Raise in tuition, trash policy discussed at Student Senate

KRIS FLACK REPORTER

Student concerns, interim and next year's senate were a few of the topics of conversation at Wednesday's senate meeting.

New Policy

Greg Earhart, Mickelsen/Blair Hall director, was at the meeting to answer questions concerning the new alcohol/trash policy in those two halls.

Concerns were brought up at the last meeting about floor fines and how fair they were to all students.

Earhart wanted to clarify that the Resident Assistants were not going to dig through the trash to try and look for cans. If there is an overflow of cans coming from the trash chutes and/or trash cans, signs will be posted asking whoever made the mess to come forward and admit to it. If the responsible party comes forward, they will not receive an alcohol fine and it will not go on their record and there will be no fine given to the floor. However, if no one admits to the mess, a $25 fine will be assessed and divided between the residents of the floor or wing.

"It's only been three weeks since we've started this and I would say it's been a success so far," said Earhart. Only two messes have been found since the policy was implemented and in both cases the floor members were not fined because the responsible parties came forward.

Earhart said he wanted to stress that each situation will be dealt with on a case to case basis.

Interim

Dr. Paul Formo, Vice President of Academic Affairs, attended the meeting to obtain student input on the idea of deleting interim from the January curriculum after 1995.

Formo came away from the meeting with some of the student's feelings along with those he had already received from two discussions of the Forum Debate Series.

Students, overall, are grateful for their interim experiences. It has proven to be an excellent time to work on concentrations, internships, independent studies and to travel abroad. Athlete's can take advantage of the three-credit class to allow them to take a smaller amount of credits during their season.

Student Concerns

Two main student concerns were brought up at the meeting: the increase of tuition and student safety.

Many students have shown concern at the increase of tuition for next semester. President Kyle Herzog proposed that a letter be drafted to offer possible solutions to the problem which would then be given to President Christopherson. This will be discussed in more detail at the next meeting.

The second concern was brought up by senior senator Stan Shaw. With the security issues that have been brought up in the last few weeks, some students don't feel safe.

Senior senator Shawn Osbahr brought up that not only do the students not feel safe on campus, but also walking through town. There reportedly have been times when Dana students have been attacked, verbally and physically, by Blair High School students when walking from a business to their car.

Shaw is heading a committee to look into the matter.

Food Service

Senate is working on two events with Rob Krumm, director of food service, in April.

Baseballs and baseball cards will be handed out as prizes at a barbecue during the Dana-Midland softball game April 20.

On April 27 Dana will try to break the Guinness world record for the longest submarine sandwich. This will be an all-day event to build the 300 plus foot sandwich and then serve it for dinner that night. Prizes will be given out to people who help build the most.

Senate Elections

The executive board for 1994-95 will consist of Jim Plasek-president; Brent Johnson-vice president; Libby Hansen-treasurer; and Amy Beebout-secretary. Class senator election applications are due today and elections will be Wednesday.

Some other general topics discussed included the success of the book-a-thon, the upcoming leadership conference on campus, graduation requirements and faculty/staff appreciation.

Plasek brings enthusiasm to Senate

JON RADEMACHER REPORTER

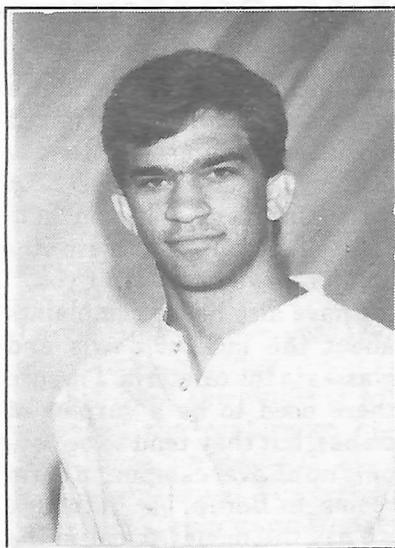

"I'm excited to be president. I'm looking forward to taking over the job, and I don't see myself losing enthusiasm as the year progresses."

