Seniors sanctioned for breaking and entering

KRIS FLACK REPORTER

Dana seniors, Binay Manandhar and Kyle Herzog, were found in violation of campus policy Feb. 26 when they entered the Career Services office after tripping the latch.

According to Dan Travaille, Vice President for Student Development, the definition in the Dana College Survival Guide of "breaking and entering" is broad. He said the two students did, however, by-pass the lock and enter the area without permission.

This is the first event of this kind brought before Travaille in his nine years as Vice President for Student Development at Dana. There was no apparent damage to the property, and he felt that the two did not intend to bring harm to anyone or anything. From his perspective, Manandhar and Herzog just made a poor decision.

He feels that this incident is unique and has applied sanctions other than those "prescribed" by the Survival Guide. They include a written letter of apology to Mary Jo Kubie, Director of Career Services, and 10 hours of community service. Manandhar and Herzog are free to file an appeal to the situation.

According to Manandhar, he is busy with classes and work and often unable to get over to the office during open hours. He called Kubie asking if she could let him into the office. She said she was unable to get there on Saturday but he could come up Tuesday night.

Manandhar talked to Herzog, who still had his key from when that office used to be the KDCV studio.

The two were unable to open the door with the key, but were able to trip the latch. Manandhar stayed until about 9 p.m. using the resources. A security guard came by to lock the building and told him to shut off the lights when he was done.

On Monday morning, Kubie realized that someone had been in the office. She found Manandhar's name in the computer's dictionary. She contacted Dr. Paul Formo, Vice President of Academic Affairs, and Bob Schmoll, Vice President for Business Affairs.

Kubie and Formo met with Manandhar March 2 and Formo explained to Manandhar that he could be expelled for his actions. Manandhar updated Herzog on the situation. Herzog met with Formo and confessed that he had helped Manandhar get into the office.

Kubie said when the office used to be in Rasmussen Hall, all confidential files were kept in a separate room that could be locked, leaving the other room available for students. Now she says it is not only an issue of her office, but the security of Pioneer Memorial.

Formo referred the case to Travaille who met with the two students and gave out the final sanctions.

Manandhar is concerned that he was forced to meet with Formo and Kubie, when they were handling the incident unprofessionally from the beginning. He feels they didn't have the authority to handle the incident and should have referred it to Travaille immediately.

