenwood College. Danny Mattern lost a tough 12-4 decision at 118-pounds to Keith Ketchum. Scott Stickler, who was last weekend's outstanding wrestler at conference, lost a 17-5 decision to Rod Alton. First-year wrestler Mike Hadlock forfeited to Jon White due to injury at heavyweight.

The Vikings have qualified seven wrestlers for the national tournament. Chad Caskey, Andy Hensley, Stickler and Mattern qualified before the area tournament last weekend. Mentink qualified due to his first place finish. Dana was allowed to name two "wild card" wrestlers for the national tournament. Brent Johnson and T.C. Aguilar were chosen for the Vikings.

The National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics national tournament will be held March 4-5 in Butte, Mont.

Vikes beat York, lose to Concordia

CARRIE L. LARKINS
EDITOR IN CHIEF

"We're anxious to get back home," said Dana women's head coach Kathy Foley after two games on the road. The Vikings beat York College, 80-76, Saturday and fell to a strong Concordia team, 47-85, Tuesday.

"Basically we found a way to win against York," Foley said. Dana held only a two point lead at halftime. "We weren't playing well offensively."

The Vikings came out of the locker room with a mission. Dana increased their lead to 13 in the first four minutes of the second half and led by as much as 21. All 12 players on the traveling squad saw playing time for the Vikings.

"It was a true team victory," Foley said. First-year players Nicole Parrack, Taffy Forsen and Sara Howieson "came in and gave us some quality minutes."

Heidi Grappendorf led the Vikings with 23 points. Nichol Buening hit double figures with 16 and Karla Meyer put 15 points on the board.

Dana fell into a deficit early against the Concordia Bulldogs. The hot-handed Bulldogs downed nearly 50 percent of their shots overall, including those from three-point land.

Grappendorf had 18 points and four assists to lead Dana.

"Our players are handling things pretty well. They all hustle every game. It's hard to do considering the number of games we lost," Foley said.

Two regular season games remain for the 6-18 Vikings. Tonight Dana faces Doane to finish their conference schedule. Dordt visits Borup Coliseum Monday night at 7:30 p.m. This game was previously scheduled for Tuesday.