New Student Senate President Jim Plasek has already set several goals for next year's group. "I really want to get students more involved in Student Senate. The meetings that I've been to haven't had time set aside for student concerns, and I'd like to [do that] at every meeting for those to be addressed."

Plasek, a junior biology major from David City, feels that proposed house system will be an advantage to the student body.

"It's a means to get this campus more involved, and as Dan [Travaille, Vice President for Student Development] put it, more interconnected. It'll get people excited about being at Dana, and it's a great way to do it. I think getting that set up for next year is something I want to see happen."

When asked about why he decided to run for the position of president, Plasek said: "The job offers some interesting challenges for me, especially in dealing with people. There's some public speaking involved, and I'm looking forward to that."

"It's a position I've never been in before. The group needed a leader, and I thought I'd be good at the job. I wanted to do it."

Plasek feels his biggest challenge as president will be "to get student senators motivated." He points out that it's an unpaid position of serving other people and that the work isn't very glamorous.

He hopes to lead by example, however, saying, "If I'm excited about being president, about being a senator, maybe people will look at me and think, 'Well, if he's excited about it, then maybe I should be, too.'"

A motorcycle fanatic, Plasek says he enjoys "sitting around waiting for summer, so I can ride my bike! I'm going crazy!" In his spare time, he likes to play racquetball and was a member of the Dana tennis team last year.

While at Dana Plasek has also been active in the theater, performing in six productions thus far. His favorite role was that of Orin, the sadistic dentist, in last year's "Little Shop of Horrors."

Several years of school are in Plasek's future, as he continues to pursue a career in medical research.

Last summer, he spent eight weeks at the University of Iowa doing research in genetic engineering.

For the Senate to be successful, Plasek says it needs the input of the students. "If we don't hear from you, we can't do anything about what you want. You say Student Senate doesn't do anything. Well, tell us what you want and we'll do our best! I think that's going to be important over the next year."

"If any students have concerns, our numbers are in the books. I've got an answering machine; if I'm not here, leave a message and I will be overjoyed to deal with your student concerns."

"I think that's going to be one of the major themes of the coming year, focusing more on the students and their concerns."

Jeff Rademacher

Concerns over Whitewater

SHAWN OSBAHR
EDITORIALIST

Now that the Whitewater mess has materialized, one has to wonder why Bill Clinton is still ducking questions regarding this issue. He claims his innocence and defends his wife of any wrongdoing. If everyone is so clean in this ordeal, then why not just come out and answer the questions that need to be answered?

The Clinton administration is desperately trying to divert the public's attention away from the Whitewater controversy. They blame this on the Republicans and say they are just trying to stall the health care issue.

They claim that this is too costly to investigate and that it will be coming from the tax payers' pockets. They stress the question of whether or not the public wants to spend their tax dollars in this manner.

If they would just come out and tell the truth, quit shredding documents, and holding secret meetings, this could all be over very quickly.

So, what exactly could the Clintons be trying to hide? The Clintons were partners in the Whitewater real estate deal with James B. McDougal, who was the head of the Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan. There are questions here regarding the funneling of money between the two entities.

McDougal has been accused of improperly diverting money from Madison to prop up Whitewater or benefit the Clintons. Another question is: Was Madison used to convert Clinton campaign funds to personal funds for the then governor?

There is also a number of questions regarding the death of Vincent W. Foster, who was Deputy White House council. He was a close friend and former law partner of Hillary. He also managed the Clintons' legal problems relating to Whitewater.

EDITORIAL

There is now an investigation into his suicide and his reasons for taking an early out. There are questions regarding the details of his suicide and also some concern about his suicide note. In the note there was a part stating that no one will ever believe that the Clintons are innocent.

Still in relation to Foster, there is a report that Mrs. Clinton's law firm recently shredded files from Foster's law office. Another shady area is the fact that Bernard Nussbaum, his boss, removed Whitewater records from Foster's office before investigators were allowed into the office. Nussbaum was forced to resign last week after his participation in treasury-White House meetings on Madison.