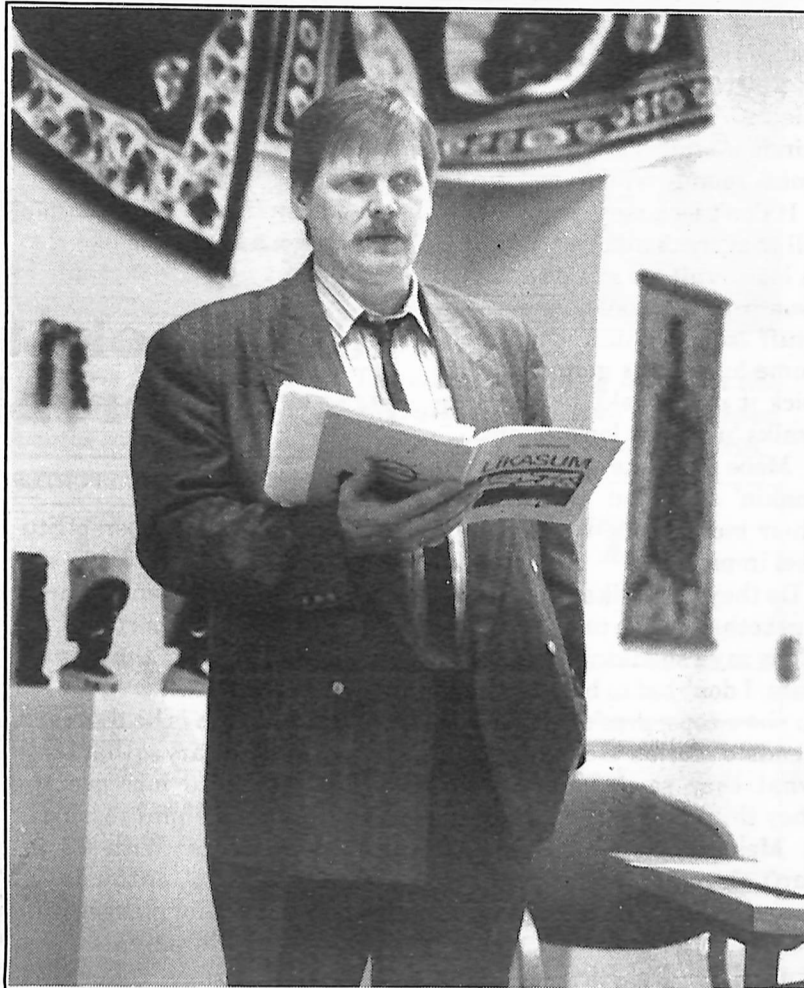

Herzog stated, "I think we're actually scapegoats for the real problem, the lack of availability of Career Services for students."

Kubie felt that the students need to understand that the extra hours that the faculty and staff put in for the students are not compensated for. They do it for the students' sake.

She also said that in the past two years $250 worth of resource books have turned up missing.

Formo stated, "It concerns me when anyone feels they can have authorized access behind locked doors." He sees it as a serious breach of security because of the confidential information that is contained in the office.

He said solutions for the problems of restricted hours have been looked into even before this incident occurred because students need access to the materials that are in the Career Services office.

Senate is vehicle for student concerns according to Johnson

JON RADEMACHER REPORTER

New Student Senate Vice President Brent Johnson says his main goal for next year is to make sure every student knows his or her Senate representatives.

"Students and their ideas get voiced a lot but to the wrong people," observes Johnson. "One of the main things we need to do is to let the student body know who the senators are. Once people realize who's on Student Senate, and it's [the senators] they can go to with problems, I think a lot of things can be changed for the better."

Johnson, a junior art education major from Denison, Iowa feels his easy-going personality will be an advantage for him.

"I can get along with almost anybody, so hopefully that's a strength that will help me."

He also notes that it's important for every senator to be unbiased when it comes to student concerns.

"I don't have to like or dislike a person to hear what they have to say. Even if I disagree with something, it's still something that's got to be brought up."

"Someone's complaint might not get heard or might get heard but not mentioned because the senator may not have the same viewpoint. You can't filter things through your own opinions."

A transfer from Iowa State, Johnson is also a member of the Dana wrestling squad and was one of seven to compete in the national tournament last weekend.

In his free time, which he notes is rapidly diminishing, Johnson likes to golf, fish, hunt and go to the beach. He's also a member of the Dana tennis team.

Anxious to begin work as the new vice president of Student Senate, Johnson also feels there's a time for work and a time for play.

"Study hard, but don't forget to take time off, too," he says. "That's something I believe in ... big-time!"

Editorialist finds littering a problem

It's been a while. But I gotta say somethin' 'bout people throwin' stuff around. I been noticin' for some years how people in cars jes' throw stuff out the winda. It lan's on grass, in the ditch 'n on sidewalks.

Bottles, beer cans, pop cans, pieces o' paper, sig'ret butts--all kinds o' stuff. Then I see others goin' 'round tryin' to pick up.

It don't look very good to have all that trash all over the place. A lot o' stuff too at Dana. I been wondrin' if people who throw stuff 'round think that mebe some 'un else is gonna have to pick it up to make lawns, sidewalks 'n streets look decent.

Mebe they like to think 'bout makin' some 'un else pick up their mess. Mebe it makes 'em feel important.

Do they think like this? "Look, I get other people to work for me. Cops say I shouldn't do it. I don' care. I don' haf to be good. I like to show cops, pres'dents, deans, heads o' dorms I don' haffa do what they say." Is that what they think?

