Volume 63

Our Little China Town...

It's not every day that a school the size of Dana gets the opportunity to be part of an international program. Thanks to President Christopherson's efforts though, Dana was able to welcome 19 Chinese students to study English on our campus. The effects of having such a large number of Chinese students on campus were evident right from the start.

Meals were slowed down a little at first with Chinese students trying to ask for foods with their limited vocabularies. Ping Pong tables saw action like they'd never seen. Movie night was filled with Chinese chatter as the most advanced English speakers explained the plots to the others.

These and other incidents opened our eyes to our own culture as much as theirs. Noting this, the partnership program was begun. Each Chinese student was paired up with an American partner, the goal being integration of the Chinese students into campus life.

Each pair, or in some cases four-some, met for two hours a week, with activities with which they could participate in. Many days were spent watching movies, playing ping pong and racquetball, or just sitting around exchanging card tricks.

There was a lot to be learned from the partnership program as cultures, philosophies, and jokes were exchanged. Dana had a great opportunity in offering the Chinese students the chance at an indepth study of the English language, and all involved were opened up to new cultures and ideas.

The World At Our Door . . .

Many outsiders think that small Dana College, in Blair, Nebraska is isolated in the midwest, cut off from much of the world. Little do they know . . .

Dana's international students did more than show us the world, they welcomed us in. Students representing Namibia, Denmark, Japan, China, Norway and Ethiopia, showed us a part of the world that many others never get to see. Their coordinator, Peggy Sorenson, began having regular meetings and scheduled activities like soccer in the oval and part of the homecoming festivities.

In many large universities, international students may go unnoticed or be lost in the crowd. At Dana though, they are a constant reminder of all that is still out there, waiting to be experienced. They are in classes, at games, and eating with us at lunch. They are giving us their views on world issues and United States policies.

Dana's eyes are open to the world, more than some may think. We are a tiny but diverse world and a true melting pot of many cultures.

The Borge Dana Connection

For many years, Dana has had a special connection with Victor Borge, the well-known transplanted Dane. He has been in contact with Dana since 1976, and continues helping Dana in any way he can.

When Borge heard of old Main's destruction, he voiced his concern and offered to help come in the form of benefit concert held at the Joslyn Art Museum on October 25, 1989.

Aid Association for Lutherans of Appleton Wisconsin provided a grant to cover program cost and promotion, and Borge volunteered his services. All proceeds were then freed to be donated to fund for the replacement of Old Main.

The concert was well attended, as the reception afterwards. The event became an all school effort with students dressed up and ushering guests to their seats.

Once again, Mr. Borge came through for Dana, this time utilizing his incredible talent as musician and comedian. It's through friends like this that Dana has come as far as it has and will be able to continue to grow. Hats off to Mr. Borge and all those who helped.