Now the FBI has delivered subpoenas to six senior White House staff members and three Treasury Department officials. Also, the Banking Committee has released a list of 40 Whitewater witnesses they want to call before a March 24 meeting. I would suggest that they keep a close watch on these people so that they don't mysteriously check out early.

Clinton has ordered staff members to cooperate fully with the special investigators. But, he has avoided straight forward answers to questions involving ethical matters.

I think Clinton knows he is in trouble and is just trying to stall. If he truly has nothing to hide, then why is he running away from this? We've known from the start that this guy was unethical, but what about criminal?

We will know soon enough as this investigation unfolds. Or will we? He is the highest ranking official in the nation. Will this power be used to keep the mouths shut of the people who know the most? No one wants to end up like Vincent W. Foster.

Piece by piece

by Carrie L. Larkins

Stop the rumors. Stop the hate.

Dana prides itself on the sense of community one feels here. Everyone knows everyone else and supposedly an element of caring goes along with that. The past few weeks, however, have destroyed Dana's community ideal in my eyes.

A frightening degree of homophobia has swept the Dana campus. Rumors are running rapid about the sexual orientation of certain groups and individuals.

A few years ago, because of my conservative upbringing, I probably would have taken part in the assumptions and joke telling about homosexuals.

Since then, a female friend of mine "came out of the closet" to me. I had the choice at that point to stick to my ignorant ideals and rebuke her or to accept her for the friend she was to me and continue our friendship. I did the latter.

It simply isn't anyone's business. A person's sexual preference is not public information anymore than their religious or political affiliation. On the other hand, this information is not a "bad thing" that needs to be kept secret unless the individual chooses to do so. Each person should be given the choice, not have it decided for them.

Assumptions based on appearance, acquaintances and stereotypes ideally should never be made. Initial judgments are natural but these unfounded ideas should not be discussed.

Our society is working to stop racial prejudices but no one seems to care about sexual prejudices. All prejudices need to stop before they start.

I was hesitant to write this article because of the new rumors that might begin with my name included. I decided to take the risk because the issue needs to be addressed.

The Dana community should provide an environment in which all people should be able to be as open as they choose to be, not a rumor mill where assumptions are made and people are intentionally hurt.

Letter to the editor

Dear Editor:

I have been hearing numerous complaints lately concerning Dana's food service and the condition of the cafeteria. While I find myself agreeing with some of them, there are others that I feel strongly against. This concern is not directed towards the people who work for food service; this is directed at the students.

The cafeteria is a resource for the students and, before we list complaints against the system, we should help contribute to making it a more desirable place to eat.

I am so tired of seeing people taking more food than any average person can possible eat. They just to let it sit on their plate for an hour and then end up throwing it away. What is the point of taking food that you know you don't like and you are not going to eat? If you haven't tried it before and then decide you don't like it, fine. But, if you didn't like it the last time you tried it, most likely, it's not going to taste any different this time. Take what you know you are going to eat.

Secondly, the salad bar is something I am grateful for at dinner. If there is nothing that sounds appetizing on the menu, I know that I can always have a salad. But, when I walk over there and see ketchup in the mayonnaise and croutons and pickles mixed in with everything else, I tend to lose my appetite. Please be a little careful of how you help yourself, because there are others that have to eat after you.

I have also heard complaints about the lack of bowls and glasses in the cafeteria. I'm sure there used to be a surplus of dishes, but they tend to be popping up all over campus; in dorm rooms, in Borup, etc. Although we pay the money to eat in the cafeteria, that money does not give us the privilege to take the food or dishes home with us.

Lastly, I would like to touch on the few of us who feel that we are here to be waited on at meals. The cafeteria is not a restaurant, as I'm sure many people will agree. So, that means that the people who work for food services do not get paid to clean up our mess. It is our responsibility to take our trays back to the kitchen and not leave them on the tables. If you are too lazy to do this, maybe you are eating too much and need the exercise anyway.