Mebe they jes' don' think. I can't figger it out. It just don' make sense. But as I said some people do go 'round 'n pick up stuff. I see Dr. Rich do that a lotta times. He jes' seems to do it. He don' complain. He jes' picks up stuff - cans, bottles, pieces o' paper.

I ofen tho't, "Wun't it be a lot easier if people jes' din't throw stuff 'roun that way. Sidewalks, lawns 'n streets wud look a lot nicer. Don' it bother ya that ya might make some 'un else pick it up?"

Some 'un tol' me 'bout the gold rule. It goes somethin' like this: "Do the way ya 'spect people to do to you." Wud you like if people threw their dirty stuff in the room where you sleep?"

But when I think 'bout it, I ask myself, "Do I make people do somethin' they wun't have to do if I was more careful?"

'N I think o' a lotta times when I do things that make a lotta extra work for other people. Then I think, "Why do I do that?" I don' know. I guess I jes' don' think. 'N that's bad.

1994 Bookathon yields record breaking success

MARY BRUNS REPORTER

From March 6-8, members of Student Senate and other Dana students spent their evenings helping round up support for the Dana library with the annual Bookathon.

The Bookathon is held to raise funds for the library so that Dana may continue to increase the "holdings," or helpful resources for the students. With 23 involved students' enthusiasm, calls were made for pledges from current students' parents. Even though sometimes college expenses may leave a dent in the checkbook, the parents were willing to help out this worthy cause. No matter how big or small the amount, the donations were well appreciated, according to Ruth Henneman, assistant director of development who was in charge of the Bookathon.

Each year for 10 years around $4,000 has been received from supportive parents during the Bookathon. In this, the eleventh year, over $6,000 of funds were raised, and this set a new record of generosity.

Henneman said, "We appreciate the generosity of the parents constantly giving their undying support to better the resources available, such as the library here at Dana. With special thanks to the talented group of people here at Dana that volunteered to take time out of their busy school schedules to raise funds to increase the advantages the library provides."

Watch out for senioritis

The countdown begins... Sixty-four days until graduation. Thirty-eight days of classes remain. Along with the spring-like weather of the past couple weeks, senioritis has set in across campus.

Two Dana seniors drove to Omaha Thursday at 6:30 a.m. to show "Rocket" of Sweet 98 their strange green body parts for St. Patrick's Day. My roommate and I have spent the past week completing a 1,000 piece McDonald's jigsaw puzzle.

Now wait a minute... I thought they said college seniors were supposed to be mature and responsible.

We're going to have to be mature and responsible for the rest of our lives. The next 64 days are the last of our youth.

Five of my best friends are getting married within the next seven months. Another close friend of mine had a baby boy last month. We're all growing up too fast.

Four years ago we all stepped onto this campus as apprehensive freshmen. In 64 days we will leave as apprehensive graduates.

Tomorrow I have my first job interview in Kimball. Questions run through my mind... Where exactly is Kimball? Am I ready to take on a real job in a strange town? My friends and family are all in eastern Nebraska. Do I want to go by myself way out to western Nebraska?

Each time senioritis strikes, reality hits me back in the face. My friends will once again speak of their weddings, apartments, school loans and future jobs.

I've always wanted to be on my own and start my career. Now that very fact looms 64 days away but a high school mentality of friends and parties seems so much easier to face.

Letter to the Editor

Students need to care about Dana

Dear Editor:

I have noticed that students here at Dana don't seem to understand their position here. There seems to be widespread apathy from the personal level to student government.

No one appears to comprehend the fact that we, as students, are paying Dana College not only to educate us, but to provide a comfortable living environment where learning can take place.

Lately students have been making this task more difficult. Students do not have any pride, that's what I think when I see some of the messes they leave, not only in Mickelsen and Blair, but Holling, the cafeteria and the rest of the campus.

Furthermore, students don't seem to care very much about other things happening around campus. I have not, as of yet, been approached as a student senator by other students.