This also includes not leaving food, napkins, dishes and glasses on the table after you leave. Unless you are abnormally messy, you don't need to take a stack of napkins at each meal. For most people, two or three, suffice nicely.

So, in respect to the criticism that has been directed toward food service in the past few weeks (which I am not saying is true or false) please start things with yourself. If you need to think of it in other terms, try this: Would you leave that kind of mess at your own house? If you would, well, you're in college now. It's time to grow up and learn to take care yourself!

New Forum exhibit is on African and Asian cultures

VIVIAN YANG REPORTER

The new Forum exhibit provides an opportunity for Dana students to experience African and Asian culture.

The exhibit displays 30 fabrics, 50 sculptures, paintings and paper cut. Most of them are from Malawi in southeast Africa and China.

Jeanmarie Nielsen, director of The Forum and adjunct instructor of music, said that these items were donated by Dr. Leo Kirchoff, a distinguished Dana alumnus.

Dr. Kirchoff graduated from Dana with a B. S. in education and a major in business administration in 1960. Since 1968 he has been the associate professor of education at California State University at Chico. In the 1970's he taught as a National Education Association Teacher Corps volunteer and chairman of the Elementary Curriculum team at Haile Selassie University at Addis, Ethiopia and Tansen, Nepal. Dr. Kirchoff also traveled extensively in Europe, Mexico, Canada, Kenya, Brazil, Argentina, India, Afghanistan, Russia, Thailand, Japan and Hong Kong.

According to senior art education major Karl Hermanson, who did the display work a week ago, Dr. Kirchoff purchased the exhibited items when he taught in Malawi and China. He donated his collection to Dana College before he left to teach for UNESCO (United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization). Professor James Olsen went to California in February to pick them up.

The exhibit will continue through March and April as more items from Dr. Kirchoff's collection arrive from California.

Event credit will be offered beginning on Monday. Students should expect to spend 20-30 minutes viewing and reading about the exhibit. There is a short written exercise that will need to be completed on this exhibit in order to receive event credit.

H.O.P.E. Organization presented workshops on helping minorities in college

MONICA PAUK

NEWS EDITOR

The Helping our People Expand (H.O.P.E.) organization recently attended a two-day conference on helping minority students cope with attending a predominantly white college. The conference was held at the University of Missouri at Columbia Feb. 18 and 19.

Ten people from Dana attended the conference under the leadership of the organization's president Jeff Kemp.

Those in attendance were Alvin Finderson, director of multicultural education, Jason Kemp, Peter Colthirst, Amy Fonder, Martin Hipondoka, Josephine Larvie, Abbey Terefe, Jose Lima and Kempton Turner.

Last week the students who attended the conference held workshops on campus about what they learned. The sessions were held Tuesday and Wednesday in the Linden Room.

Tuesday's workshop focused on interracial relationships. This discussion dealt with minority students dating on a predominantly white campus.

Dan Bane, advisor of the International Student Organization, attended two of the workshops including the one on interracial relationships and said, "I felt pretty good about it and I think that it was long overdue."

Dan Travaille, Vice President of Student Development, also attended the first workshop and felt that, "It was a very good session and the topic was very worthwhile. I wish that more people could have attended to talk in the discussion."

"I think that it was a very good effort by the H.O.P.E. organization, and maybe more organizations can get involved."

The second workshop held on Tuesday was on facts and figures, dealing with black history and minorities in America.

Reginald Gilbert attended this workshop and said, "I found out African Americans knew a lot about medicine in the past, and that I found very interesting because you don't hear a lot about that now. I thought that the group interaction was very positive."

The third workshop was held on Thursday and was an open forum discussion.

Paul Formo, Vice President of Academic Affairs and Dean of the College, attended the session and said, "I thought that it was very positive, and the dialog was very good. I wish that I could have gone to more than the one I did."