Does anyone realize that Student Senate is here to address students' concerns? We, as students, have a voice, a very strong one, we are supporting this institution by paying tuition. Does anyone care that tuition is on the increase? There is so little communication between the student body and the Senate. I sincerely hope that next year the house system will become a means of communication.

The opportunity to be more in touch with the Senate in turn brings our concerns before the administration and the Regents. This was proved last year when the issue of intervisitation came up. We didn't get exactly what we wanted, but conditions did improve.

As long as this college exists and we pay tuition, we should be getting our money's worth!

Respectfully,
Austin Brown

Tennis season about to begin

SHAD BEAM REPORTER

The Dana men's and women's tennis season starts next week.

The women's tennis team is growing in numbers. Last season was the first-ever season for women's tennis at Dana College. The team finished third in the conference meet and fourth at the NAIA District 15 meet. The women are headed by returning conference champion Heidi Grappendorf. Grappendorf finished last season at 13-2 with her only losses coming to Jennifer Allison of St. Mary's.

Gina Jacobs, Steph Wilson and Stacy Spencer are returning letter winners for the Lady Vikings. First-year students Kristin Kultala, Nicole Planting, Nancy Coles, Jennifer Bradford, Sarah Peterson, Kristi Niemeier, J. Lynn Asher and Janet Reisdorff bring youth and depth to this season's squad.

The Dana men are rebuilding this season. The Vikings graduated five of their six varsity positions from last season. Returning this season to the Viking camp are Mike Kahle, Louis Navarro and Brent Johnson. Danny Mattern, Joe Domann, Shawn Osbahr and Mark Nielsen will round out the roster for the men.

The women host district power house St. Mary's Wednesday afternoon at the Blair High School. The men and women open conference play Thursday at Doane.

Residence Hall rules announced for Spring Break

On Friday March 25 lunch will be the last meal served before break begins. The Residence Halls close promptly at 10 a.m. on Saturday, March 26. The locks on the entrance doors to the halls will be changed so that residents may not re-enter the building.

Residents are reminded that before they leave they should check to see if all the windows are closed in their room, all curtains and blinds are closed, all trash has been emptied, light are turned off, and doors are locked. Residents should leave refrigerators and aquariums plugged in.

A staff member will enter your room after you leave to be certain these things have been completed.

The residence halls will open on Monday April 4, 1994 at 2 p.m.

Residents who need on-campus housing must sign up in the Student Development Office.

Spring planting coming up soon on campus

Sunday is the first day of spring. Along with warm sunny days comes the time to plant flowers and renovate the campus landscape. Tom Jackson of the Dana maintenance department would like to involve the students in that process this year.

"I would like to see the color. I would like to see the students take an interest in it," said Jackson. He thinks students, rather than faculty and staff members, should help decide how they would like the campus to look.

Jackson would like some student input on what flowers to plant and possible assistance in planting them. If student interest is shown, Jackson foresees implementing a competition between residence halls in future years to care for the plants around their hall.

Students can contact Jackson at the maintenance department, extension 7399.

Computer lab offers a scholarship search for students

Students interested in additional scholarship sources may want to take advantage of a computer-based scholarship software program now available in the Computer Lab of the Classroom Center. The software is being provided by the Financial Aid Office on a trial basis only and will be available until April 4. A single terminal will be made available, and can be identified by an easy to read sign.

To use the program, students first complete a short "personal profile form," available in the Computer Lab and the Financial Aid Office. The profile is used to gather information relevant to scholarships included in the software. After this information is entered on the computer, students receive a listing of various sources of financial aid for which they may be eligible.

As the Financial Aid Office is exploring the possibility of purchasing similar software, all students who use the program are asked to provide comments on a survey sheet attached to the profile form they complete. These comments will be used to help determine whether or not software will be purchased, and which particular program is considered "best."