The final workshop dealt with strategies that minorities can use to cope with living on and attending classes at a predominantly white school.

Michael Ostrom, campus pastor, attended all four sessions and said he felt like he got a lot out of them. "I felt the frustration and the anger that is felt by the blacks in attendance, especially the black men. It is obvious that at Dana we are not integrating as we should, and we aren't communicating like we should especially with the black athletes."

"I sensed a lack of interest by white students to realize what the black student is faced with. The culture between the students at Dana is vastly different and we don't take that into account as often as we should. We expect them to integrate with our society and we don't honor them and their life and we don't try to learn from them."

Dana Community encouraged to give blood at Red Cross blood drive

LISA WELCH

Give a Life, Give Blood

Each week in the Midwest the Red Cross must collect 2,000 units of blood, a unit equaling one pint. Blood collected by the Red Cross helps meet regional needs for accidents and surgeries. The blood is also used to help support the nationwide American Red Cross system. Help meet the need for blood by giving March 15 in the Argo lobby from 9 a.m. - 3 p.m.

Concerned....

If you are afraid of needles you can relax just a little. Red Cross nurses are trained to help you through your fears and nervousness. Remember, you have the power to decide which is more powerful, the fear of needles or the chance to help save another person's life.

Are you afraid of getting AIDS if you give blood? All needles used by the Red Cross are sterile and discarded after each donor.

Only certain medications exclude you from giving blood. Check with the Red Cross, you may still be able to participate.

Before you give blood the Red Cross will give you a brief physical and take a sample of your blood. They are able to tell you if you are anemic or not healthy at this time. You must continue to check with the Red Cross to see if you are eligible. You may have been turned down before, but you may be able to donate now.

All blood types are needed even type O, the most common blood type in the Midwest.

You may have given blood recently. The Red Cross states you are eligible to donate whole blood or plasma every 56 days and platelets every 14 days.

If you are waiting for an emergency to occur before giving blood, you may be too late. Every minute in the United States we use more than 38 units of blood and blood products.

"Why do you give blood?"

Here's what several Dana student donors had to say about giving blood.

Kate Kennedy stated, "After my dad had heart surgery and received blood transfusions, I realized how important it was to give."

Rochelle DuFresne commented, "I would find it hypocritical going into the medical field if I didn't give blood myself. Also, one of my friends was in a car accident and would have died had they not received the transfusion they needed."

"I'm O negative a rarer blood type, and they are always looking for it," said Carol Haussermann, assistant professor of physical education.

Kris Flack remarked, "My dad had heart surgery and is on medication. He's no longer allowed to give blood, so he passed the responsibility on to me."

A comment from Dana President Myrvin Christopherson, "I give blood whenever I can, and I would urge all members of the Dana community to participate if at all possible. Giving blood is a way to allow the people at Dana to be leaders and give something back to the community, for all they have given us."

SHORTLY...

Talent Night application forms due March 25

Student Senate and KDCV are sponsoring Talent Night on April 9. Applications are available in the switchboard, and are due March 25 at 5 p.m. The two categories are lip sync and real talent.

Pitch Tournament to be held

On Tuesday there will be a pitch tournament at 7 p.m. in the Dragon's Head. It is sponsored by RHA and prizes will be awarded to the winners.

Tentmakers Youth Ministry comes to Dana today

The Tentmakers Youth Ministry is coming to Dana today from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. to visit students interested in working with their organization. This is an inter-denomination ministry with salaried positions available throughout the Midwest. Contact Career Services in PM-301 for more information.

Discover the Faroes to be held on campus

Everybody is invited to attend Discover the Faroes with Roi Patursson, the winner of the Scandinavia's Pulitzer Prize on Tuesday. At 3:30 p.m. in the Forum on Tuesday he will read his award winning poetry and then at 7:30 p.m. he will present Discover the Faroes, in Trinity Chapel.

Softball team goes undefeated in Pittsburg State tournament

ROBERT BOYD
SPORTS EDITOR

The Dana College softball team opened their season with a 3-0 record at the Pittsburg State round-robin tournament in Pittsburg, Kan. Saturday.

The Vikings routed Lincoln, Mo. in the opening game 7-0 and came from behind to win, 7-6, over Kansas Wesleyan in their second contest. Then in the final game of the tournament the Vikings shutout the host team and the number 15 ranked team in the NCAA Division II polls, Pittsburg State 4-0.

Vikings 7, Lincoln 0

The Vikings opened the tournament by blanking Lincoln 7-0 in an abbreviated five inning game.

Sonia Farwell and Melinda Martinez spurred a three-run second inning with back-to-back RBI base hits. Centerfielder Michelle Wheatley scored on a three-base error in the third inning to make the score 4-0. The Vikings added two runs in the fourth and one in the fifth to secure the victory.

Heather Olsen, last year's Nebraska-Iowa Athletic Conference (NIAC) Pitcher-of-the-Year, pitched four scoreless innings while giving up only two hits. She struck out six batters and walked four in her first victory of the season. Relief pitcher Carly Hembry struck out two batters in one inning of work.

Vikings 7

Kansas Wesleyan 6

The Vikings opened the game with a 3-0 lead through three innings. Then Kansas Wesleyan scored one run in the top of the fifth and five runs in the sixth to explode to a 6-3 lead.

The Vikings added two runs in the bottom of the sixth when first baseman Laura Morrison doubled in a run and Farwell singled and scored to make it 6-5.

Karri Roberts led-off the Vikings seventh inning with a single. Then third baseman Courtney Leyba doubled in Roberts to tie the score at six. Kim Glass delivered the game-winning hit when she singled in Leyba to give the Vikings the 7-6 victory.

Glass ended the game batting 4-4 with three RBIs. Relief pitcher Susie Chavez picked up her first win working 1 1/3 innings.

Vikings 4, Pittsburg State 0

Through the first four innings of the game, the Vikings' Olsen and Pittsburg State's top pitcher Renee Dunlap were locked in a scoreless pitcher's dual.

The Vikings finally got to Dunlap in the top of the fifth when Jennifer Loach singled in a run with the bases loaded and no outs. Later in the inning Martinez came through with a pinch-hit single to give Dana a 2-0 lead.

In the Viking sixth inning, Wheatley scored on a passed ball and Farwell drove in the final Viking run to make the score 4-0.

Olsen dominated Pittsburg State in the sixth and the seventh innings for her second victory in the same day. She gave up six hits, struck out nine batters and walked one.

Soccer club competes in Thunderdome

SHAD BEAM

SPORTS REPORTER

The Dana College soccer club ventured into unknown territory last weekend. The club participated in the 28-team, third annual Teikyo-Westmar Thunderdome Soccer tournament. Thunderdome is a form of indoor soccer played on a basketball court with walls enclosing the playing field.

The Vikings came home winless from the tournament. The loss was an 8-3 set back against the varsity squad from Benedictine College. Ghana Gurung scored the first two goals for Dana in the tournament. Derrick Weyand and Tony Haney were credited with assists on the goals. Joe Leonard took a rebound from the back wall and tallied the third goal for Dana. Goalkeeper Shad Beam stopped 40 of 48 shots in the 24-minute game.

Dana defenseman Tim Havermann commented about the first game, "The speed that Thunderdome is played at is just incredible."

The draw did not get any better for Dana in the second round. Next up for the Vikings was Viberto College from Wisconsin. This team was a NAIA national semi-finalist during the fall outdoor season. The Vikings were shut out by the T-hawks 8-0.

The final game of the round robin for the Vikings came against a Teikyo club called the Great Magicians. The Vikings played a tough game, but the Magicians pulled out a 4-3 win. The Magicians were spotted four goals before Dana came alive in the second half. Weyand, Gurung and Jum'ah Al-Absy each scored goals in the half. Dana had several chances to tie the match up but could not put the ball in the back of the net.