UNO halts Dana's nine game winning streak

ROBERT BOYD
SPORTS EDITOR

The Dana College softball team suffered their first losses of the season Tuesday when the University of Nebraska at Omaha (UNO) swept the Vikings in a double-header at Westgate Field in Omaha.

The Vikings came into the twin bill fresh off a first-place showing in the Kansas Wesleyan Invitational Tournament in Salina, Kan. over the weekend. The Vikings won six games there and had a 9-0 record going into the UNO game.

UNO, ranked 13th nationally in NCAA Division II softball, beat the Vikings 2-1 in the first game and 6-4 in the second to drop the Vikings record to 9-2.

UNO 2, Dana 1

The game remained scoreless until the bottom of the third when UNO's Holly Voss crushed a pitch from Dana's ace-pitcher Heather Olsen over the left field fence to give UNO a 1-0 lead. UNO added another run in the inning to lead 2-0 after three complete innings.

The Vikings answered UNO in the top of the fourth when Karri Roberts doubled and was knocked in on an RBI single from sophomore Kim Glass. The Vikings had a shot to add more runs in the inning but a UNO double play ended the Viking rally.

UNO ended another Viking rally in the sixth when Laura Morrison came to bat with two outs and runners on first and second base. Morrison nailed the two-out pitch into center field, but pinch-runner Carly Hembry was thrown out at home as she tried to score from second to end the inning.

Despite the loss, Viking pitcher Olsen continued to pitch excellent softball. She allowed two earned runs in six innings of work against UNO. On the season, Olsen has a 5-1 record with a 0.67 ERA in 31 1/3 innings of work. Olsen struck out seven in the loss and has 45 strike outs on the season.

UNO 6, Dana 4

In game two, Viking pitchers could not stop UNO's Michala Lehotak. Lehotak drove in five RBIs off of two doubles.

Dana's Susie Chavez got into trouble early as UNO scored one run in the first inning and Lehotak hit a double to drive in two runs in the third to give UNO a 3-0 lead.

The Vikings got on the scoreboard in the fourth when Courtney Leyba drove a double into left-center field to score Michelle Wheatley. Leyba was stranded at third, but the Vikings only trailed 3-1.

In the fifth, Lehotak crushed a bases-loaded double to deep left field which scored three runs. UNO led 6-1 after five.

Dana finally got the bats rolling in the seventh. Glass, Sonia Farwell and Morrison opened the inning with singles to load the bases. Then Melinda Almand drove in the Vikings second run with an RBI single to cut the lead to 6-2.

With two outs, Roberts hit a two-run double to score pinch-runner Hembry and Almand to make it 6-4. UNO recorded its last out and escaped the late Viking rally.

Chavez (3-1) suffered her first loss of the season as she gave up four earned runs in six innings. She struck out three and walked three.

Next up

The Vikings will play their first home game today as they take on Morningside (Ia.) in a twin bill on Zimmerman Field at 5:30 p.m. Morningside is a NCAA Division II team. The Vikings are scheduled to play a twin bill at Concordia Tuesday and host one against Peru State Wednesday.

Baseball team opens season 1-3

ROBERT BOYD
SPORTS EDITOR

The Dana College baseball team opened their season with a double-header loss against the University of Nebraska at Omaha (UNO) Saturday and split a twin bill against Buena Vista College Wednesday.

The Vikings are 1-3 going into a double-header with Northwestern tomorrow at Peterson Field.

UNO blasts Dana

The Vikings opened the season on a bad note. UNO rolled over the Vikings 9-1 and 21-11 at the College World Series Park in Omaha.

In the opening game, UNO jumped out to a 6-0 lead after three innings. Dana got its lone run in the fourth when Dustin Wolfe singled in pinch-runner Tommy Pelzer. UNO continued to batter Viking pitching and scored three more runs to win 9-1.

The Viking starting pitcher was Chris Ulven (0-1). He only lasted two and 1/3 innings as he gave up six earned runs on four hits and four walks.

In the second game, Dana opened with a four-run first inning. Matt Rega led off with a walk and scored on a fielder's choice off the bat of Scott Mitchell. Wolfe scored on a passed ball to give Dana a 2-0 lead. Then Mitchell and Jeff Dydra scored on wild pitches to give Dana a 4-0 lead.

UNO answered by blasting starting pitcher Wolfe for nine earned runs in just 2/3 of the first inning. Wolfe gave up seven hits and three walks.

UNO continued to shell Dana pitching for the remainder of the game. Dana scored seven runs in the remainder of the game but it wasn't enough as they fell 21-11.

Vikes split twin bill

The Vikings took their lumps from UNO and split a twin bill in their home debut at Peterson Field against Buena Vista.

It took extra innings for Buena Vista to beat the Vikings in the opening game. Dana trailed 4-1 going into the bottom of the third when the Vikings exploded for three runs to tie the game. Both teams added a couple of runs in the fifth which knotted the game at six. Buena Vista finally got the winning RBI in eighth to win 7-6.

Rega led the Vikings with two hits and two runs scored. Yanta went one for five with an RBI. Jerome Williams went one for four with two RBIs and a double.

The Vikings edged out Buena Vista in the night-cap 4-3 in an abbreviated six inning game.

Dana scored in the bottom of the first when R.J. Ryan crossed the plate on a sacrifice fly by Yanta to give the Vikings a 1-0 lead.

Starting pitcher Wolfe gave up two runs in the second and third, but Dana gained the lead, 3-2, on a two-run single by Jeff Reiter in the fourth. Dana increased their lead to 4-2 when Dydra scored on a wild pitch in the fifth. Buena Vista scored a run in the sixth but the game was called because of darkness to give Dana their first win of the season.

Wolfe (1-1) won his first game by working six innings and allowing two earned runs. He struck out one and walked one.

Grapplers finish 22nd at NAIA national tourney

SHAD BEAM
SPORTS REPORTER

The Viking wrestling team traveled to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) national meet last week in Butte, Mont. The grapplers finished 22nd as a team in the tournament standings.

Senior Scott Stickler made the most of his fourth consecutive trip to nationals by earning All-American honors at the 142-pound weight class. Stickler went 3-2 at the national tournament.

He opened with a 3-2 decision over Dustin Berdahl of Dickinson State. In the quarterfinal, Stickler faced his old nemesis Rod Alton of Lindenwood, Kan. who had the number two seed in the tournament. Stickler avenged two losses earlier in the season by pulling out a 7-6 decision. The semifinals saw Stickler draw the number three seed, Rich Vasquez of Western Montana. Vasquez defeated Stickler 6-2 and went on to win the 142-pound championship.

Stickler then lost to Ross Hendrickson of Minnesota-Morris in the consolation semifinals 9-2. He bounced back to defeat Alton a second time in the tournament 2-1 to capture fifth place.

Two other wrestlers win matches

Chad Caskey and Andy Hensley each won a match at the national tournament. Caskey, 126-pounds, won his opening round match 9-6 over Joel Dutton of Wisconsin-Parkside. Next up for Caskey was number seven seeded Paul Pownall of Western Montana. Pownall came away with a 9-3 victory in the quarterfinal. Mike Pazdernik of Dickinson State ended Caskey's season by pinning him with 3:01 left in the final period.

Hensley, 158-pounds, faced Daryl Meyer of Teikyo-Westmar in the first round. Meyer came away with a 12-5 victory. Hensley then defeated Adam Scanlon of Central Washington 3-2 in the consolation first round. Scott Shipman of West Liberty ended Hensley's tournament run with a 12-5 decision.

Four other wrestlers participate

Matt Mentink, Danny Mattern, Brent Johnson and T.C. Aguilar also competed but all finished with an 0-2 record.

Western Montana and Southern Oregon tied for the team national championships for NAIA with 94.5 points for the tournament. Dana finished a distant 22nd with a total of 11 points.
